Since the days of prehistory, the myth of the Labyrinth has been used by man to symbolize his journey through the world.

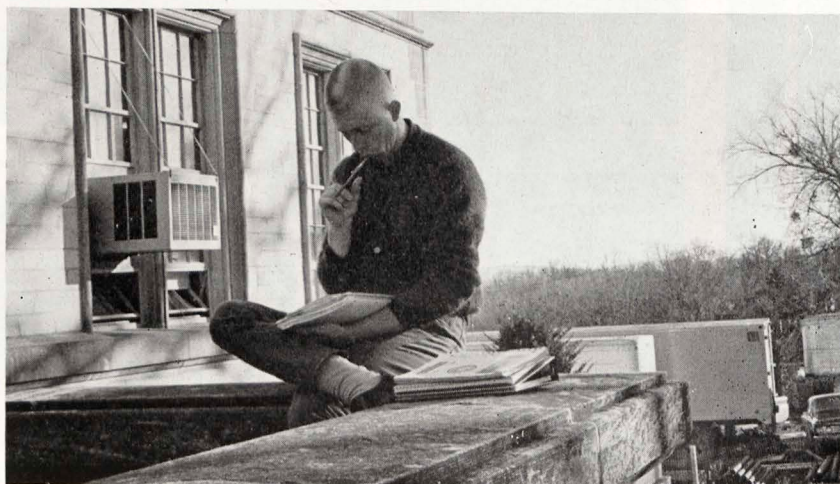

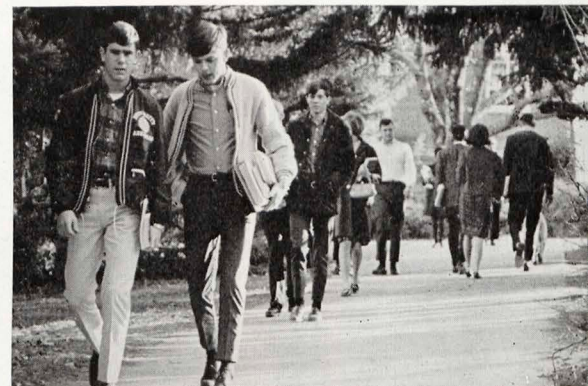

The Labyrinth.

*You walk it once,
Yet, a million times.
Every day,
You grope your way across the smooth surface
Of the never-traveled-path
Worn rough
By the footsteps of all civilization
Before you.*

*What is the Labyrinth?
Where does it lead?
Why are all the great mysteries of the cosmos cosmic ones?
Who are the Fates?
When are the earth, moon, and stars?
How do I disturb the Universe?*

merely by entering my friend, merely by . . .

*You must wait, for there are many.
Patiently, for no amount of hurry
Will speed your entry.
You wouldn't hurry to die!
Not I,
That's crazy.*

*And one at a time—for each,
Though sheltered by all the forgiveness of new birth—
Is alone.*

*Searching all the faceless faces
Of the unborn ancestors
Waiting in line to enter
Before you
For a clue.
What to say?
What to do?
Upon entering.
But it's too soon, for you see, you still are not.
Wait.*

At the center of the Labyrinth is a legendary beast and each man who enters is a hero.

*Then one day,
Perhaps the third of May,
You're beckoned to enter the darkened door
And fathom the bits and pieces of all the world
That will the many corridors of the Labyrinth,
For the Labyrinth has many corridors.*

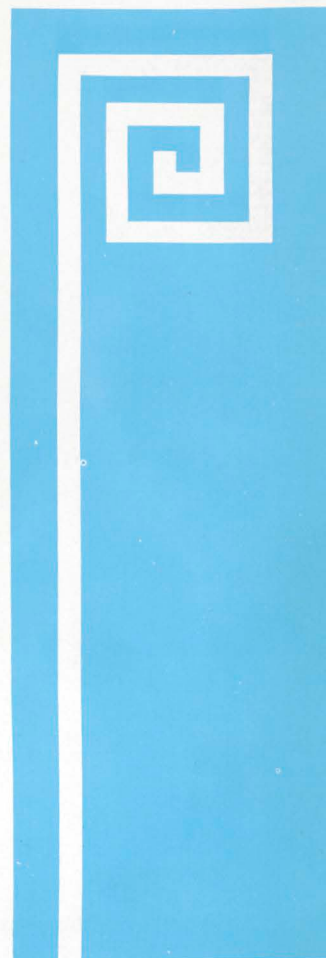

*But for what are you searching
In the total darkness?
And what of the Beast?
And where is the end?
And where are you then?*

*Turn not into the black chamber
And view the panorama of human existence,
Which you hero,
Must fit into a pattern called Life
In a light still too dim to distinguish
The shapes and color of the deed.*

*And proceed ever forward
With the exception of a thousand repeats and retreats
Through all the sights and sounds of the Universe
Toward the Beast you may fail to recognize Toward the end.
For only at the end can you prove you were ever
In the Labyrinth.
There'll be two attendant lords there,
Hamlet's men,
They'll want your name.*

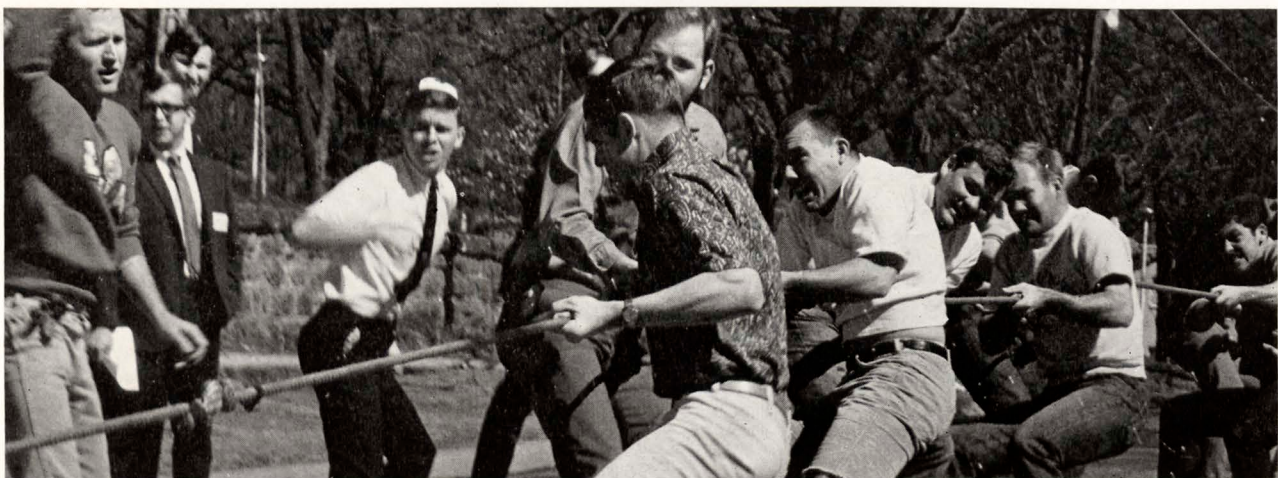

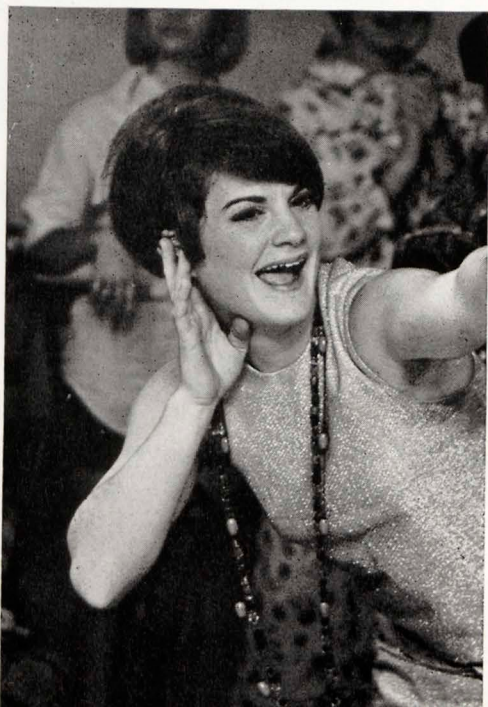

In the Labyrinth of legend, the hero, after many adventures, found his way to the beast, destroyed it returned triumphant to the world.

*So at last, Hero, you know there is a task
And a path through all this maze of tomorrows
To a time when all you look upon is yesterday,
And a confrontation with all
To which you do not know the answer
And a wordless struggle
With all which in you, or without,
Must be destroyed.
So that in the end it might matter
That you lived or died or what you tried
To do of all the things there are to do in the world
And they might not say of you
Looking up, while stirring their cup,
"Poor old fellow,
He never disturbed a pup."*

*So let it begin,
Though it began long ago,
By unfolding the perfumed arms of the philistines
And cretans of pre-natal oblivion
In which we've been resting
Lest we wake from this sleep which was our life
And lie quietly in our grave forever.*

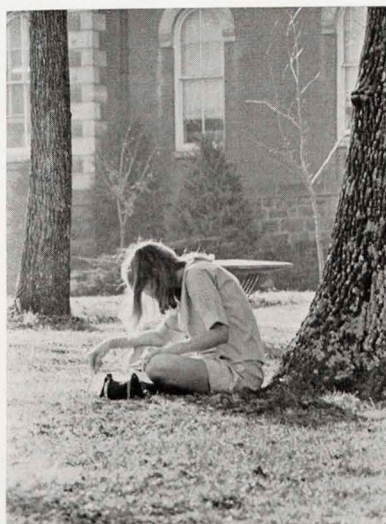

No longer the splendid occupant of the womb, you have become the mortal hero of a timeful journey through a Labyrinth called life. Four colors and two sexes every hero must find his own passage through the maze of the modern world of human experience or emotion to the inevitable end.

*You are in the Labyrinth.
You are Today.*

*Schooled in private institutions of public opinion
You discover the complexity
Of the human perplexity
In a world of political apoplexy
Cannot satisfactorily be dealt with,
So you concentrate your study on a rare cult of fruit flies
And sadly enter your name on the racing form
Of the human race.*

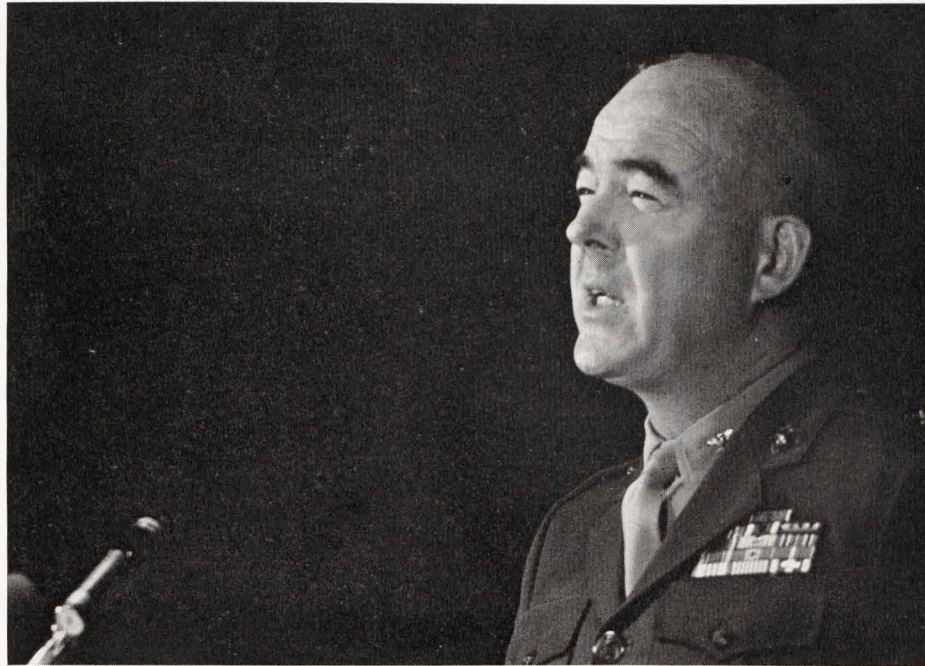

Your hair a mess
 You peer into the mirror of a well-groomed woman
 And take out the pins from the Tightly knotted lock of morality
 That always fell loosely
 About your shoulders.
 For you are in the midst of a sexual revolution
 Erasing all traces of Puritanical institution.
 The Pill
 Put the "Bill
 Of Rights — Not — Wrongs" in the new constitution.

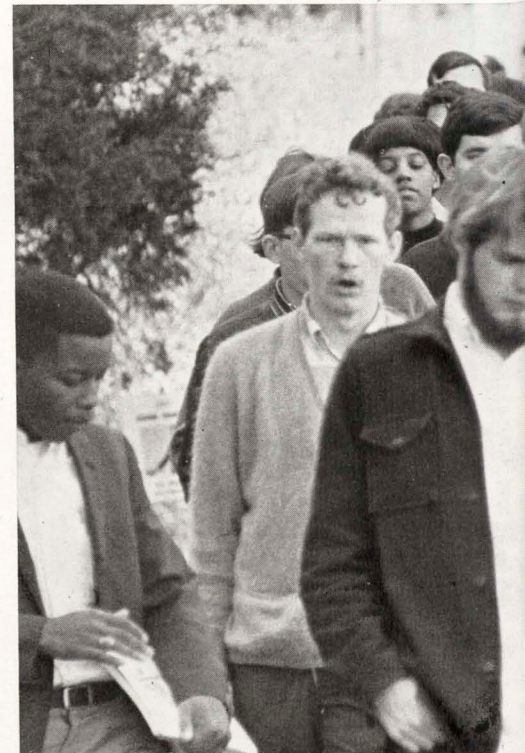

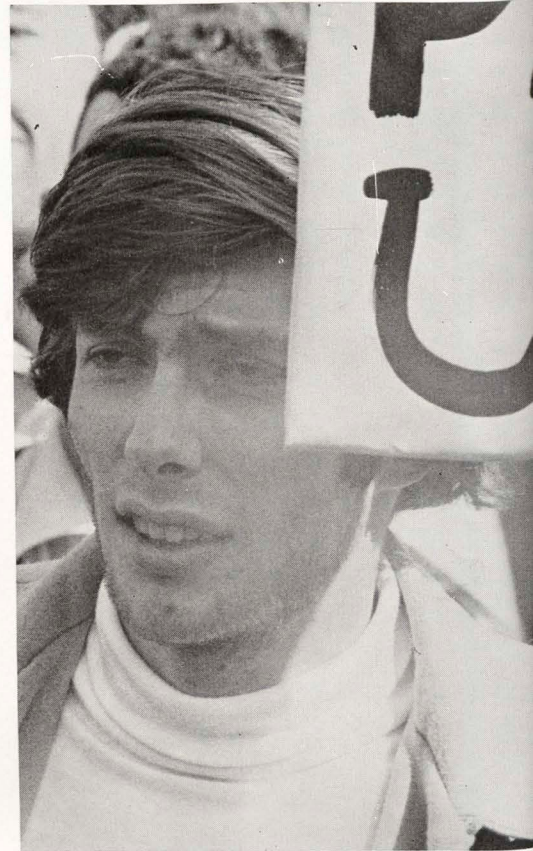

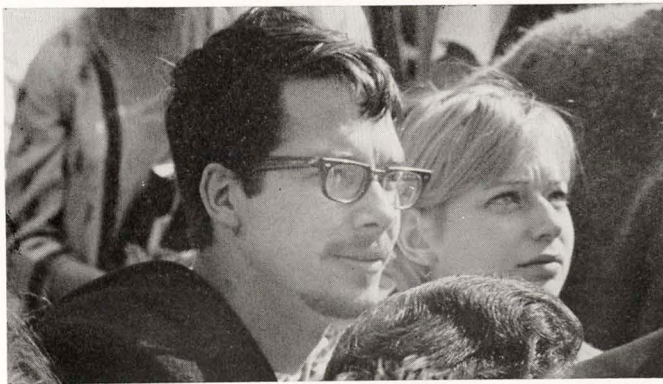

But what's to become of the girl who married dear ole Dad?
 Pardon me, Laa'y, have you been had?

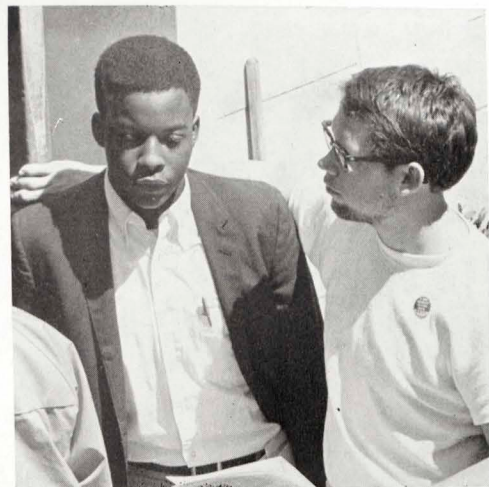

*Not knowing
 Whether to sit with the
 Doves or the Hawks
 On the drooping branches of the tree of American opinion
 You find yourself, Hero, 10,000 miles afar
 Searching the swamps
 And rice paddies
 For a sense of this war.
 You help plant green gardens red with blood
 And sow crops of bullets in the back of the spine
 And reap the moment of death
 And know the rest of the Labyrinth might be only
 A breath.
 And watching your best friend die in action
 See your other burn his draft card in smug satisfaction
 And know you will be mourned for defending his right to do so.*

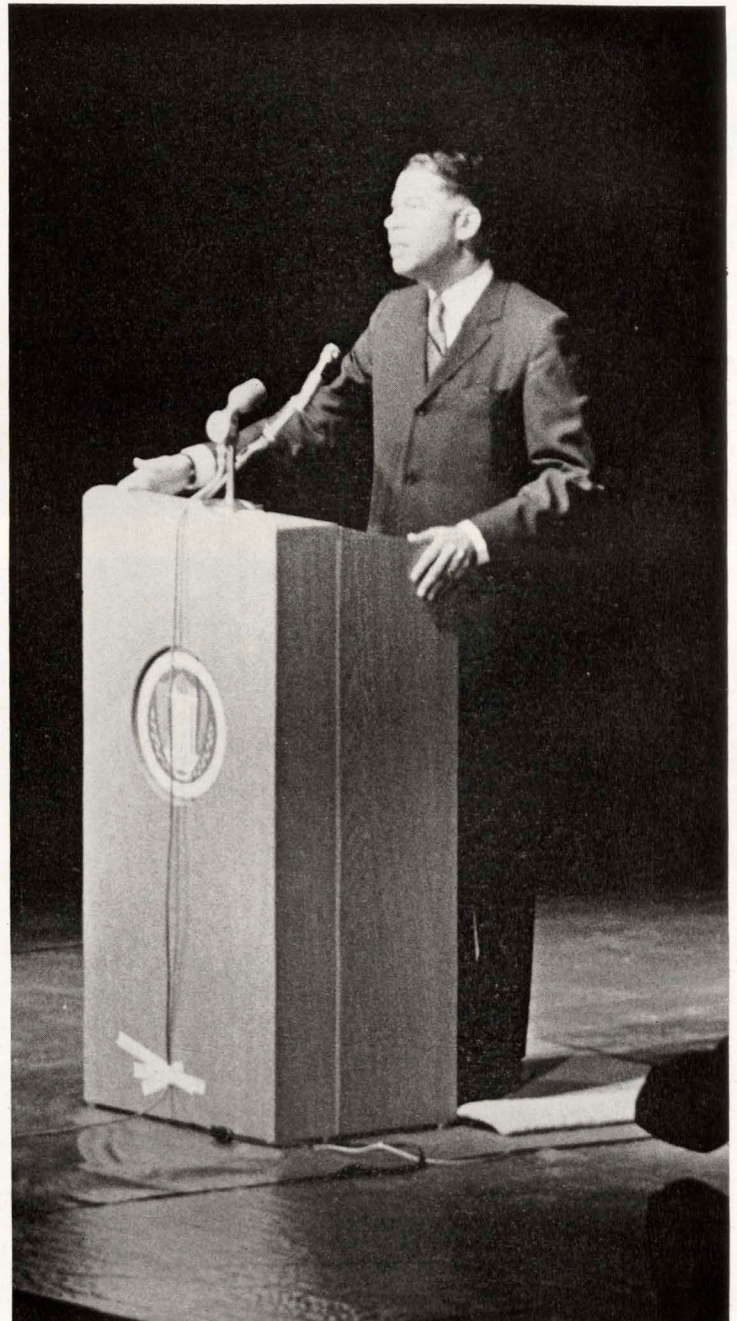

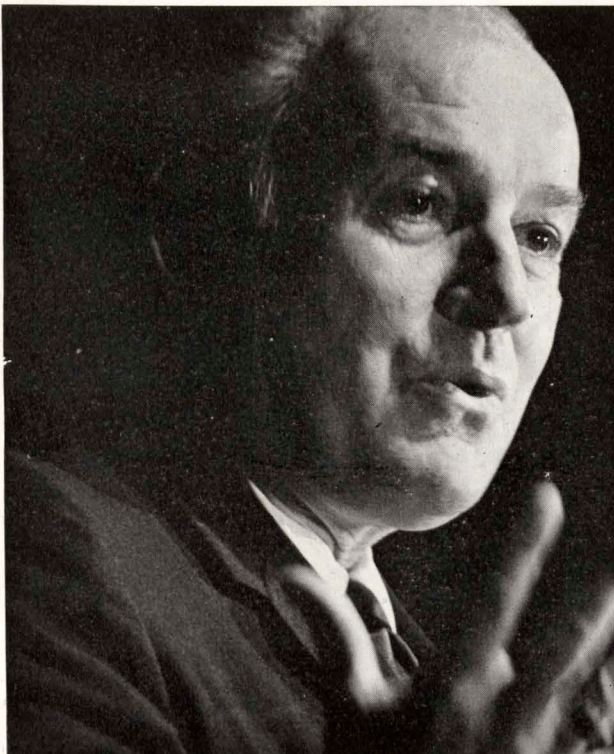

*And you will see them march in the California sun
The passionate proponents of a system undone
"Who's clear of his goals?" Ah, yes, there's one!
Confusing the aims of Revolution and ideology
Who gives a damn about philosophical cosmology.
Protest first
Then make apology!*

And you will hear them singing "We Shall Overcome"
In an Alabama church
Or a Detroit street in the smothering heat
And the contradictions and afflictions
Of the juxtapositions
Of Justice and "Jest-us"
Makes you see
That the taking of tea
And talk of glittering generality
Can't right all wrong in a single century.

*And you will know the world's great men
Who do not have to impersonate genius
Or imitate action to give them the impression they exist
No time for Godot, your boredom they resist.
The jets fly over London and Cologne
But still only quiet over Dallas
The sound of silence blaring a shameful echo
Of a fleeting wisp of glory
For just as you feel you have it,
Offsetting the apathy, corruption and incompetence
That you, Hero, represent by your essence,
You feel it slipping away.*

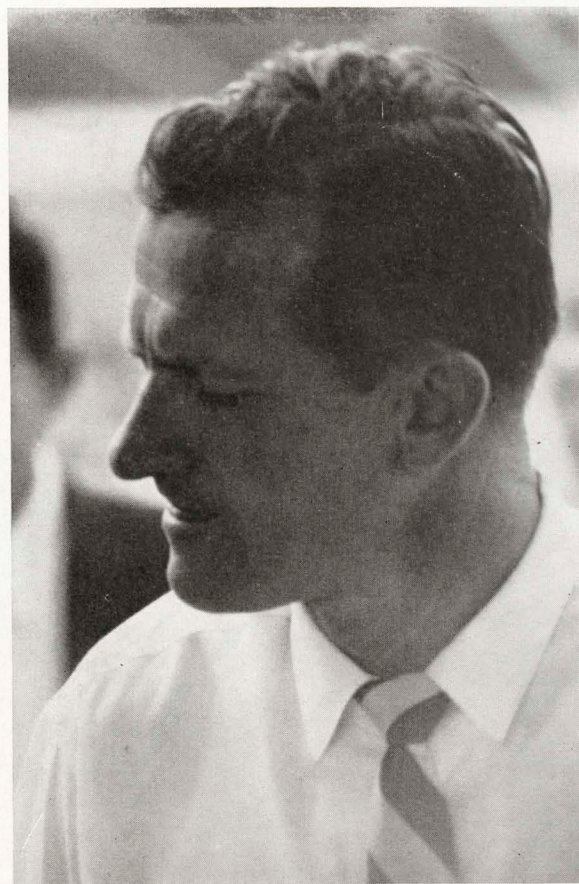

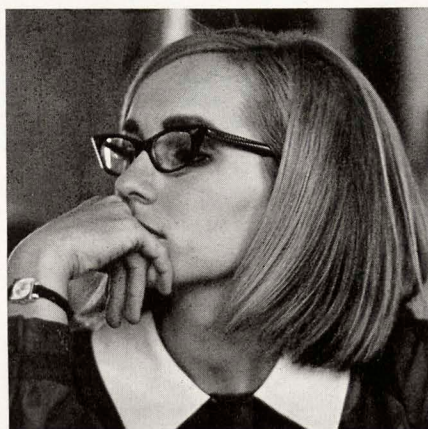

After traveling the many corridors of the Labyrinth and under going the many adventures of experience and emotion, the hero has still to recognize the beast he is to destroy to triumph. For the hardest place to look is inside himself. There he will find the beast blocking his way to other man. Conquer it and he can truly find his way to the world.

The Labyrinth.

*You approach its final corridor
Where mirrored walls
Reveal you
And the Beast of your thought —
Which has always been with you
Though you have been always apart.*

*For your eyes
Blinded by the sights of the Labyrinth
Were closed to the consciousness of your individual.*

*And now as you are becoming Yesterday
You see in the mirror of your mind
The reflection of your Soul
"ECCE HOMO."*

*And exclusive of emotion and experience
You add to human remembrance,
Of what some in their daring call Life,
Your celebrated spirit
Free to respond to the simple fact of Death
Without terror or anguish
For you have seen yourself in the universe
Of your ephemeral journey through
The Labyrinth.
And Eternity
Is yours for the asking.*

Winthrop Rockefeller
Governor of Arkansas

The Governor and the Board

After one year in office, Governor Rockefeller has maintained his popularity throughout the state. Upon taking office, he laid the groundwork for sweeping reforms through establishment of commissions to study the State Constitution, the penal system and governmental efficiency.

Governor Rockefeller has taken an active interest in University of Arkansas affairs and has been a capable and interested backer of the cause of higher education. Mr. Rockefeller has given millions of dollars to education in Arkansas through scholarships of the Rockwin Fund and the Arkansas Opportunity Fund and through direct grants to various colleges and schools throughout the state. The students of the University are grateful for his contributions toward the improvement of the educational facilities in Arkansas.

One of the Governor's duties is the appointment of a ten-member Board of Trustees. Its members are appointed from each Congressional district, the remainder being appointed at large. The at-large members must be alumni of the University.

The function of the Board is primarily policy-making rather than administrative, but all major official acts of the University require Board approval. The members of the Board serve without pay, and they meet once a month.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES: Seated, Left to right: Dr. Preston L. Hathcock, Mr. R. E. L. Wilson, III, Mr. D. P. Raney, Chairman, Mr. John L. Wilson, Mr. Roy Ritter. Standing, Left to right:

Mr. Leon B. Catlett, Mr. Howard H. Horst, Mr. R. A. Young, Jr., Dr. David W. Mullins, President, Mr. Robert H. Smith, Mr. Fred Pickens.

James E. Pomfret
1915 1968

In Memoriam

The obituary said simply and as a matter of fact that James E. Pomfret, age 51, vice president and secretary of the board of trustees, died September 13.

There followed a brief account of his career: "He joined the University of Arkansas staff in 1948 as chief accountant. In 1951, Mr. Pomfret was appointed purchasing agent, and in 1954 was named comptroller. He was named business manager in 1957. He succeeded T. C. Carlson in 1958 as vice president of business.

"Survivors include his wife . . . a son . . . and two daughters . . ."

Actually, Mr. Pomfret's "survivors" number in the thousands. For virtually every student who has attended the University of Arkansas in the past two decades has benefited, in one way or another, from the leadership of the six-foot, three-inch, 230 pounder whose friends called him "Big Jim." It was Mr. Pomfret who fought — in the onslaught of rising educational costs — to keep student fees at a minimum. It was Mr. Pomfret who quietly but vigorously campaigned for more and better housing. And it was Mr. Pomfret's insight into fiscal matters that helped the University retain its best teachers and researchers.

The door of his office was never closed to students or faculty members. He enjoyed helping people. He liked to swap humorous stories with them, and he was a patient and sympathetic listener when they wanted to talk with him about their problems.

When Mr. Pomfret died, the University of Arkansas lost a man who helped shape its destiny in the years of its greatest growth. It is to the memory of "Big Jim" that these pages are dedicated.

And proudly.

Officers of Administration

Dr. David Wiley Mullins serves as the chief administrator of the University.

During his past seven years of service as President of the University, Dr. David W. Mullins has done much to improve and expand the institution. Enrollment has increased steadily, and the campus showed adjustment as the $50 million expansion program was near completion this spring.

Dr. Mullins has led a distinguished career as administrator and teacher in the field of education. A native of Ash Flat, Arkansas, he graduated with honors from U of A in 1931. He earned his MA degree at the University of Colorado and his Doctor of Education at Columbia University. Dr. Mullins also received an Honorary Doctor of Laws degree from Hendrix College.

Assisting Dr. Mullins in the execution, direction, and administration of the University are five Vice-Presidents. Administrative Vice-President, Dr. James W. Green, assists the President in general administration of the University. Vice-President of Business, Dr. John E. Kane, is responsible for the financial and business operations of the University. Vice-President for Health Sciences, Storm Whaley, administers at the University Medical Center at Little Rock. Dr. John W. White, Vice-President of Agriculture, is responsible for programs in the field of Agriculture. The new Vice-President for Academic Affairs is Palmer C. Pilcher.

The Office of the Registrar

The Registrar's Office is a crossroads for all students at the University. The Office is responsible for all admissions and for all requirements for graduation. The job of admitting, registering, and keeping records for approximately 10,500 students is all done in this office under the supervision of Carter A. Short, Registrar and his assistants, J. B. Kellar, E. E. Lee, and Wallie Ingalls.

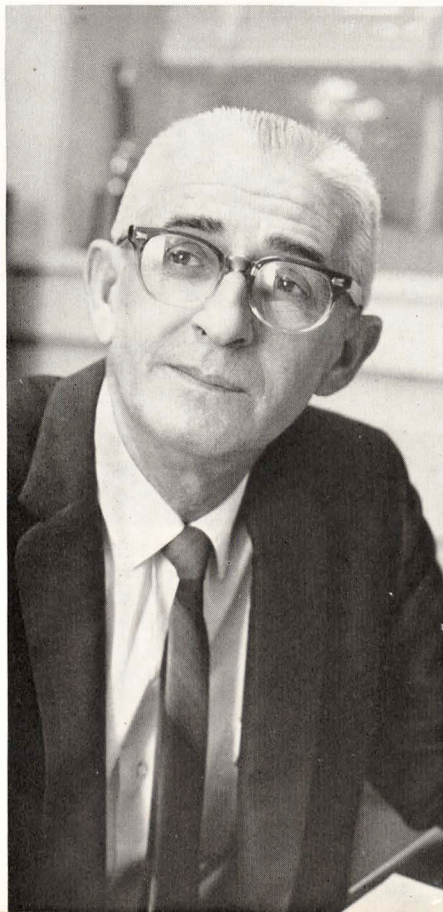

One of the Office's main responsibilities is to make contact with high schools and to inform them about the University. The High School Principal's Conference has proved to be very successful in coordinating the high schools curriculum with admission requirements. At the Conference, each principal has conferences with graduates of his school who are now students at the University and also members of the University's faculty. Suggestions are given to the principal as to ways of better preparing students for college.

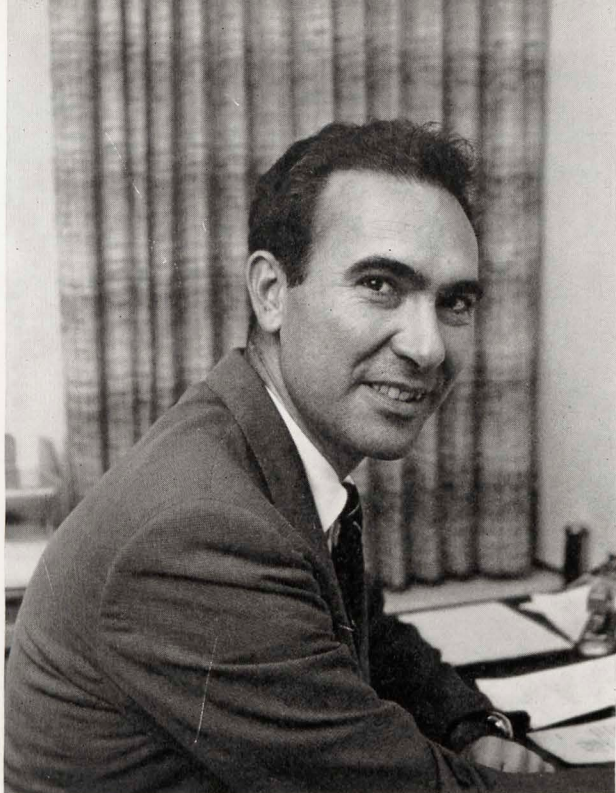

Registration is a much harder job for the Office than for the students. A schedule of classes must be prepared, class cards printed, packets for students assembled, and endless other jobs completed before the students can begin to register. The Office also keeps accurate, updated records for all of the students which are considered to be private, personal documents.

Carter A. Short headed the Office.

Assisting in the Office are J. B. Kellar, E. E. Lee, and Wallie Ingalls, Assistant Registrars.

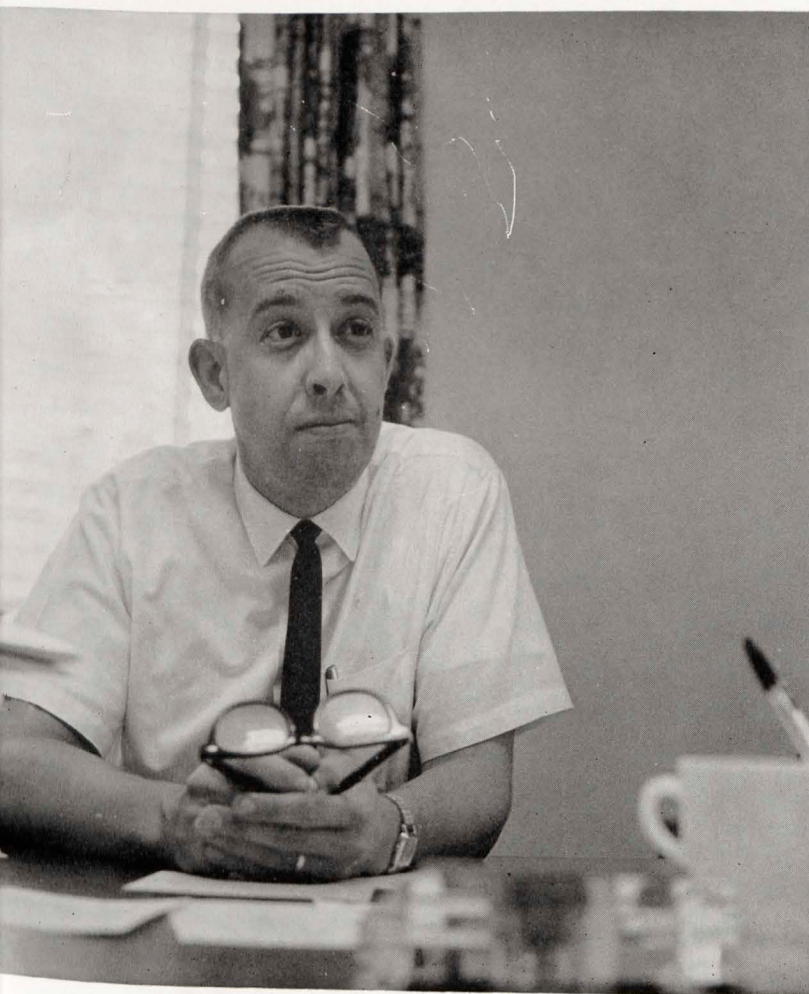

George A. Yourick took over the duties of Dean of Men this year.

Jacqueline Sterner Douglas returned to her duties as Dean of Women.

The Division of Student Affairs

William F. Denman, Dean of Students, directs the Division

The Division of Student Affairs plans and implements a social-educational program designed to supplement the classroom experiences of the students. The program areas pertain mainly to the welfare, morale, and discipline of the students at the University. The Division is concerned directly with student government and operation of Student Counseling Service, Food Service, Placement Office, Book Store, Infirmary, Student Union, financial aid, and part-time employment service. Members of the Division assist students in the organization of Student Senate, Associated Students, Inter-Fraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, Men's Interhall Council, Inter-House Congress, Women's Interhall Council, and Off Campus Men and Women.

Under the supervision of the Dean of Students, this office of the University is composed of the Dean of Students, the Dean of Women, the Dean of Men, and the Coordinator of Student Aid. The members of the Division work with other administrative officers, faculty members, and staff members on mutual problems as they affect student's academic and extra-curricular life.

A department of the Division, the Information Desk coordinates the social activities on the campus. The Desk handles the registration of all social functions given by groups on campus along with many other duties. The Information Desk is directed by John Shockley, Student Union Supervisor.

Miss Grace Vineyard and Miss Claire Abney assisted the Dean of Women.

Erin L. Schmidt and Bryden E. Moon were Assistant Deans of Men.

Coordinators of Campus Activities

John Shockey returned to his duties as Supervisor of Student Union.

The Division is headed by William F. Denman, Dean of Students. Dr. Denman received his B.S. degree in Social Science from Purdue, M.A. in psychology from Oregon, and Ph.D. in Psychology and Higher Education from Syracuse.

Jacqueline S. Douglas, Dean of Women, returned to the University this year after a year of study at Bryn Mawr College with the American Council on Education. Dean Douglas is assisted in her duties by Grace Vineyard, Assistant Dean, and Claire Abney, Assistant Dean in charge of residence halls. Miss Abney came to Arkansas from Texas Wesleyan College.

George A. Yourick became Dean of Men this year after serving as Acting Dean of Students in 1967. Dean Yourick is responsible for the implementation of the men's program and for supervision of his staff. Assistant Dean, Erin L. Schmidt, came to the University from Texas Tech and Ohio State. Bryden E. Moon, Assistant Dean, headed the resident hall program for men.

The Division's secretaries keep things running smoothly.

Agriculture and Home Economics

The University of Arkansas College of Agriculture and Home Economics enjoys much prestige among the colleges of agriculture and home economics in the nation. The curricula includes basic training in the physical, biological, and social sciences, the humanities, and communications, as well as in technical agriculture and home economics.

With an enrollment increase of 33% in the last two years, the College of Agriculture and Home Economics has grown and improved to meet the new demands. This year a new degree in Foods and Nutrition was offered and the Home Economics Education degree was revised. In the agricultural field, new interdepartmental studies were made available in Food Service and Agricultural Pesticides. Revisions in the curriculum for Agricultural Education now permits students to major in Vocational Agriculture and another agricultural field. Many changes have already been made in the course list and other changes are being investigated.

The College has made many improvements in its facilities to help the students. A new Virology-Pathology laboratory has been added at the University Farm. Also at the University Farm is a team of scientists who are working on biological control of insects.

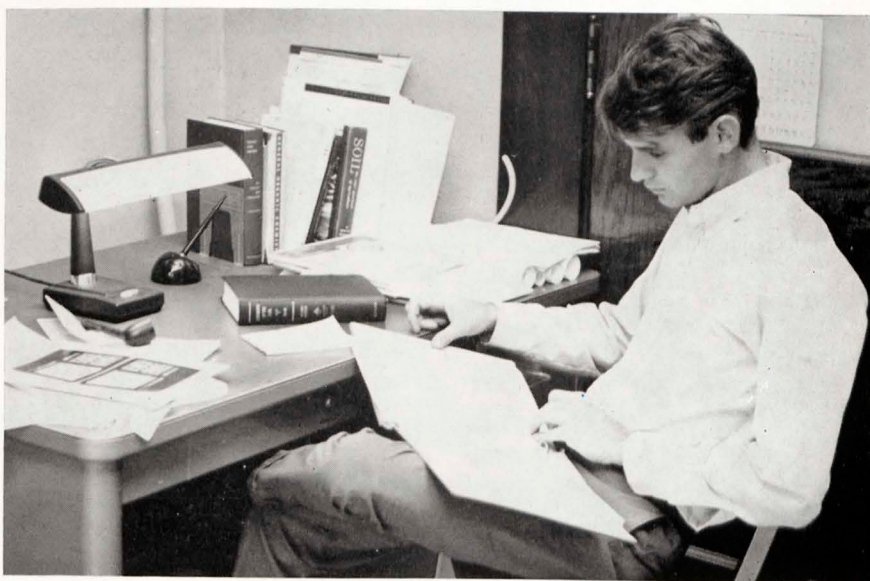

The College of Agriculture and Home Economics is headed by Dean Glen W. Hardy. Dean Hardy has been directing the College for three years.

Arts and Sciences

The College of Arts and Sciences, the Mother College, claims approximately one third of the enrollment of the University. Students from all Colleges must take some basic courses from the College of Arts and Sciences. The College is responsible for about two-thirds of all undergraduate credit hours.

Offering studies in the natural and social sciences, languages, literature, fine arts, history, and philosophy, the College gives students the components of a good general education. Curriculums leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Sciences, Bachelor of Music, and also, Bachelor of Architecture are available to students.

Robbin C. Anderson came to Arkansas this year from the University of Texas to serve as the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Robert S. Fairchild continued his duties in the position of Associate Dean of the College.

This year the College is reevaluating each of its departments. The faculty is making a study of degree requirements, and the students have also been given opportunities to offer suggestions for improvements of the College.

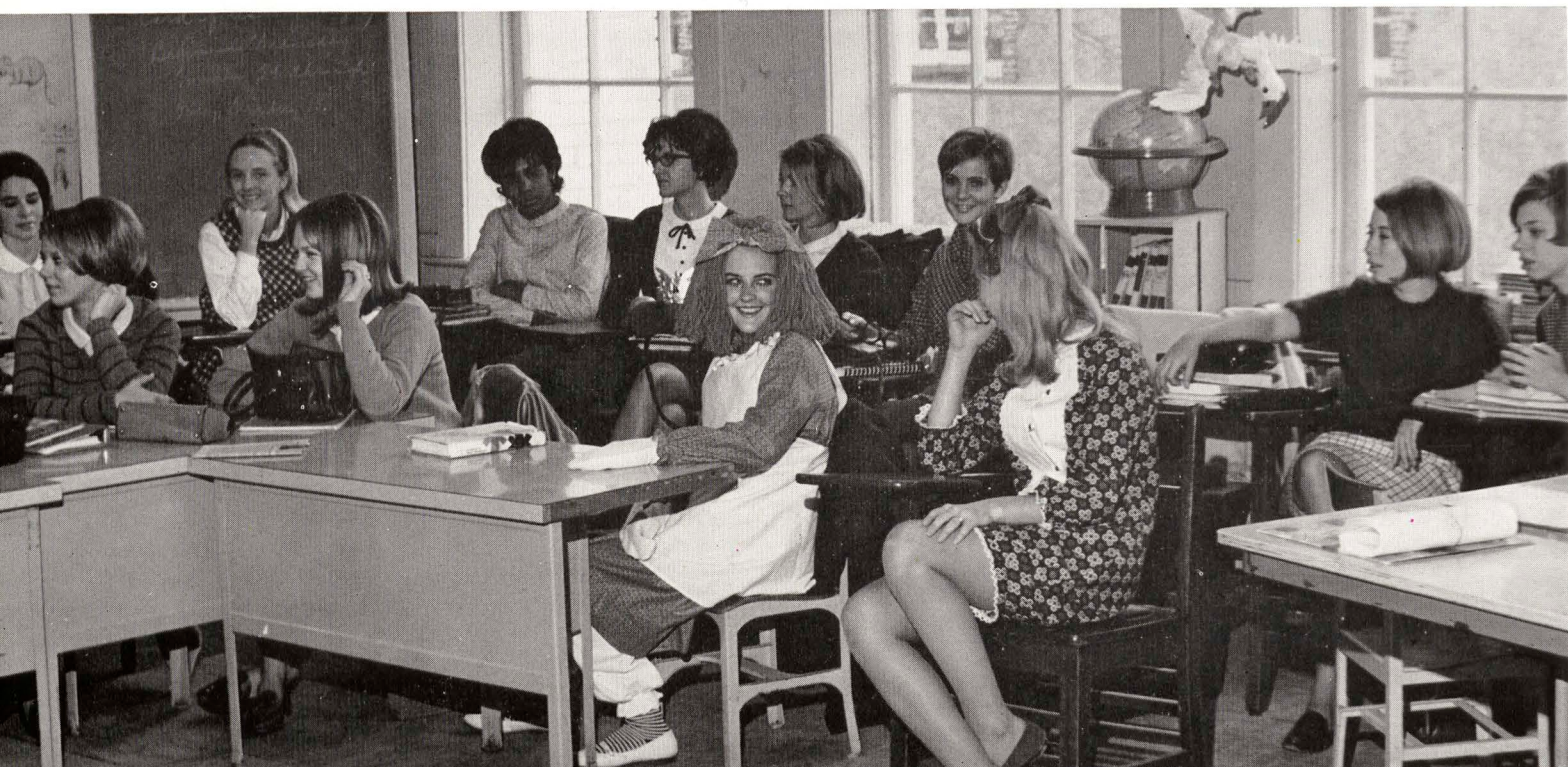

Increased enrollment has created certain space problems for the College. Construction was begun this year on an addition to the S. E. Complex which will add many new classrooms and laboratories.

Associate Dean Robert Fairchild counsels students in the correct course of study.

The College of Education

For the thirty-fourth year, Dean Henry W. Kronenberg headed the College of Education with the assistance of Dean Robert M. Roelfs. The College seeks to unite the forces of the University which contribute to preparing students for professional service in the fields of teaching, counseling, supervision, and school administration. The College provides consulting services, engages in educational research, encourages students to enter the teaching profession, and properly places graduates of the College. Graduates receive a Bachelor of Science in Education degree. In cooperation with the Graduate School of the University, the College of Education offers advanced work in education leading to the degrees of Master of Education and Doctor of Education.

This year the faculty of the College approved a plan to change and in many cases raise the requirements for different teaching fields. The most noticeable changes were in the fields of English and Social Studies. These changes will increase the qualifications of the graduates for teaching positions.

Growing along with the University, the College of Education exhibits a new Graduate Education building. The modern building will house the Departments of Graduate Education, Counseling Education, and Vocational Education. This badly needed facility will centralize the College's many departments on campus.

Studying Engineering requires a lot of hard work and many long nights.

The College of Engineering

The principal aim of the College of Engineering is to train young men and women in the basic and specialized concepts of engineering. This College, however, recognizes that if its graduates are to gain and hold stature in their profession, they must have scholastic training in fields other than engineering. Under present conditions, the engineering graduates must have a background of sound scientific and economic principles and must be acquainted with industrial practices in his chosen field before he can assume responsibility in the profession.

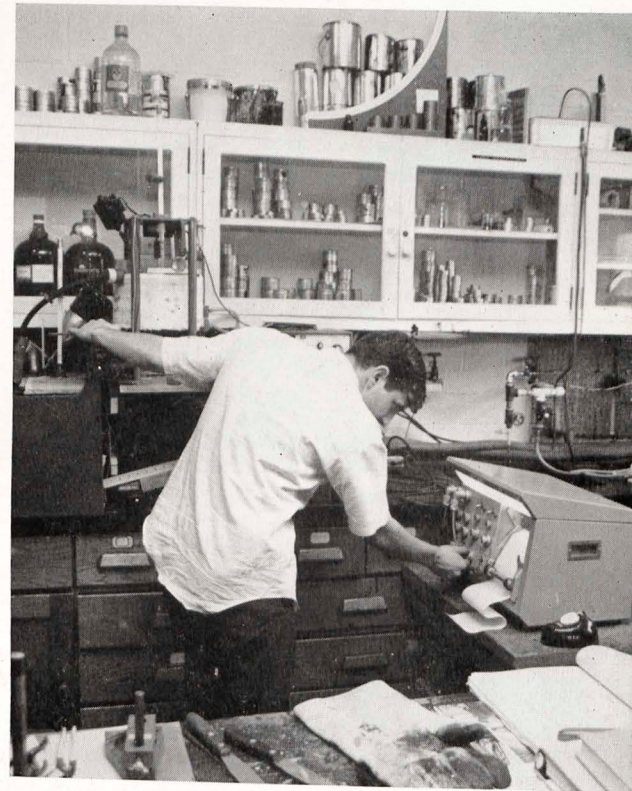

The College of Engineering offered curriculums accredited by the Engineer's Council for Professional Development leading to a Bachelor of Science degree in seven fields. Degrees were available in Agricultural Engineering, Chemical Engineering, Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Industrial Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, and Engineering Science. In cooperation with the University's Graduate School, the College offered a program leading to Master of Science degree and Doctor of Philosophy degree in the various departments. A student with a bachelor's degree in one of the fields may qualify for a second degree in another department in one academic year.

The University's Graduate School

The Graduate School at the University was established in 1927. Twenty years ago a Graduate Center was founded in Little Rock. The University also offers special courses for graduate credit in the field of education through the facilities of Arkansas A. and M. College, Arkansas Polytechnic College, Southern State College, and a Center at Fort Smith, when up to twelve weeks of residence credit may be earned toward the master's degree at the University of Arkansas. The Graduate Institute of Technology was established in Little Rock in 1957 to offer that area graduate programs in the physical sciences and engineering.

More than seventeen degrees are offered by the University Graduate School. A three year program for a Masters in Social Work and a Masters in Applied Math have recently been added at the Little Rock School. The University has also added a Masters of Computer Science this year.

The Graduate School experienced its biggest year in 1968 with more than fifty Doctors of Philosophy degrees and more than thirty Doctors of Education degrees awarded. An electron microscope and a mass spectrometer have been added to the excellent equipment which is available for research.

Virgil W. Adkisson turns his full attention to the Graduate School this year after adding the job of Acting Vice President for Academic Affairs last year. Assistant Dean of the School is James J. Hudson.

The University's Law School

The School of Law followed the standards of legal education prescribed by the American Bar Association and since 1926 has been on that Association's list of approved law schools. The School offered a three-year law course that leads to the Degree of Bachelor of Laws. At the Little Rock Division of the School, a program of part-time law study (with evening classes) lead to the same degree but required four and one-half years to complete.

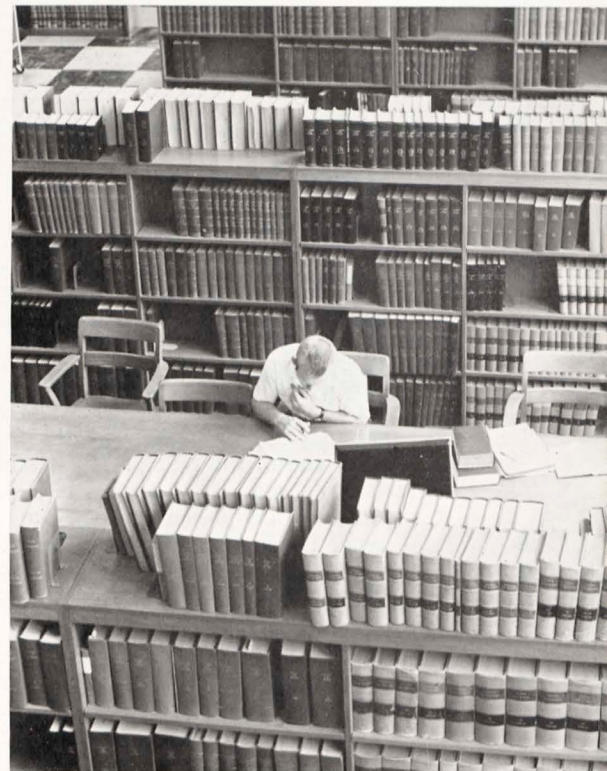

The primary objective of the School was to provide a thorough preparation for the practice of law. The program of instruction included analytical study of the fundamental principles of common law and equity as they appear in the decided cases, with reference both to their historical development and to their practical application, and study of public and administrative law and typical statutes.

This year, the Law School continued to employ the method of instruction followed by standard American law schools. This method is designed to give an effective working knowledge of fundamental legal principles and to develop the power of practical legal reasoning. Practical experience was gained by the students through Student Court, Moot Court, and third-year practice court. Advanced students engaged in legal research.

Law students spend many hours attending class and preparing for class.

Law School courses should be listed under Library Science.

Medical Center at Little Rock

The University Medical Center, ranked among the most modern medical institutions in the nation, represents one of the outstanding features of the University of Arkansas. The Center has a 450-bed teaching hospital, an out-patient clinic, and a medical education wing. Research is done at the T. H. Barton Institute for Medical Research. The School of Medicine is affiliated with the Veterans Administration Hospital in Little Rock and North Little Rock under the nationwide Dean's Committee program. Some beds in these hospitals are utilized for teaching purposes, in addition to those at University Hospital.

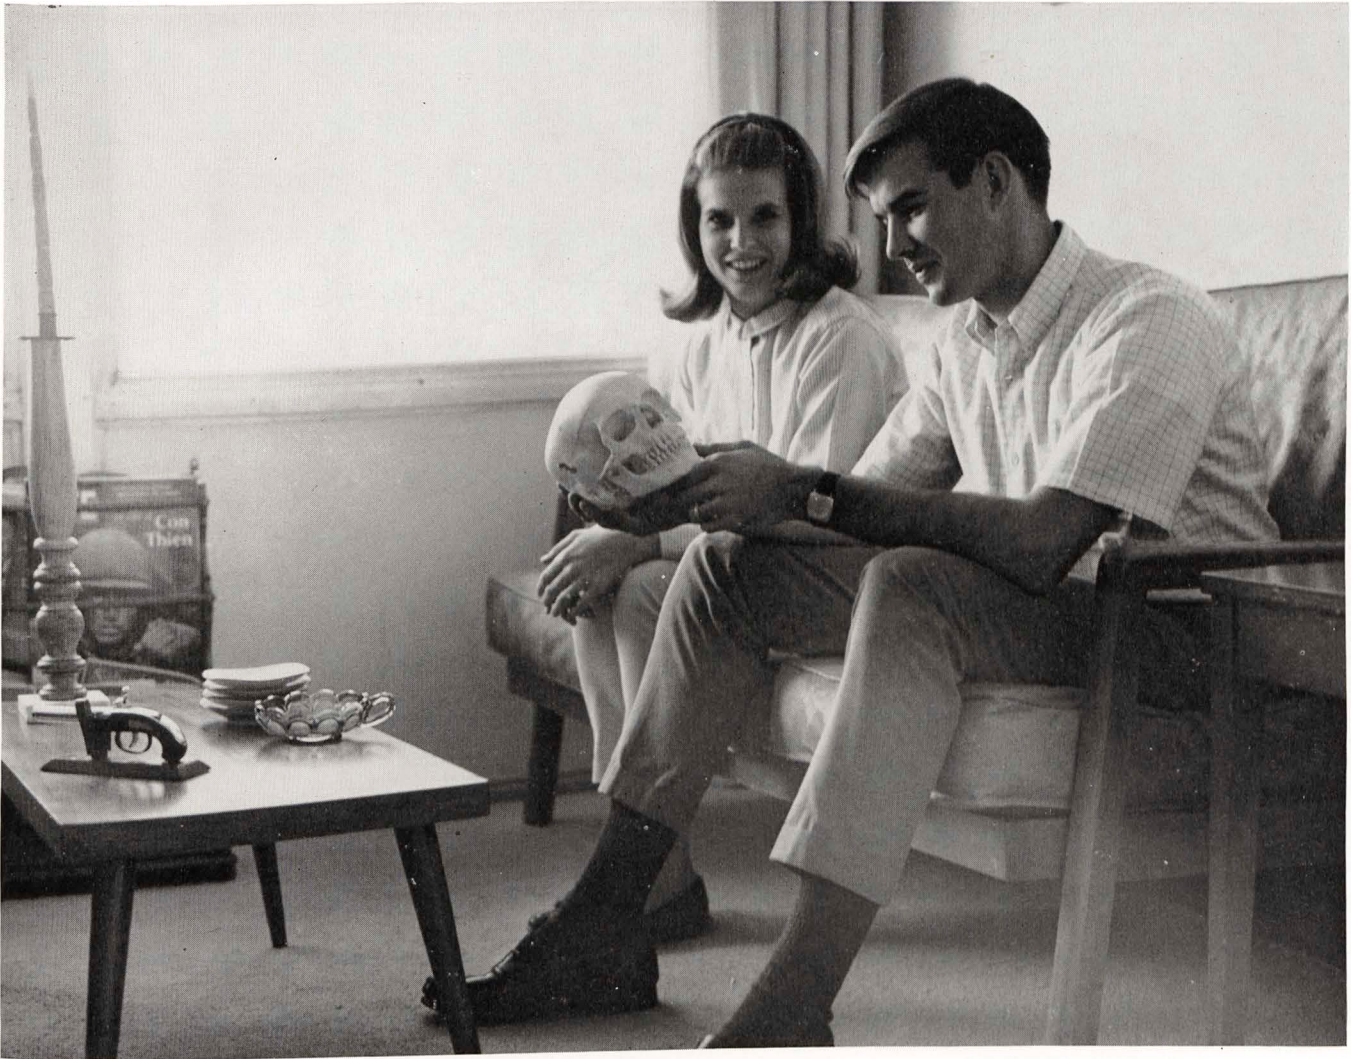

The University of Arkansas Schools of Pharmacy and Nursing are housed in the Education Building at the Medical Center, together with the School of Medicine. Students received not only detailed classroom instruction in their prospective fields but also a great deal of experience in the application of this knowledge because many people came to the Center for medical attention.

Along with the modern teaching facilities, the Medical Center provides housing for both single and married students. Rooms and one bedroom efficiency apartments are available in a ten-story Residence Hall adjoining the Jeff Banks Student Union.

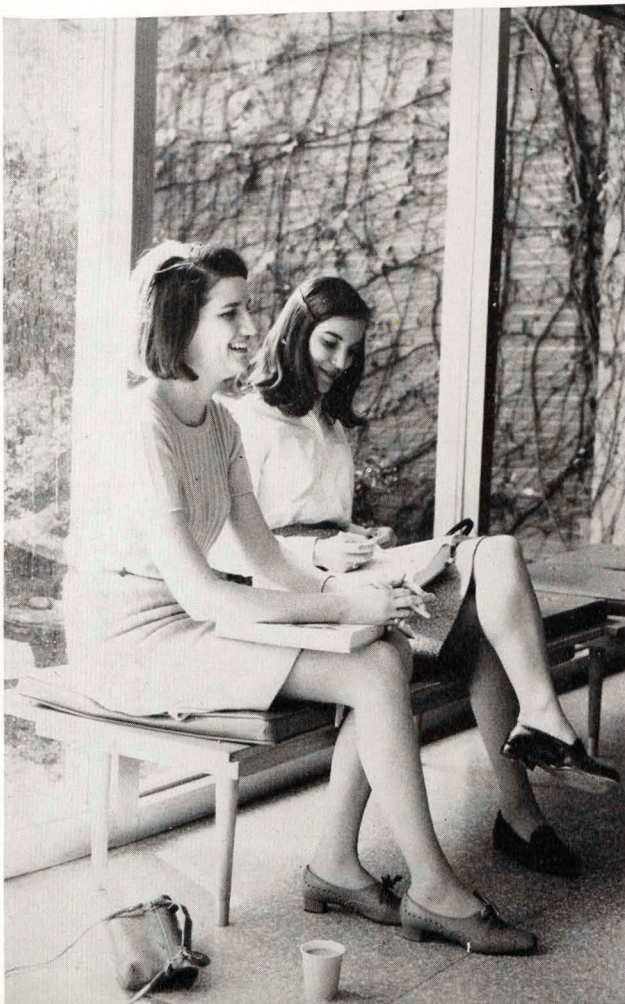

Winston K. Storey served as the Dean of the School of Medicine. Heading the School of Pharmacy was Stanley G. Mittelstaedt. Miss Elois Field directed the School of Nursing. All of these Deans had their headquarters at the Medical Center.

College of Business Administration

The College of Business Administration gives the students an excellent preparation for the business world by offering courses in the fields of marketing, management, accounting, taxation, labor, transportation, insurance, statistics, economics, finance, and business education. The College has a fully developed degree structure, including the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration, Bachelor of Science in Industrial Management, Bachelor of Science in Public Administration, Master of Business Administration, Doctor of Philosophy in Business Administration, and Doctor of Philosophy in Economics. Since there is no need for extension or multiplication of new degree programs, study is being given to reorganization, changing emphasis, and qualitative improvement within the framework of existing programs. Plans were announced this year for the formation of a Business Advisory Committee, consisting of Deans, faculty, and others. It is expected that the Advisory Committee will play an active and constructive role in determination and attainment of the long-run objectives of the College.

Dr. John P. Owen, Dean of the College of Business Administration, came to the University this year from the University of Houston. Dr. M. G. Bridenstein returned this year to fill the post of Associate Dean.

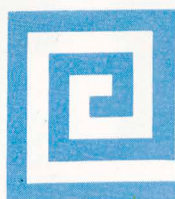

M. G. Bridenstein served the College as Associate Dean.

Symposium '68 Becomes A Reality

THOMAS FRANKLIN (Mack) McLARTY
President of Associated Students

1967 was the year of the big campaign promises. Mack McLarty's 28 plank platform raised many doubts. However, the majority of the students in a hectic campaign showed their faith in the array of programs and the candidate. McLarty was elected over three other opponents in the primary, a first in the history of the University.

Both supporters and critics alike were anxious to observe whether or not these campaign promises of 1967 would become realities in 1968. Many believed that the concepts of a symposium, transit system, Ombudsman, community involvement committee, etc. were simply too diverse and too all-encompassing to be implemented.

Progress was made in all twenty-eight planks. Some succeeded beyond all expectations. In 1968, student government became a viable, progressive organization.

Symposium '68, which brought fifteen nationally known personalities to campus to speak, was featured on a statewide color television special and is currently in the running for the George Foster Peabody Award. Over $30,000 worth of tickets were sold and the average attendance per lecture was approximately 2500-3000.

The transit system, which brought only scoffs during the campaign, proved a reality in March. The trial system has been used extensively by the students and has proven mechanically feasible. It even helped the city transport policemen during the heavy snow.

A somewhat impossible task was rendered possible when over $2500 was put into street improvement. And more funds may be made available at a later date.

The University was active this year in the Arkansas Student Government Association. This activity proved to be of great benefit particularly in bettering relations among the various colleges and universities in the state.

A comprehensive Bill of Rights were presented to the Senate and were subsequently passed. These broad rights included student participation in all committees as well as the elimination of double jeopardy.

The Christmas tree lighting ceremony and monthly breakfast meetings with city officials have greatly improved relations with the citizens of Fayetteville.

The general ideas of a joint unification council and an Ombudsman have been accepted by the students. However, an expansion of these departments is called for in the future. Similarly, a far reaching, concrete proposal for a campus radio station now exists. The radio department has submitted several applications to private and federal concerns.

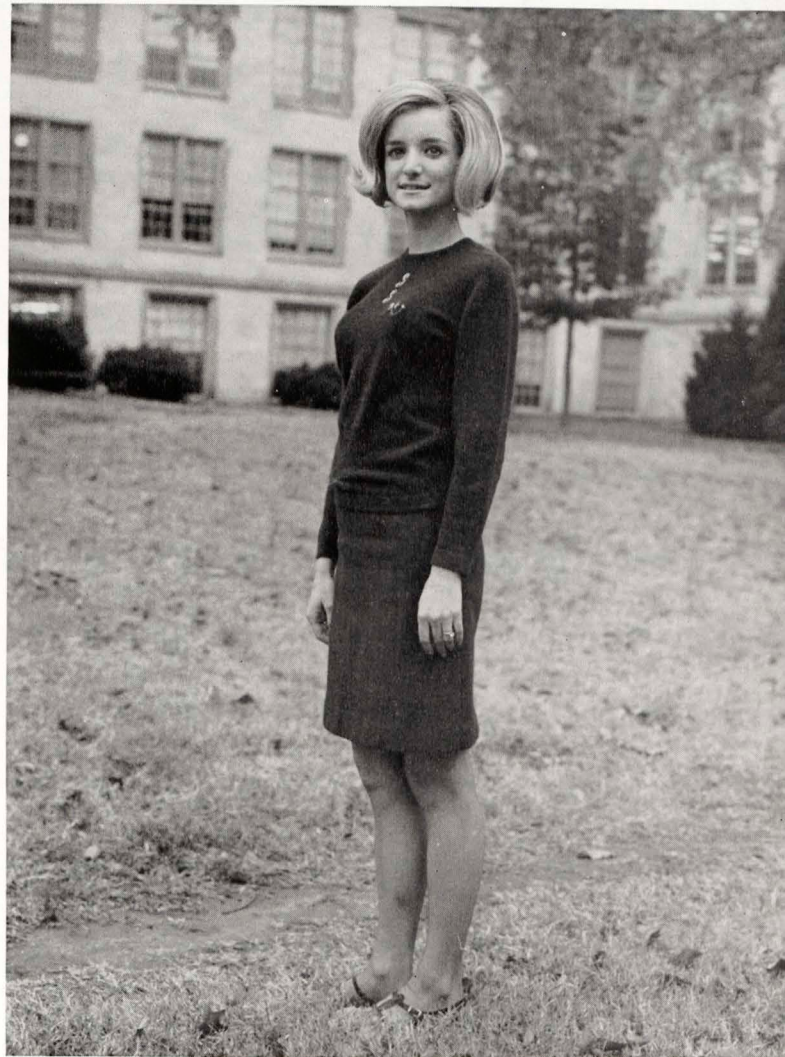

Charles Stubblefield did an outstanding job as vice-president and as chairman of the Board of Publications. His quiet, calm manner was effective as always. Jack McNulty put together his treasurer's manual and guided the financial operations of the symposium and the transit system. Experience did count. Simone Seaman kept an accurate record of the Senate minutes and supervised their distribution.

In conclusion, not all of the 28 points in the McLarty platform were completely accomplished. However, research and progress were made in every plank. More importantly, student government now seems to command the interest and the respect from the individual student. Thus, for the first time, the ultimate purpose of student government has been achieved. 1968 was a year of realities, not daydreams.

Vehicle Tax Condemned By Senate

The Student Senate was more aggressive than in the past. Some senators did an excellent job, others did not.

The Senate as a whole condemned the vehicle tax proposed by the city of Fayetteville. The Senate felt that students should not be taxed based on the principle of "no taxation without representation."

The Student Court has functioned more efficiently than others in previous times.

Others in student government, though not elected, did much to deal with the enormous scope of responsibility this year: Bobby Goodyear, Carter Hardage, Stark Ligon, Walter Slaughter, Sara Watt, Brenda Hemingway, Peggy Franks and Jane Williams.

The Administration and the students, through Associated Students, have had a much closer relationship. Part of the credit here goes to Dean of Students Bill Denman.

From one end of the twenty-eight planks to the other and in all of the rest of the facets of student government, it was a year of big promises and big production.

Thumbs up Mack!!!

1968 RAZORBACK

The 1968 RAZORBACK staff was organized with the idea of distributing the various jobs to a greater number of individuals, leaving a more qualified staff to work on the book the following year. In this manner, we could build a staff with experience and at the same time offer a wider selection of candidates for editor. Last year when I filed unopposed for re-election as editor, several members of the Board of Publications were disturbed that no other person had filed for the position. They felt that more people should be encouraged to participate and trained to assume the role of editor. Therefore, I decided to try to organize a staff which would allow several students the opportunity to become qualified to assume the number one spot on the staff. (Actually, "the number one spot" on the 1968 RAZORBACK was filled by T. J. Patterson, administrative assistant.) T. J. handled a great many of the problems dealing with the RAZORBACK and was able to acquire much valuable experience.

However, two associate editors were appointed: Sue Walk was to gather the copy for the book and work with The Hurley Company; while Linda Young's job was to gather the pictures and deal with Southwestern Engraving Company. Well, all I have to say at this point about the idea is that "it looked real good on paper." I sometimes felt that we had, "a failure to communicate." Nevertheless, both Sue and Linda had requested the jobs and I feel that they learned a great deal about the yearbook business.

James T. Wright was appointed as Business Manager of the book and between job interviews we saw him occasionally, but he acquired a damn good job with Southwestern Bell. He was extremely capable and with the help of his wife handled the business functions of the book very well.

Mike Barkley served as Chief-photographer for the third year while he too was able to train replacements. Mike has worked very hard to offer the best of his work for this publication and we feel like he has done extremely well considering the circumstances.

It seems that I have waited until the minute before the deadline to write this copy and Jean Thompson is pushing me to finish her section. Therefore, at this point, I will say no more about the staff or my opinion, but hope to have the opportunity to continue on the last two pages of the book if the printer will save me the space.

Williams Takes Traveler To Polls

Russell Williams
Editor in Chief

By the end of his tenure, an editor of the TRAVELER should be a good judge of people. He has been exposed to or worked with an unusually varied assortment of people . . . people with vast differences in age, personalities, and beliefs. Most of the time, he deals with people under pressure circumstances, the kind that brings out the best and the worst in individuals.

But, perhaps even more important, the retiring editor has learned a great deal more about himself. Working on the paper day after day, every bit of mental, moral, and physical fiber is tested — and all too often, torn to shreds. In the end, he will recognize most of his faults and realize his limitations. The result can be shattering or assuring. Probably a little of both.

We did not lack for news stories this year. The "Preview" crisis, the industrial park bond issue, the controversial vehicle tax, the transit system delays, and closed meetings kept the staff hopping. At the Southwestern Journalism Congress, the TRAVELER captured two awards (for editorial writing and sports photography) . . . the first we have won in three years.

All in all, it has been an eventful year and a good year. I hope next year will be even better.

Kay Carson
Associate Editor

TRAVELER staff members were notorious for their long discussions — usually about anything but their business. The TRAVELER took a firm stand on many controversial issues this year, received criticism from the "Fits me s", and applause from the "Now s".

Year after year, each editor proclaims that his staff has been the best yet. I will be no different. Now the time for the final roll call comes: Kay Carson — I do not fear for the future of the TRAVELER with the reins passing to this effective and efficient administrator. Ann Pride — this controversial and much beloved staff member was a most valuable asset for the paper this year. Brenda Blagg — a bundle of energy and friendliness. Bill Wright — he remained in our good graces, despite turning into a Greek. His wit was exceeded only by his zeal for sleep. James O'Neal — a hard worker whose efficiency became somewhat blunted by an ever-present dropmate. Gerald Jordon — this young man broke the racial barrier with a resounding thud. Jean McMillan — "Engine Mac" as she is sometimes called, handled well the job of feature editor. Janet Anthony and Jerry Glover — these watchdogs of the wire machine worked smoothly as a team. Blan Heath — a fine boy, but the Greek system hasn't been good for him. Carter Hardage — a politician's life was more appealing. Too bad. And finally, Mike Barkley, Rick Bailey, Gary Larson — a most incredibly talented group of photographers. Special thanks to Mike who has given me advice on sex, loaned me money, and listened to my woes.

THE BOARD OF PUBLICATIONS: Charles Stubblefield, Associated Students Vice-President; Carolyn Holcombe, President of AWS; Ollie Campbell, President of IFC; Judy Graves, President of WIHC; Mr. Bill Hughes, Director of Information; Dr.

Earle Rudolph, Faculty Representative; and Dr. Jess Covington, Journalism Department Head. Ann Burleson served as secretary of the Board. Ex-officio membership is extended to the editors of campus publications and to the University business manager.

Stubblefield Asks For Allocations

The Board of Publications, under the chairmanship of Charles Stubblefield, had an active and difficult year. Even though the Board was fortunate in having experienced editors, several problems arose. The main one was the increasing costs of publications without adequate allocations to meet them. The "A" Book and the TRAVELER continued to be hampered by the State Printing Contract which forces the two publications to be printed only where the Printing Contract so designates. This contract prohibits the acceptance of bids from non-state printing companies whose job offers are sometimes less expensive.

This year the Board voted to change the sponsorship of the "A" BOOK to the Division of Student Affairs. In the past this publication has been financed by the Student Senate. The Board has the responsibility for seeing that journalistic ethics are adhered to in all publications. And mainly the Board elects the editors of all the major University publications such as the TRAVELER, the RAZORBACK, STUDENT DIRECTORY, and "A" BOOK. The Board again battled with the editor selections and budget approvals. The result has been evident in the improved publications at the University.

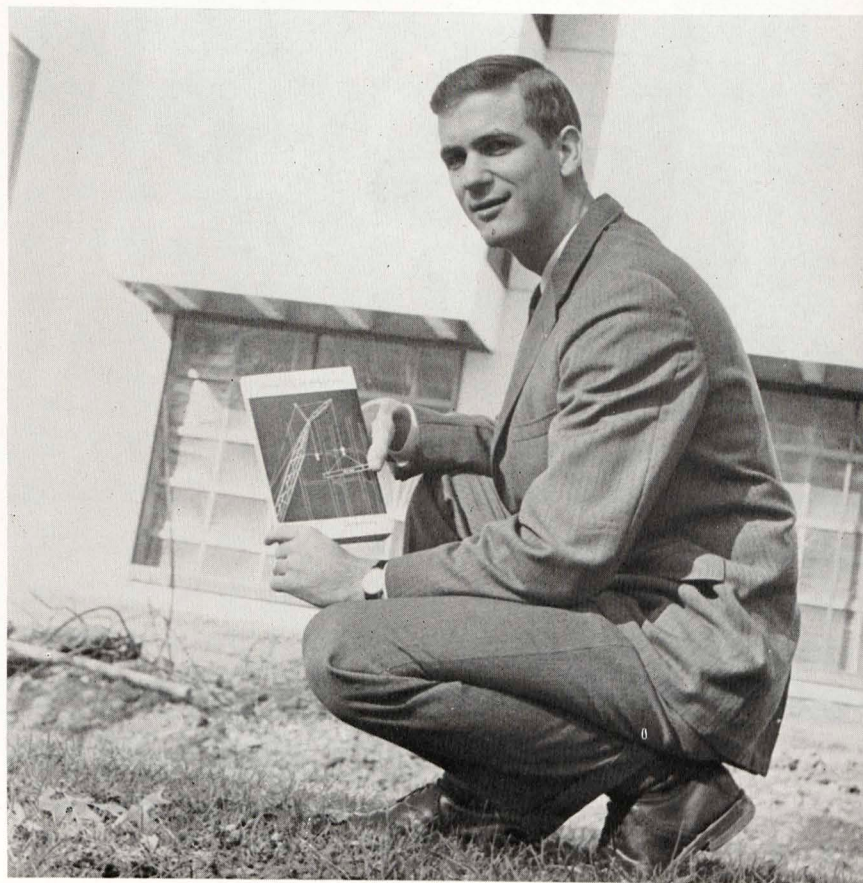

Stark Ligon ran against a qualified foe. True to form Stark turned on the charm, and the female votes won him the editorship of next year's Student Directory.

Student Affairs Sponsors "A" Book

"I hope that the work-products of the countless hours of labor put into this publication meets with your approval. It is hopefully the most accurate DIRECTORY ever published, and, in that sense, it should be the best yet."—John Harmon.

As always, accuracy in a university directory is appreciated, but the question became not accuracy but the date of release. The IBM punchcards and numerous other things were cited as the delaying factor; nevertheless, students spent the first months of school minus a directory. Maybe Stark Ligon will be able to get together with the punchcard operators. Jim Wright did the cover for the DIRECTORY this year — a cover which seemed to symbolize the growth of the University. Again a Buyer's Guide was a feature included in the Directory, but the faculty phone numbers which appeared to be the real ones became the most popular feature around exam time.

Sylvia Spencer edited the "A" BOOK this year and did her best to inform the students of the University's policies. True to form, AWS began the year by changing all the policies for women. Kay Carson and Ann Pride helped Sylvia collect the material over the summer, and everyone received the "A" BOOK during registration in the fall. As the official student information handbook, the "A" BOOK presented guidance, financial aid sources, hours for the swimming pool, and even traffic regulations. Few of the students appear to have read the latter. Since Sylvia spent a year wheeling the TRAVELER, editing the "A" BOOK possibly seemed a breeze. The students got the information they needed, Sylvia had another job, and the University continued changing all the rules. It was a typical year.

John Harmon, editor of the Student Directory, poses for a dignified picture for the annual. A controversy arose which wasn't so dignified.

Agri Magazine Picks Agriculturette

The ChiO's lost out this year when Larry McCain became the Agriculturist editor. He appointed a 4-H his co-editor.

The ARKANSAS AGRICULTURIST is published twice during the school year, once in the fall semester and again in the spring preceeding Agri-Day. The AGRICULTURIST gives every Agri and Home Ec student interested in journalism an opportunity to write. The Agriculturist was enlarged this year to include an article about each of the departments in the College and more feature articles. We worked even harder to direct the articles toward the student and his interests.

Also new in this year's magazine, was what we called an "Agriculturette" for each issue. She ideally was an outstanding coed chosen for her activities and scholastic achievements in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics.

Ann Hinkle, Avis Bryant, Linda Smith, and Mike Flynn worked hard to fill the pages with articles that would be of interest to the student. Alan Pack efficiently handled the business of the publication, and Joe McBride distributed the magazine to students and alumni over all of Arkansas. Ruth Clotfelter did an excellent job on all of the pictures. Editing the AGRICULTURIST was a disorganized but valuable experience. We enjoyed informing the students. — L. McCain and L. Cureton.

Business Manager Alan Pack and Features Editor Ann Hinkle met to get down to work. At least that is the impression they gave to the faculty. Alan's sly smile indicates more fun than work.

This year's editor and last year's editor, John Dacus, radiates with that smile of victory. It was a long three years in the making, but the PREVIEW finally went to press. It was a victory for the student body too.

The University refused to print the PREVIEW, and the students decided it was time to put their foot down. A demonstration took place at the library, complete with picket signs. A few students came as "Flower Children" to hear Mahan's poetry read. Instead they got to hear Mullins utter a few irrelevant words. He soon retreated back into the library with a slight case of sunburn of the scalp. In the end, the students had the victory, and conservatism got a jolt at the University.

Preview Creates National Sensation

It seems this is becoming an annual affair with me. Since I expounded on the creative writing program in last year's annual, I suppose this year I will finally get to talk about the University and PREVIEW. I have worked over twelve months toward seeing PREVIEW go to press (a real press i.e. off campus). Working on the publication in the past year, I have learned innumerable things about the College of Arts and Sciences, the Administration, and above all else the Journalism Department. I discovered how strongly the Deans of our college support the students. I learned of the gigantic conservatism of the Administration. And I learned what kind of distorted Journalism Department we have. The whole business was, to say the least, messy and should never have happened. I think the biggest single factor to come out of the PREVIEW scandal was the fact that the students finally realized what a powerful body they are and just how much they could do to help improve the University — if they want to. — J. Dacus

John Dacus, William Harrison, and James Whitehead are to be saluted for a job well done. All in all, the project took three years, but the landmark has been established.

March Issue Features Cheesecake

Steve Crow
Editor

The ARKANSAS ENGINEER is the official publication of the College of Engineering. It is put out quarterly, but only one of the issues is really looked forward to by the students. This is the issue that comes out in March about the time the illustrious St. Pat celebrates his birthday. It contains cheese cake pictures of all the St. Patricia candidates and the events of what is now called Engineer Week. The ENGINEER is most always devoted to technical articles, but jokes, a dean's page, and an editorial for excitement also fall within the pages.

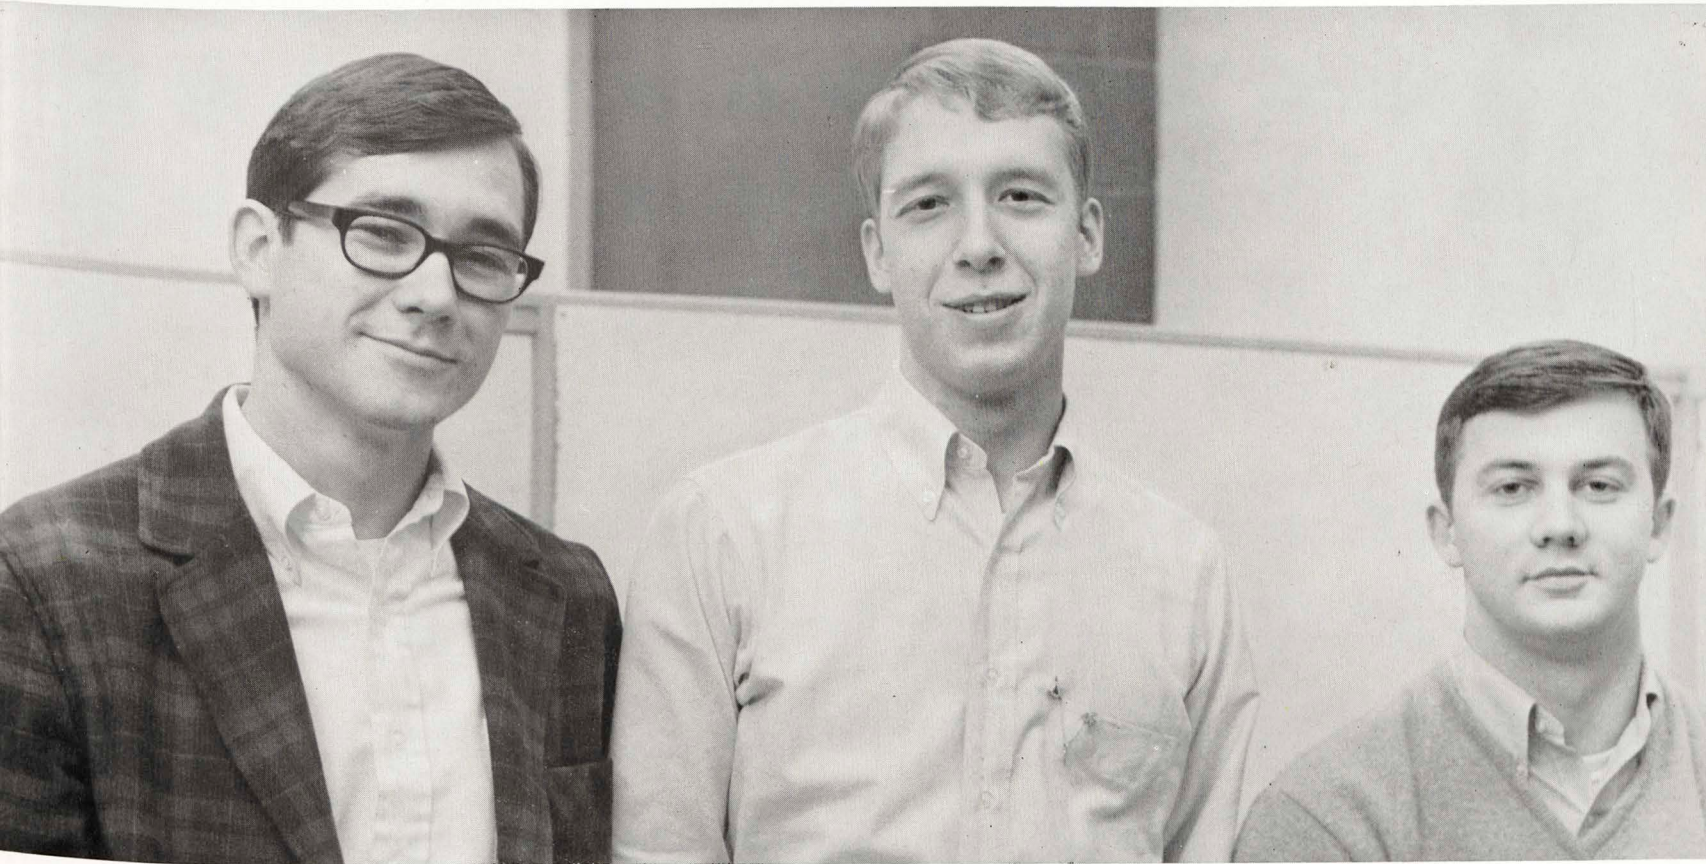

This year's first editor was Randy Murphy, who suddenly disappeared from the staff for unrevealed reasons. The new editor is Steve Crow who seems to be very capable of getting the entire four issues finally to press.

The magazine is sent to the high schools around the state to promote enrollment in the College of Engineering. It is sincerely hoped that the distribution of the magazine also helps to recruit the ENGINEER a large selection of future editor prospects. One thing to be sure of is that the March issue will continue to be a big hit regardless of who the editor is.

State Supreme Court Cites Review

In 1947 a non-profit corporation was founded to sponsor THE ARKANSAS LAW REVIEW and BAR ASSOCIATION JOURNAL. Since that time the publication has been appearing quarterly through the efforts of the Arkansas School of Law and the Arkansas Bar Association.

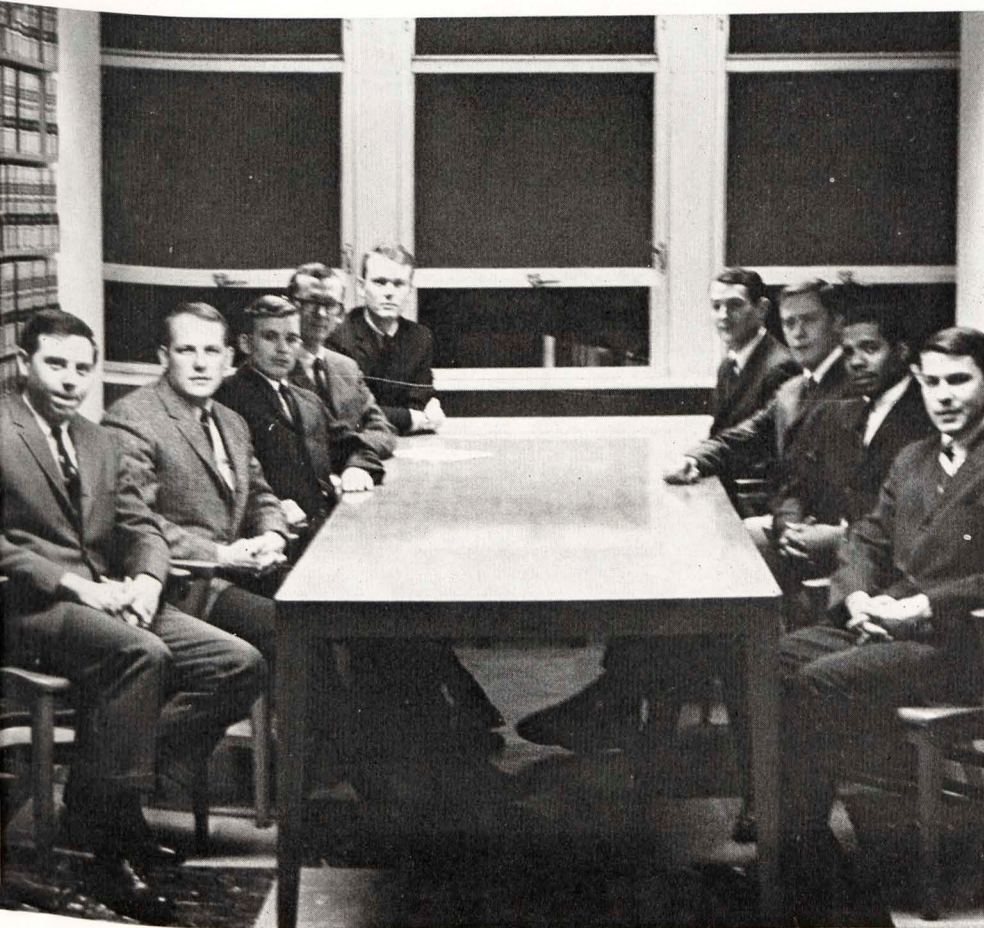

Faculty Advisors Raymond I. Parnas and Ralph C. Barnhart have supervised the articles written by the students this year. Additional articles are prepared for the REVIEW by prominent judges, lawyers, and law professors.

Each article a student publishes is awarded a fractional credit hour. Therefore, student members of the REVIEW staff receive credit hours to use toward graduation for their work on the REVIEW. Membership requirements are that a student must meet the grade-point requirements and submit one or more articles of acceptable presentation. The student articles are classified into the categories of Notes, Recent Cases, and Annotations according to length.

The distribution of the REVIEW covers a wide area. Each member of the Arkansas Bar Association receives a copy of each of the issues. Text writers and the Arkansas Supreme Court have been known to cite the Law Review on various subjects.

Army ROTC: Cadets Today Leaders Tomorrow

Military training has been an active part of life on the University of Arkansas campus since the University was founded in 1871. The Army Reserve Officer Training Corps was authorized by the National Defense Act of 1916 and is now represented on 247 campuses throughout the nation. The importance of ROTC was clearly demonstrated during World War II when more than 100,000 ROTC graduates answered the call to serve as commissioned officers in the Army. General of the Army George C. Marshall, an ROTC graduate himself, stated that "without these officers the successful rapid expansion of our Army would have been impossible. They made the difference between defeat and victory."

The continuing importance of ROTC on this and other campuses was recently emphasized in an address made by a general officer who served as Commanding General, Field Forces I, US Army Vietnam, when he stated: "I have the highest regard for the caliber of officers being commissioned today through the ROTC program. They have met the many tests of the Vietnam conflict and passed with flying colors. The ROTC program assumes today an even greater responsibility for providing the U.S. Army with a continuing stream of young leaders. The degree of importance which is being placed on the ROTC program as the primary source of Army officers is obvious. No other Personnel program is of greater long term importance to the Army and to the Nation."

Brigade Staff Proves Vital To ROTC

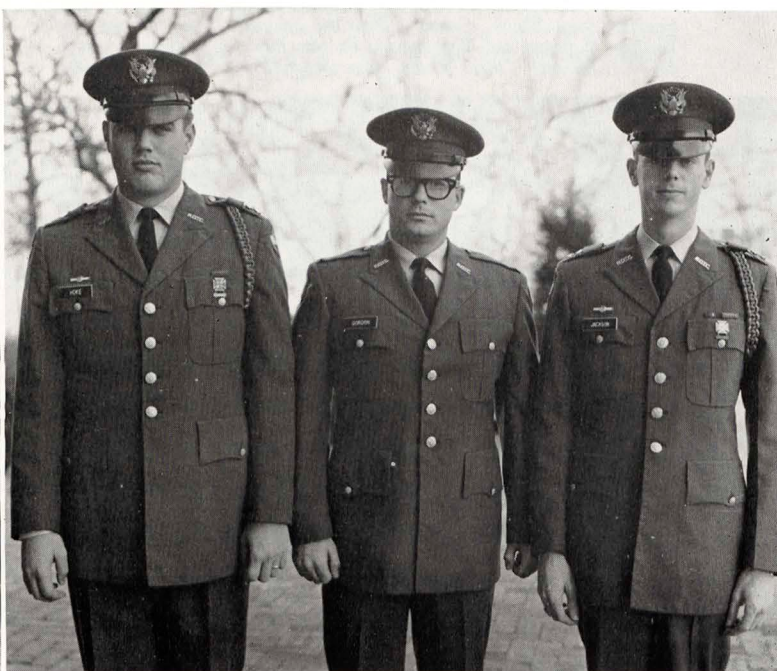

Col. Neil Snyder
Cadet Brigade Commander

The current organization of the Army ROTC Cadet Brigade would not be recognized by a student previously graduated from the University of Arkansas. The old system of all cadets attending two leadership laboratory periods per week has been discarded and an entirely new concept instituted. Five battalions composed of 12 drill companies meet separately each week for one hour of drill. Significant improvement has resulted from a decrease in class size and an increase in instructor to cadet ratio. An added benefit to the student has been increased flexibility in class scheduling. Leadership is provided by the Senior Cadets. Selection criteria for commanders and senior staff officers included overall academic and military class standing, summer camp performance, exhibited leadership traits, and past performance in drill and other military activities. The Juniors attend separate classes where they receive intensified training in drill procedures and instructional techniques in preparation for leadership positions as Seniors. The outstanding performance of the Cadet Brigade is directly attributed to the favorable attitude of all cadets and the professional approach of the cadet commanders and their staff.

Army Sponsors

The Cadettes Corps is an outgrowth of last year's Army Sponsors. Though the purpose remains the same — a service organization of the Army ROTC program, the functional role is emphasized. Selection is made by a board of Cadet officers at the beginning of each fall semester. Selection is based on academic standing, appearance, moral character, personality, and willingness to promote the Army ROTC program.

Activities during the year have reached from the University of Arkansas campus to Vietnam. The major projects for the year were, "Cookies for Combat" during the fall semester and "We Care" packages in the spring. The items gathered were sent to soldiers serving in Vietnam.

Locally, the Cadettes gave a Christmas party and an Easter Egg Hunt for underprivileged children from the Fayetteville area, worked with the Red Cross and the Cadet Brigade during the blood drives, served as sponsors for the Washington County March of Dimes drive, appeared in pre-game parades in Fayetteville and Little Rock, and participated on the drill field throughout the year as unit sponsors.

Pershing Rifles Varies Activities

The Pershing Rifles is a national honor society founded in 1894 by General of the Armies John J. Pershing, then a captain at the University of Nebraska, to promote drill excellence. The PR's today are represented at 180 colleges and universities across the nation.

The Pershing Rifles company at the University of Arkansas was chartered in 1934 and has grown to its current membership of 75. Selection criteria includes leadership characteristics, proficiency in drill, and participation in ROTC activities.

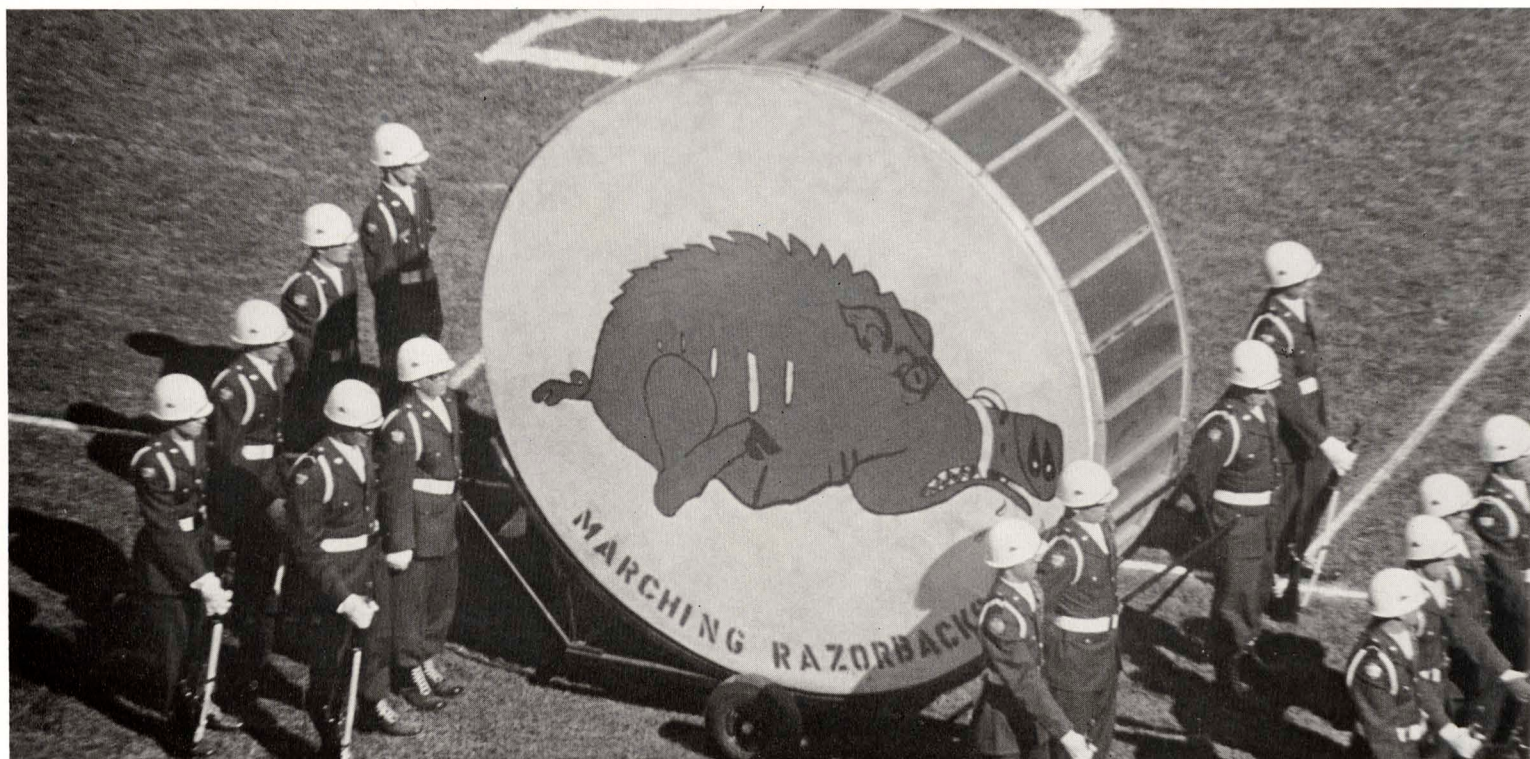

Events of the past year indicate the active role played by the PR's in representing both the University of Arkansas and the Army ROTC Brigade: Color guard at all Razorback football games in Fayetteville and Little Rock; Homecoming parade; Ozark Folk Festival, Eureka Springs; Halftime performances at Greenland, Prairie Grove, and Siloam Springs; Texas-Arkansas pre-game parade, Little Rock; and Christmas parade, Westville, Oklahoma.

Internal activities include pledge week, bivouacs, and banquets in both the Fall and Spring semesters as well as furnishing color guards for all Cadet Brigade activities.

A highlight of the year is the annual competition in the Mardi Gras parade in New Orleans. This year the PR's were guests of the USS Guadalcanal aircraft carrier.

Each year is culminated with the annual 7th Regimental Assembly competition among all Pershing Rifle units in Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma. At the last Assembly, the University of Arkansas drill unit captured first place in exhibition squad, standard platoon, and the grenade toss, and was elected as most improved company in the regiment. Individuals won first place honors as Outstanding Freshman Basic Cadet as well as recognition of the company commander, when he received the Regimental Commanders Award, an annual presentation to the cadet contributing most significantly to improvement of the 7th Regiment. For its outstanding performance the local company was selected to host the 1968 Regimental Assembly.

Each fall the company selects a sponsor to represent the unit throughout the school year. Miss Becky Baker, ZTA, this year's sponsor, was further honored in February by being selected as an honorary Lieutenant Colonel of the 7th Regiment.

The cadets in the company have good reason to wear with pride the purple and white citation cord.

Army ROTC Summer Camp

"The student will pursue the course in camp training prescribed by the Secretary of the Army." This sentence in Army Regulations ultimately leads all students enrolling in the ROTC advanced program to six weeks of rigorous field training at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

The camp is specifically designed to provide the ROTC student with practical experience and instruction in tactical, technical, and administrative subjects. Camp training provides students with applicatory type training which cannot be presented adequately at the institution.

Normally, the student attends summer camp between his junior and senior years. He is paid at the same rate as a student at the military academies plus his traveling expenses.

Any cadet who has attended summer camp will never forget his training in marksmanship, compass reading, overnight field exercises, the bayonet course, fire power demonstrations, communications, first aid, patrolling, Vietnam Village, and equipment orientations.

Summer camp cadets learn from experienced instructors, the importance of modern aircraft.

ROTC summer camp teaches cadets the ways of the Army as well as self discipline.

Army Increases Campus Activities

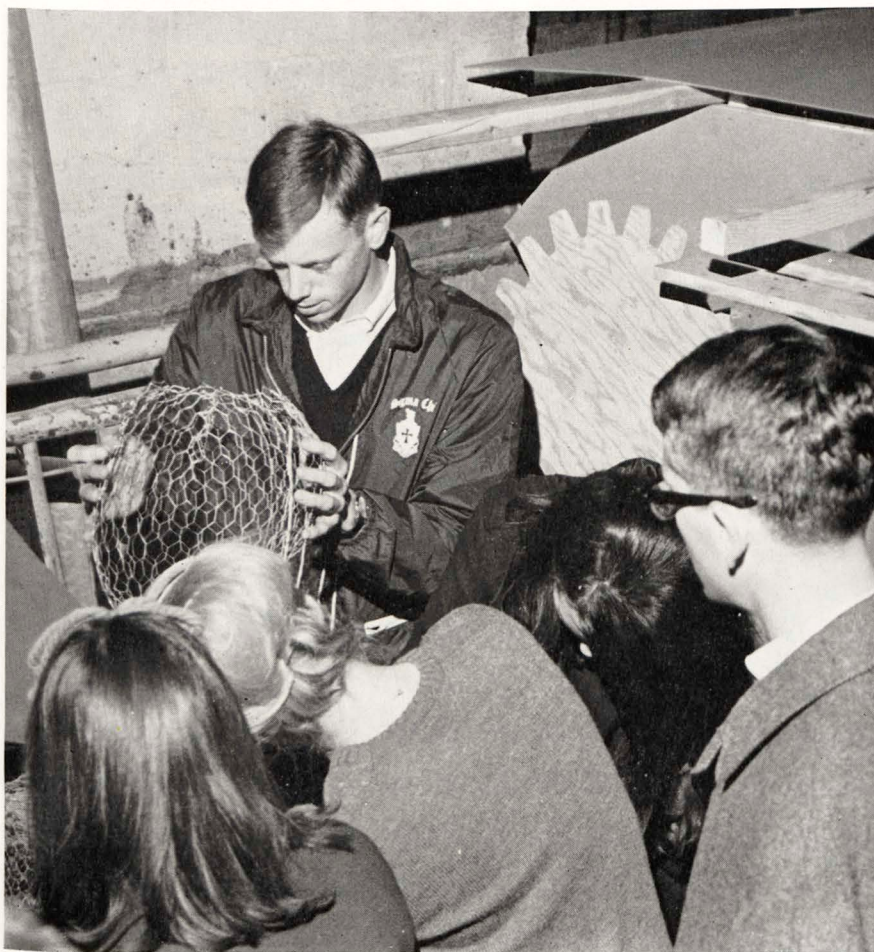

The Army ROTC instructional program is divided into two distinct, but mutually supporting, phases — the basic and advanced programs. The purpose of the two year basic course is to instruct the students in basic military subjects such as Army organization, map reading, military history, the Army's role in National security and individual weapons and marksmanship. The advanced program is designed to prepare selected, qualified cadets for a commission in the United States Army. Instruction is in such fields as world affairs, small unit tactics, communications, military justice, logistics, military intelligence, administration, techniques of instruction, and principles of leadership.

The ROTC department actively promotes extra-curricular activities with the intent of broadening the practical aspect of the leadership program while promoting cooperation among future leaders in the Army. In addition to the Pershing Rifles, Rifle Team, and Army Band, a Ranger Platoon was organized this year. The Rangers conduct practical training in rappelling, patrolling, land navigation, and scuba techniques.

Scabbard and Blade Sponsors: Misses Foster, Whitmore and Johnson.

The National Society of Scabbard and Blade, an honorary organization for advanced cadets of the Army and Air Force ROTC, had its beginning on the University of Arkansas campus in 1916 with the establishment of "B" Company of the Second Regiment.

Each fall cadets are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and interest in the military program. The organization here at the university strives to raise the military standards in American colleges and universities, to unite a closer relationship between the Army and Air Force ROTC's, to encourage and foster the essential qualities of efficient officers and to promote friendship among cadet officers. These cadets enter an impressive "tapping" ceremony on the drill field. After being chosen, the inductees must go through a trial period, culminated by formal induction into the Society.

The Society meets several times during each semester to discuss problems occurring between the army and air force units, and to suggest improvements in drill procedure. In this way, the best ideas of both groups are available for use.

Air Force ROTC Shapes Leaders

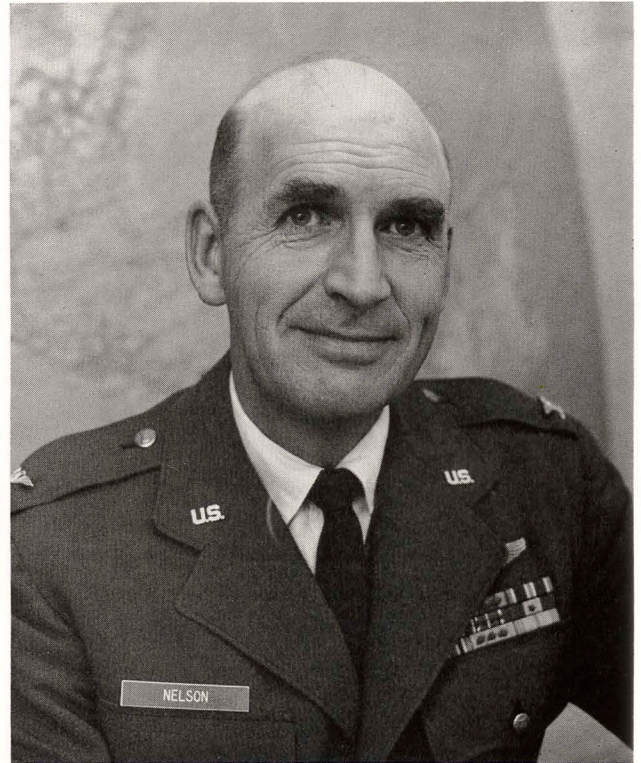

"Informed citizenship in an Aerospace Age."

This is the purpose of Air Force ROTC here at the University. One thousand students were educated this year to attain the AFROTC mission.

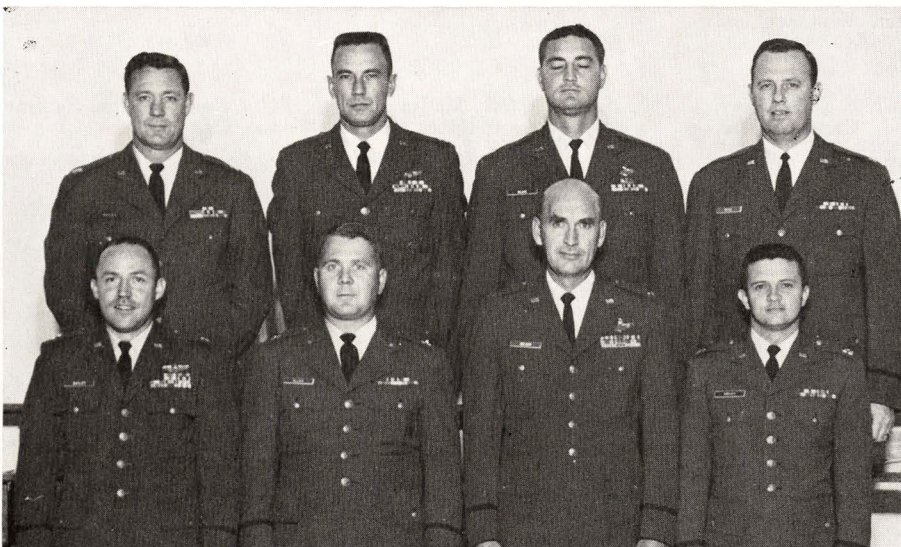

Over eighty per-cent of all recent Air Force junior officers are products of one hundred and seventy-seven Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps similar to the Department of Air Science on our campus.

First-year cadets are taught military aviation history, principles of flight, and opportunities of the Aerospace Team. Sophomore cadets study aerial warfare, military history, and man's exploration of space. Many sophomores are given minor assignments on the drill field to prepare them for future responsibilities as cadet officers when and if they should decide to enter the advanced AFROTC program.

Having met the physical and mental requirements of the advanced corps, the junior and senior cadets, guided by detachment officers, are charged with fulfillment of the cadet Wing Mission which is the training of cadets. Between their junior and senior years the cadets attend Summer Camp for a four-week intensive program of officer training.

Angel Flight Adds to Membership

Angel Flight comes out in force to inspect at one of the Air Force pass-in-review sessions. The Angel Flight also attends every drill, and carries on charitable programs.

The University of Arkansas Angel Flight, which ranks among the top few in the nation, is one facet of the Air Force that is kept busy every minute that the girls are in uniform.

Angel Flight, which consist of nineteen girls, is commanded by Susie Irby. Under her direction, and with the help of Arnold Air Society, Angel Flight accomplished quite a lot of projects.

During the Fall, Angel Flight visited Boysland of Arkansas, at Winslow, and took with them, toys and sandwiches. Many times the Angels were accompanied by advanced cadet officers or detachment officers and a band. Also in the fall, many of the Angels attended the area conclave, where they learn poise, charm and military history.

Angel Flight, along with Arnold Air Society, planned, organized, and carried "Operation Warm-Heart," which consisted of notifying the public that Angel Flight would pick up any unused toys and repair them and give them to needy children. The operation was a success.

Among their many other activities, Angel Flight has taken over the task of organizing and taking charge of the Washington County March of Dimes. Along with attending the regular drill periods, Angel Flight is kept busy all the time.

The Arnold Air Society was founded as an honorary military society for Air Force ROTC cadets who distinguished themselves scholastically. The national organization was founded in 1947 to "further the purpose, mission, tradition, and concepts of the United States Air Force as a means of National Defense; promote American citizenship among Air Force Officer Training Corps Cadets."

Membership is by invitation and scholastic requirements include a 2.00 overall grade average and a 3.00 in Air Science courses.

The Local squadron sponsors the Drill Team which participates in numerous competitions and public events in a three state area. New members are pledged to this unit in the Spring. They are rapidly integrated into the group activities among which are the sponsoring of the Band, Air Police, and the Air Force Drill Team.

This past year, the Arnold Air Society has been working closely with Angel Flight in some charitable programs. During the fall the two groups together gathered old toys, and reworked them and gave them to needy children.

Desperate sorority woman tried to snow rushee with 1926 trophies, but they failed again.

Rush Begins with Lots of Grins

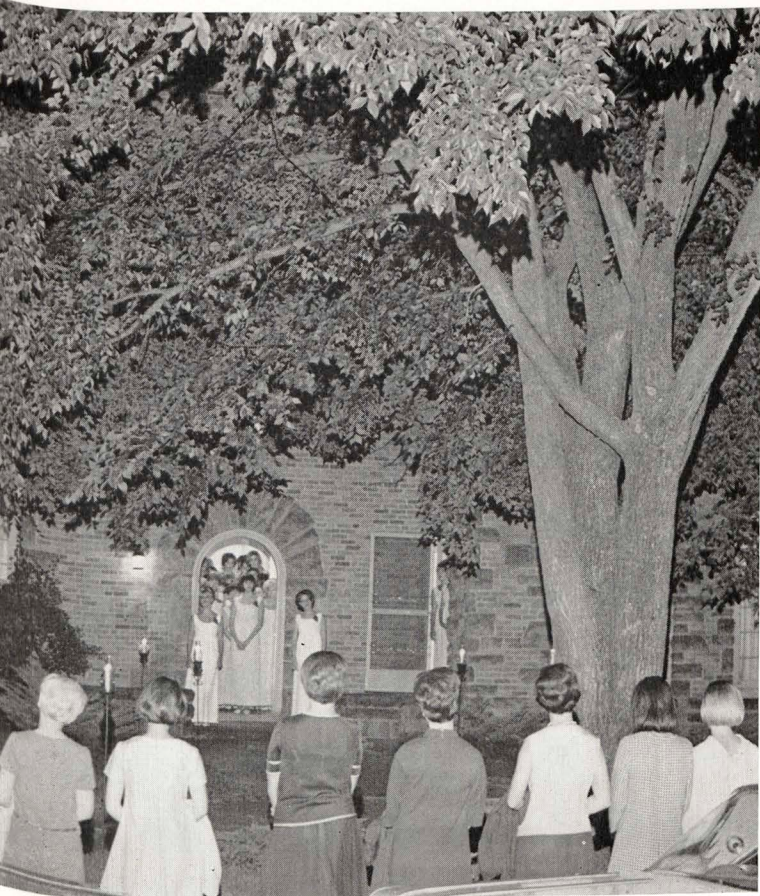

Faces once again manufactured fixed smiles for Rush Week. Good impressions became the most sought-after attribute for both Greeks and rushees. They looked each other over, cast their respective votes, and hoped they matched.

Sororities showed rushees just how neat they think they are at parties of all sorts. Rushees listened to songs with words like "You'll get accustomed to this place," and "We're the neatest, we're the sweetest." But the sharp rushees didn't fall for every sorority's line, for at the end of the week they were saying, "There's only one for me." Then they prayed that the feeling was mutual.

Fraternity men had an unusually active rush week since they could no longer have summer rush programs. Gross skits entertained rushees who had a laughing good time, even when they didn't catch the jokes. Bid day was especially exciting with dances in each sorority house following the traditional mob scene in front of the Union as boy's bids were handed out.

The smiles paid off, for at the close of Rush Week 1967, 240 girls pledged nine sororities and 304 boys pledged 15 fraternities.

On preferential night, anxious rushees await cookies, cokes, and honey. Some sororities return to normal after Rush while others keep their false fronts on all year.

Rush produced many unexpected surprises, for example these tri-delt jokers who disguised themselves to impress unsuspecting rushees.

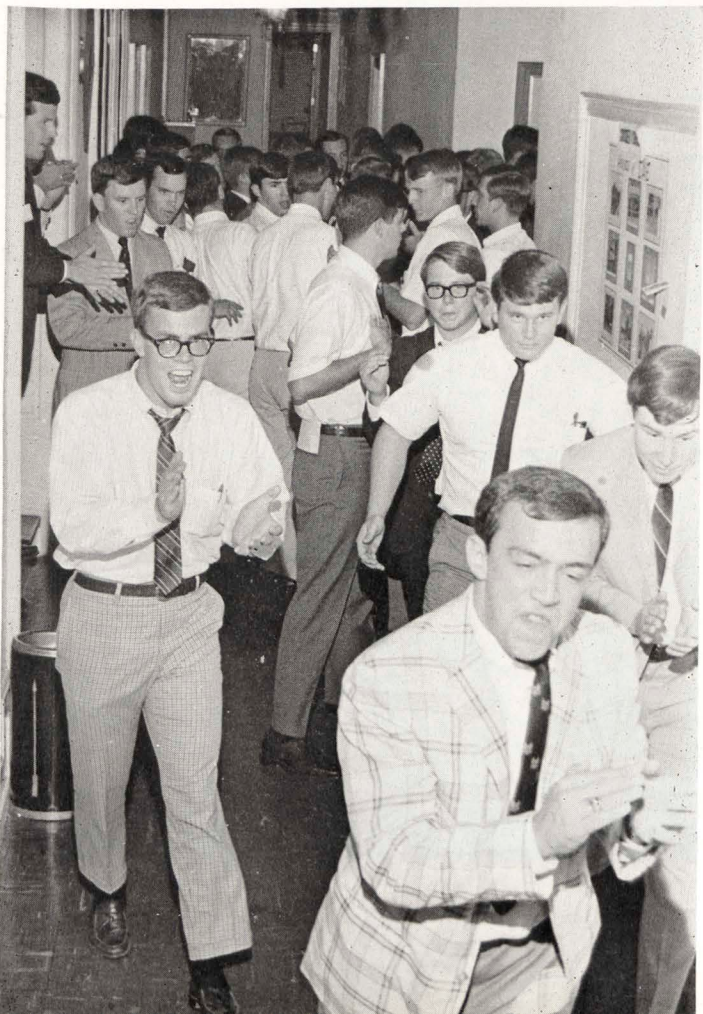

Fun, equality, and brotherhood are emphasized during Rush.

This may look like Boys Rush on Bid Day, but actually these boys are just waiting for their Cub Scout assignments.

Fraternities Promise the Best

Who would have thought that the cool SAEs had to hot-box.

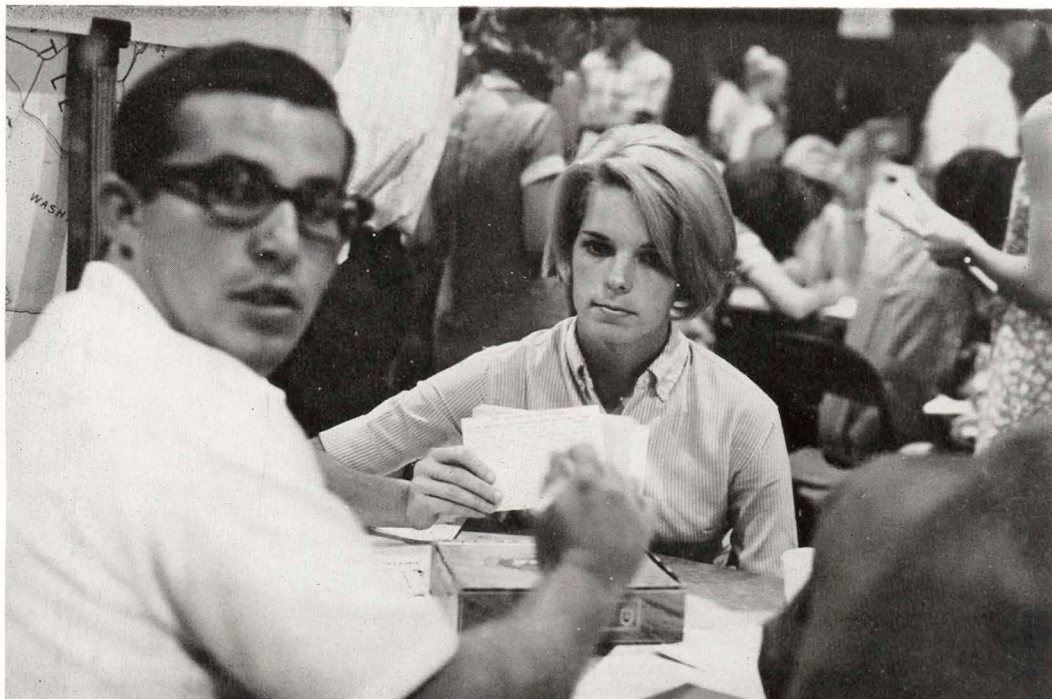

Following stormy Rush Week was a week of calm — one of the few in the year. James E. Pomfret, Vice President for Business at the University for ten years died following a brief illness. The Administration announced two new administrative directors: Dr. William F. Denman in Student Affairs and James Gibson in Housing and told of the return of Dr. Jacqueline Sterner Douglas as Dean of Women.

Residents of Co-ed Complex, the new hotel-like dorm, who were excited about the intimacy of their living quarters, were faced with disappointment as they moved in. They found doors that stuck, a shortage of beds, and worst of all, an unfinished parking lot. Some residents living there found their cars towed away quite regularly from the restricted zones in which they parked — but they wondered where they were supposed to park. The SAE's sure wouldn't let them park in their lot.

New library facilities are supposed to be available next fall along with the Graduate Education Building near the Union and the Undergraduate Science Building by the Chemistry Building.

Registration was no less traumatic this semester with closed courses and unsympathetic advisors. The long lines and too-high prices of the bookstore allowed that place to retain its traditional label: "the height of exasperation".

Unfortunately, classes finally began and the school year was officially in full swing. Mack McLarty, president of Associated Students, kicked off his reign by making real some of his campaign promises. The Community Involvement Committee, one platform plank, was formed to improve relationships between the city of Fayetteville and the University. The Senate Discount Program, started under last year's administration, was continued by Mack and carried out by F. B. Elliot, Lambda Chi, who is the Senate head for the program.

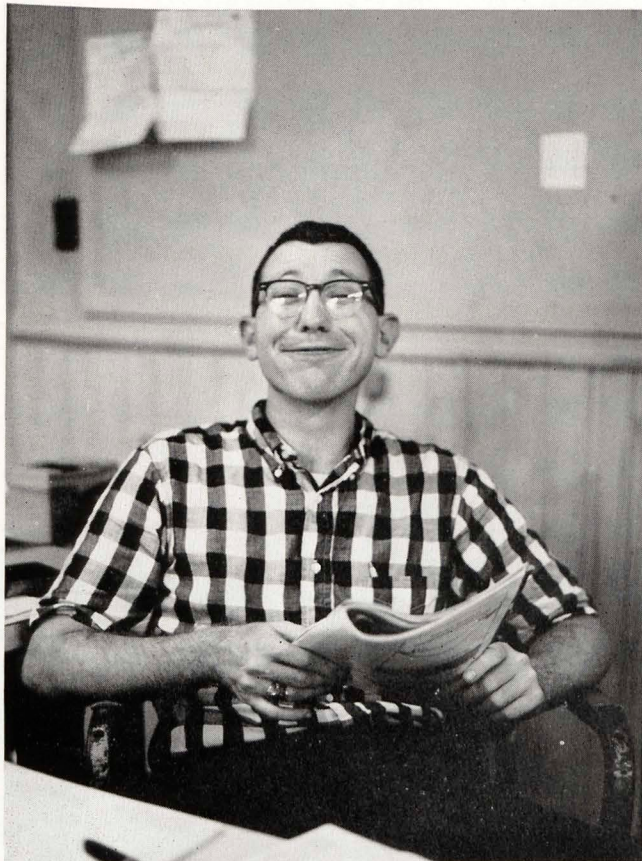

Many students literally turned yellow with the beginning of classes due to a hepatitis epidemic in Washington County. The disease, which affects the liver and brings on yellow coloring, resulted in large numbers of empty desks in classes.

Preview Claims Strength of Dirt

Would you believe that our group had 49 per cent fewer touchdowns?

The uprising of the UofA "Preview" war made this week an unusually exciting one. A. W. Blake, supervisor of the University printing plant, refused to print the latest issue of the "Preview", Arts and Sciences magazine, because he feared the illegality of what he considered obscene poems. Another round of the battle was lost when Jimmie "Red" Jones, State Auditor, refused to authorize funds to print the publication due to the poems it contained which he considered to be in "very bad taste." Dr. Mullins issued a statement backing these decisions and requesting more time for his own.

Approximately 500 pro-"Preview" students gathered at a demonstration in front of the Library where they heard speeches from John Dacus, editor of the magazine, and President Mullins. Mullins said that the administration was working on a plan to get "Preview" printed and Dacus told students to continue demonstrating until a decision was reached.

Bill Keadle, Kappa Sig, emceed what many considered the winner for the grossest-by-far pep rally. Only about half the crowd left the Greek Theater all grins, but all University students wore grins at Saturday's game as the Hogs beat Kansas State University 28-7.

AM Defeats Hogs on Road to Bowl

Righteous Brothers replaced Otis Redding at Homecoming; Many think they should have replaced him in Wisconsin.

A D Pi served as a cat house during Homecoming. This well known fact was publicized openly by the huge stuffed cat out front.

This year's Homecoming torch light parade sure didn't lite much of a fire under the Razorback football team.

Despite the University Physical Plant's attempts to provide new and more abundant lighting facilities for the campus, dark and foreboding creatures still managed to slither about on Halloween night pulling pranks. Dorms and houses held costume parties, ate and made merry.

Army ROTC topped Air Force ROTC in their donations to a most successful Bloodmobile Drive held during the week by the Red Cross.

But then all else took a back seat to the frantic efforts to complete plans for the approaching Homecoming weekend and the clash with Texas A&M. Alumni and visitors poured into Fayetteville with eager anticipation of the 46th annual event.

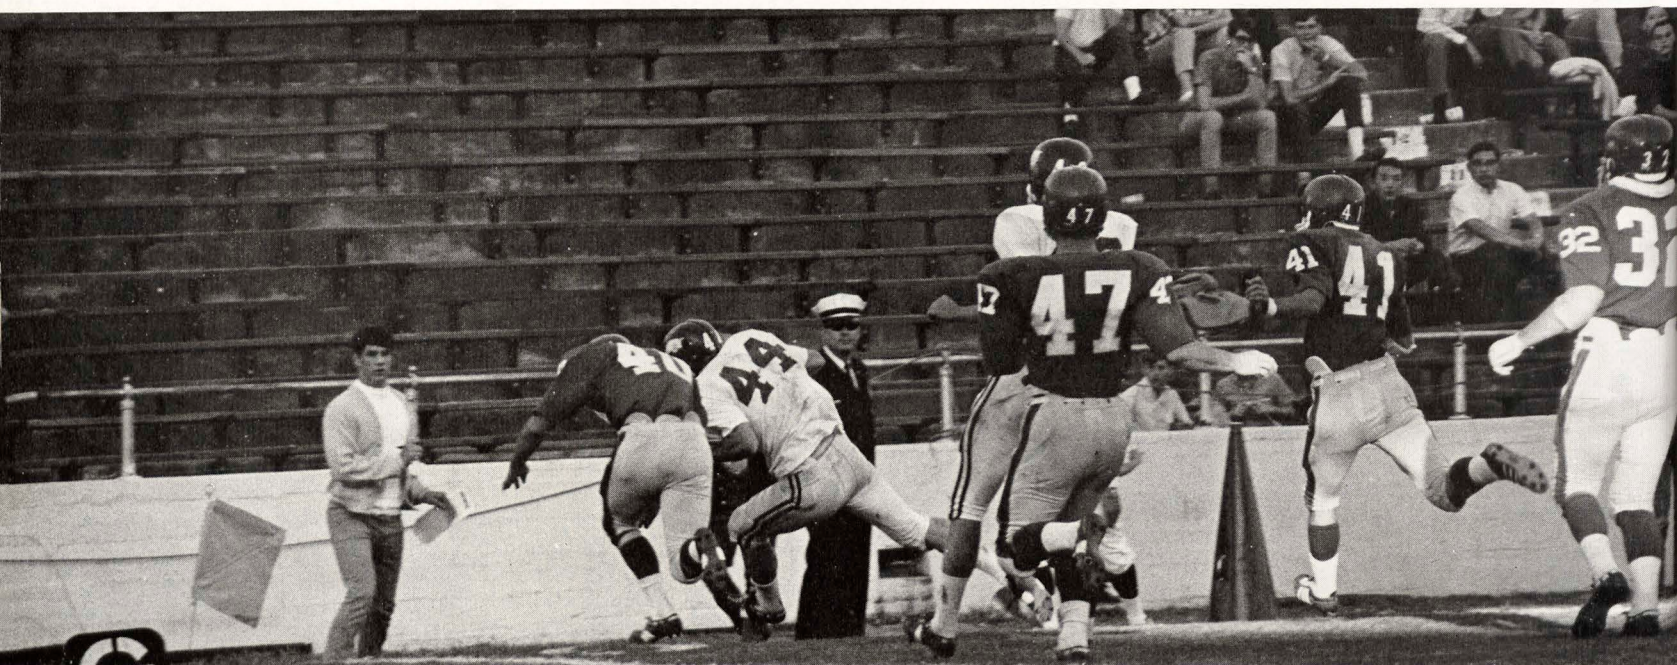

Friday was traditional, with the pep rally and torch-light parade to Wilson Sharp, plus the Righteous Brothers, April Stevens and Nina Tempo, and the Blossoms in concert. Saturday was not so traditional, however. Donations to Mortar Board's auditorium fund cut down on sororities' elaborate decorations, and the Aggies froze the Hogs at 33-21.

Pi Phi, SAE and AKL won first places in the parade float division. Reid Hall and Sig Ep put forth the best efforts in house decorations.

"Somebody tell South to get off the A&M bench and get back on his own side."

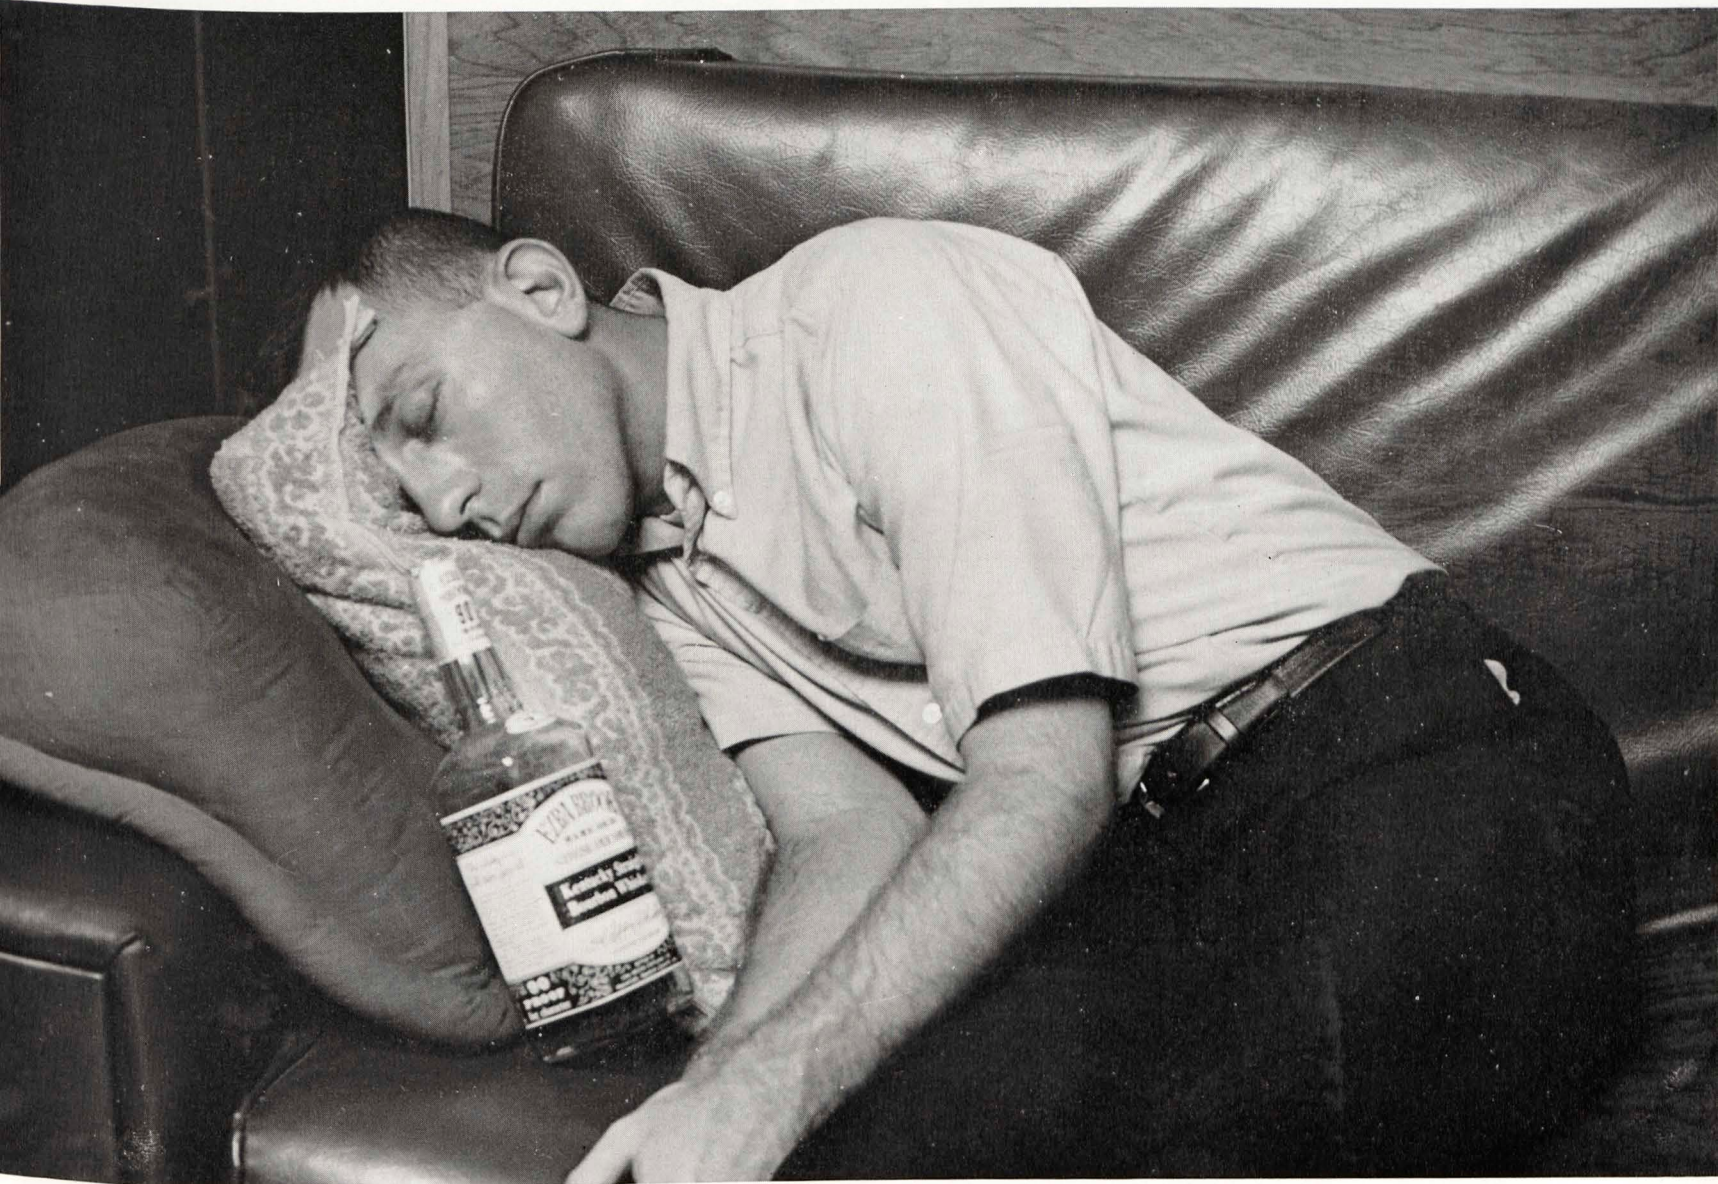

It's a good thing our team has loyal relatives, otherwise the stands would be completely empty.

MOTHERS: here's sobering proof — Babies who are given a bottle to sleep with never break the habit.

You don't see a pledge pin on these boys, and probably never will.

Casino Carnival, the annual fall event sponsored by WIHC and MIHC was held in the lounges of Humphreys and Yocum. The organizations boasted one better than Hot Springs — there were no raids on its mock gambling house.

Freshmen took a huge step into real University life with their first elections. Flocks of cars with signs on their sides gratified Fulbright and Hotz girls with rides to class in exchange for a promised vote.

Circle K pleased 39 boys by tapping them for membership while the Student Court saddened 33 students by calling them before a closed hearing for mis-use of ID cards.

The Hogs ruined Rice's homecoming with a 23-9 win.

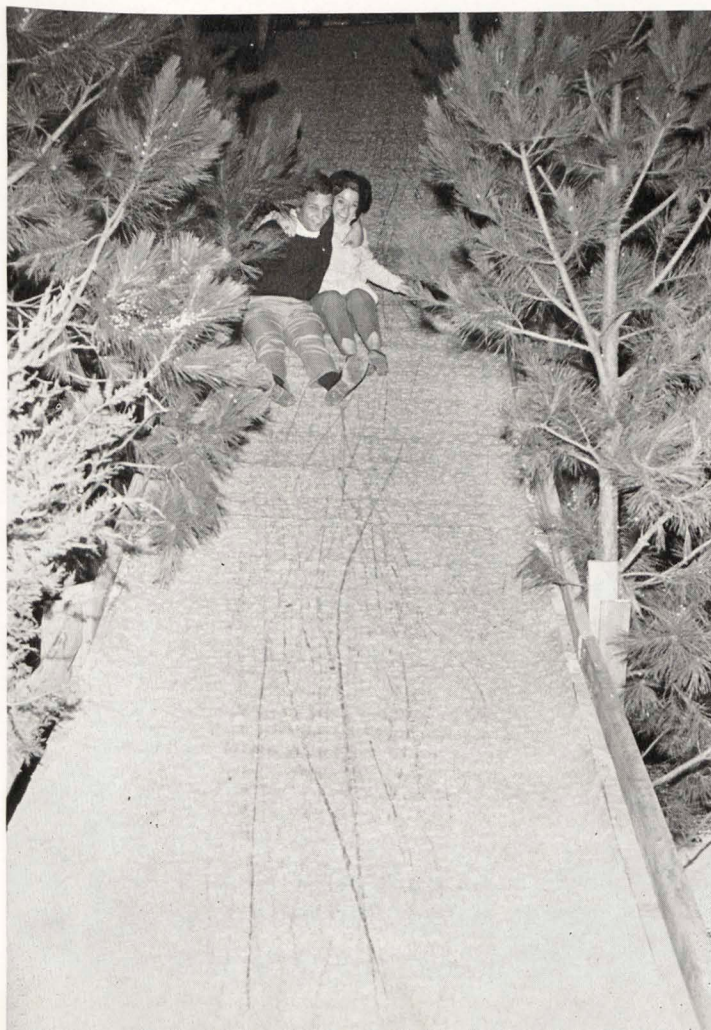

"That silly putty sure can bounce."

"My Pledge Mother must have the biggest feet in the house."

Association Concert is Sellout

The Association Concert drew a full gym. It could have been fuller had there been more room.

Loyal Porker fans were still weary from following a long, hard season of football when the basketball games began. Coach Duddy Waller's boys traveled to games and hosted them, winning some and losing others.

To the dismay of coeds, AWS discontinued its annual Fall Frolics. This wasn't the best way of reaching women students, AWS said, and there was the problem of disposing of leftover sack lunches.

The Student Senate bumped the Fayetteville Board of Director's proposal to charge students a five-dollar vehicle tax to be used in paving the city's streets and paying employees.

The Association came, performed, and went, leaving a satisfied, sellout crowd. This was one concert where the stars actually did the bulk of the show.

A post-Thanksgiving fire caused heavy damage to the new wing of the Sigma Pi house, but the origin of the blaze remained a mystery.

December rolled around before the Student Directory was finally distributed to students. Everyone involved blamed the Directory's tardiness on everyone else that they could.

Mac Recruits Headline Speakers

David thinks it's a joke when he's told where he'll be speaking.

During Symposium, many people were in the spotlight some of whom didn't deserve it.

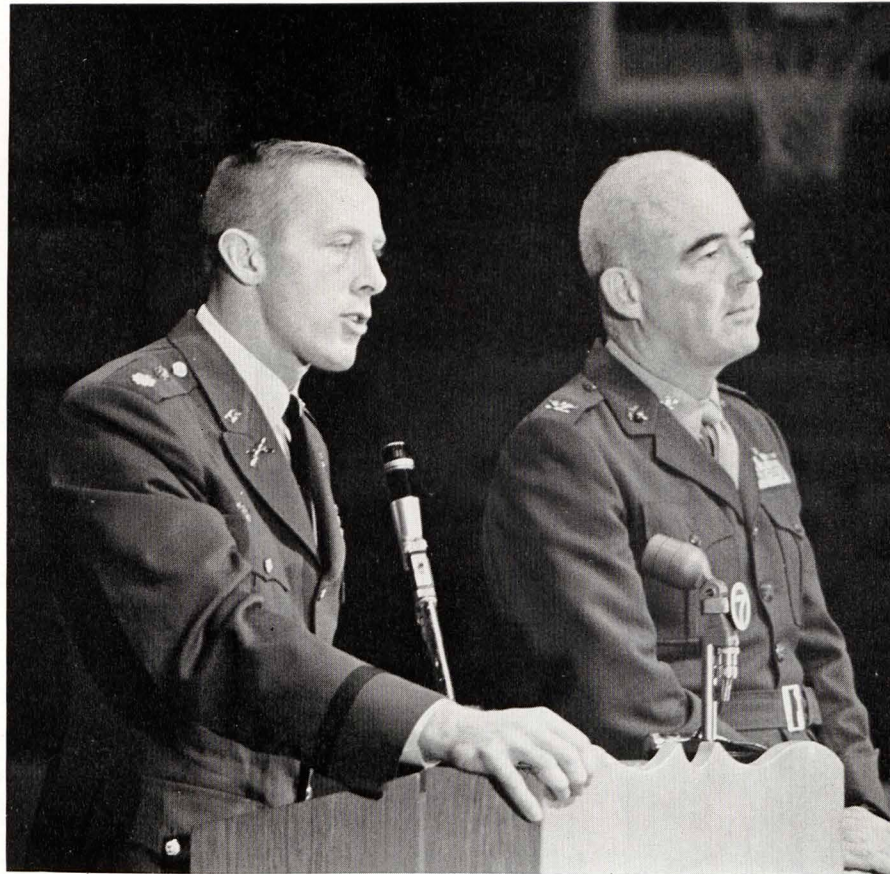

Mac McLarty's Symposium '68 drew diligent, conscientious students away from their books to hear famous names speak on controversial topics.

Dr. Burton Einspruch and Playboy's Anson Mount shared the podium in expressing their views on sex and morality. Both agreed that "sex without love is better than no sex at all."

NBC's David Brinkley presented his ideas on the war in Vietnam, increased government spending, racial violence, and rebellious youth. Jack Ruby's lawyer, Melvin Belli, was very emphatic in his statement of complete belief in the contents of the Warren Report; he described the practice of law as "one of the most majestic of all professions."

Joe Pyne, notorious for maddening his television show guests, gave brave members of the audience a chance to speak, and then proceeded to give them a typically frustrating reply.

Marine Colonel Glenn Norris and Major Pete Dawkins of West Point presented militaristic views on the Vietnam war and the Armed Service.

Pete and Glenn talk about the exciting women soldiers encounter.

"Listen here Moon, this is my night to shine."

The moral of this story, if you can call this story moral, is UNCLE Bob always gets his . . .

TV Good Guy Turns Politician

Robert Vaughn, past Man From U.N.C.L.E., and a "dove" on the Vietnam issue, spoke to Symposium '68 concerning "the real reasons that we are in Vietnam." He said that the State Department's latest justification was "the spectre of one billion Chinese now armed with nuclear weapons." He then explained why the U.S. is wrong in using this as a reason.

Senator Edward Brooke, Massachusetts' first Negro senator ever elected by popular vote, spoke to University students in defense of U.S. presence in Vietnam and in favor of extension of the poverty program at home.

Bill Lawrence, White House reporter for many years, spoke about possible candidates for the Presidency in the upcoming elections. He felt that Johnson would not run and that only Nixon and Romney would announce G.O.P. candidacy before the convention. He spoke like he knew — but, did he?

Mr. Lawrence spoke at Symposium but not many knew what he talked about.

Surprisingly, University students forgot their biases for a brief moment to give Brooke a rousing welcome.

Christmas parties for underprivileged kids were visited by Santa's helpers. This one forgot to use his mouthwash.

Lambda Chis were lit twice in a short period of time. A fire broke out on their third floor and they held their annual blow-out party: the "Playboy" get-together. The girls grabbed their bunny ears and the boys grabbed their money and beers, and all had a merry time.

Missouri put a damper on Arkansas basketball by dropping the Porkers 72-58. The Hogs played on even terms for most of the game but had trouble shooting in the second half.

The whole campus sang a "sad song" at the news of the death of Otis Redding, the undisputed "King of Soul", in the crash of a twin-engine plane near Madison, Wisconsin. The Bar-Kays, famous for their recording of "Soul Finger", also were killed in the crash.

The University of Texas at Arlington swim team defeated the Razorbacks 76-36, but UA tankmen set four records at the meet.

Fruit Bowl students should be more careful on their way to class. This one nearly killed himself when he hit a tree.

This campus cop had his day made by giving tickets to 532 girls, 3 of which paid immediately.

Robert Vaughn appeared on campus for Symposium. However, he also found time to review the campus beauties.

This was going to be another picture of Mack but he already has too many.

Final Exams - Happy New Year?

With the flicker of a candle light some boy has shown his generosity, and chances are so has some girl.

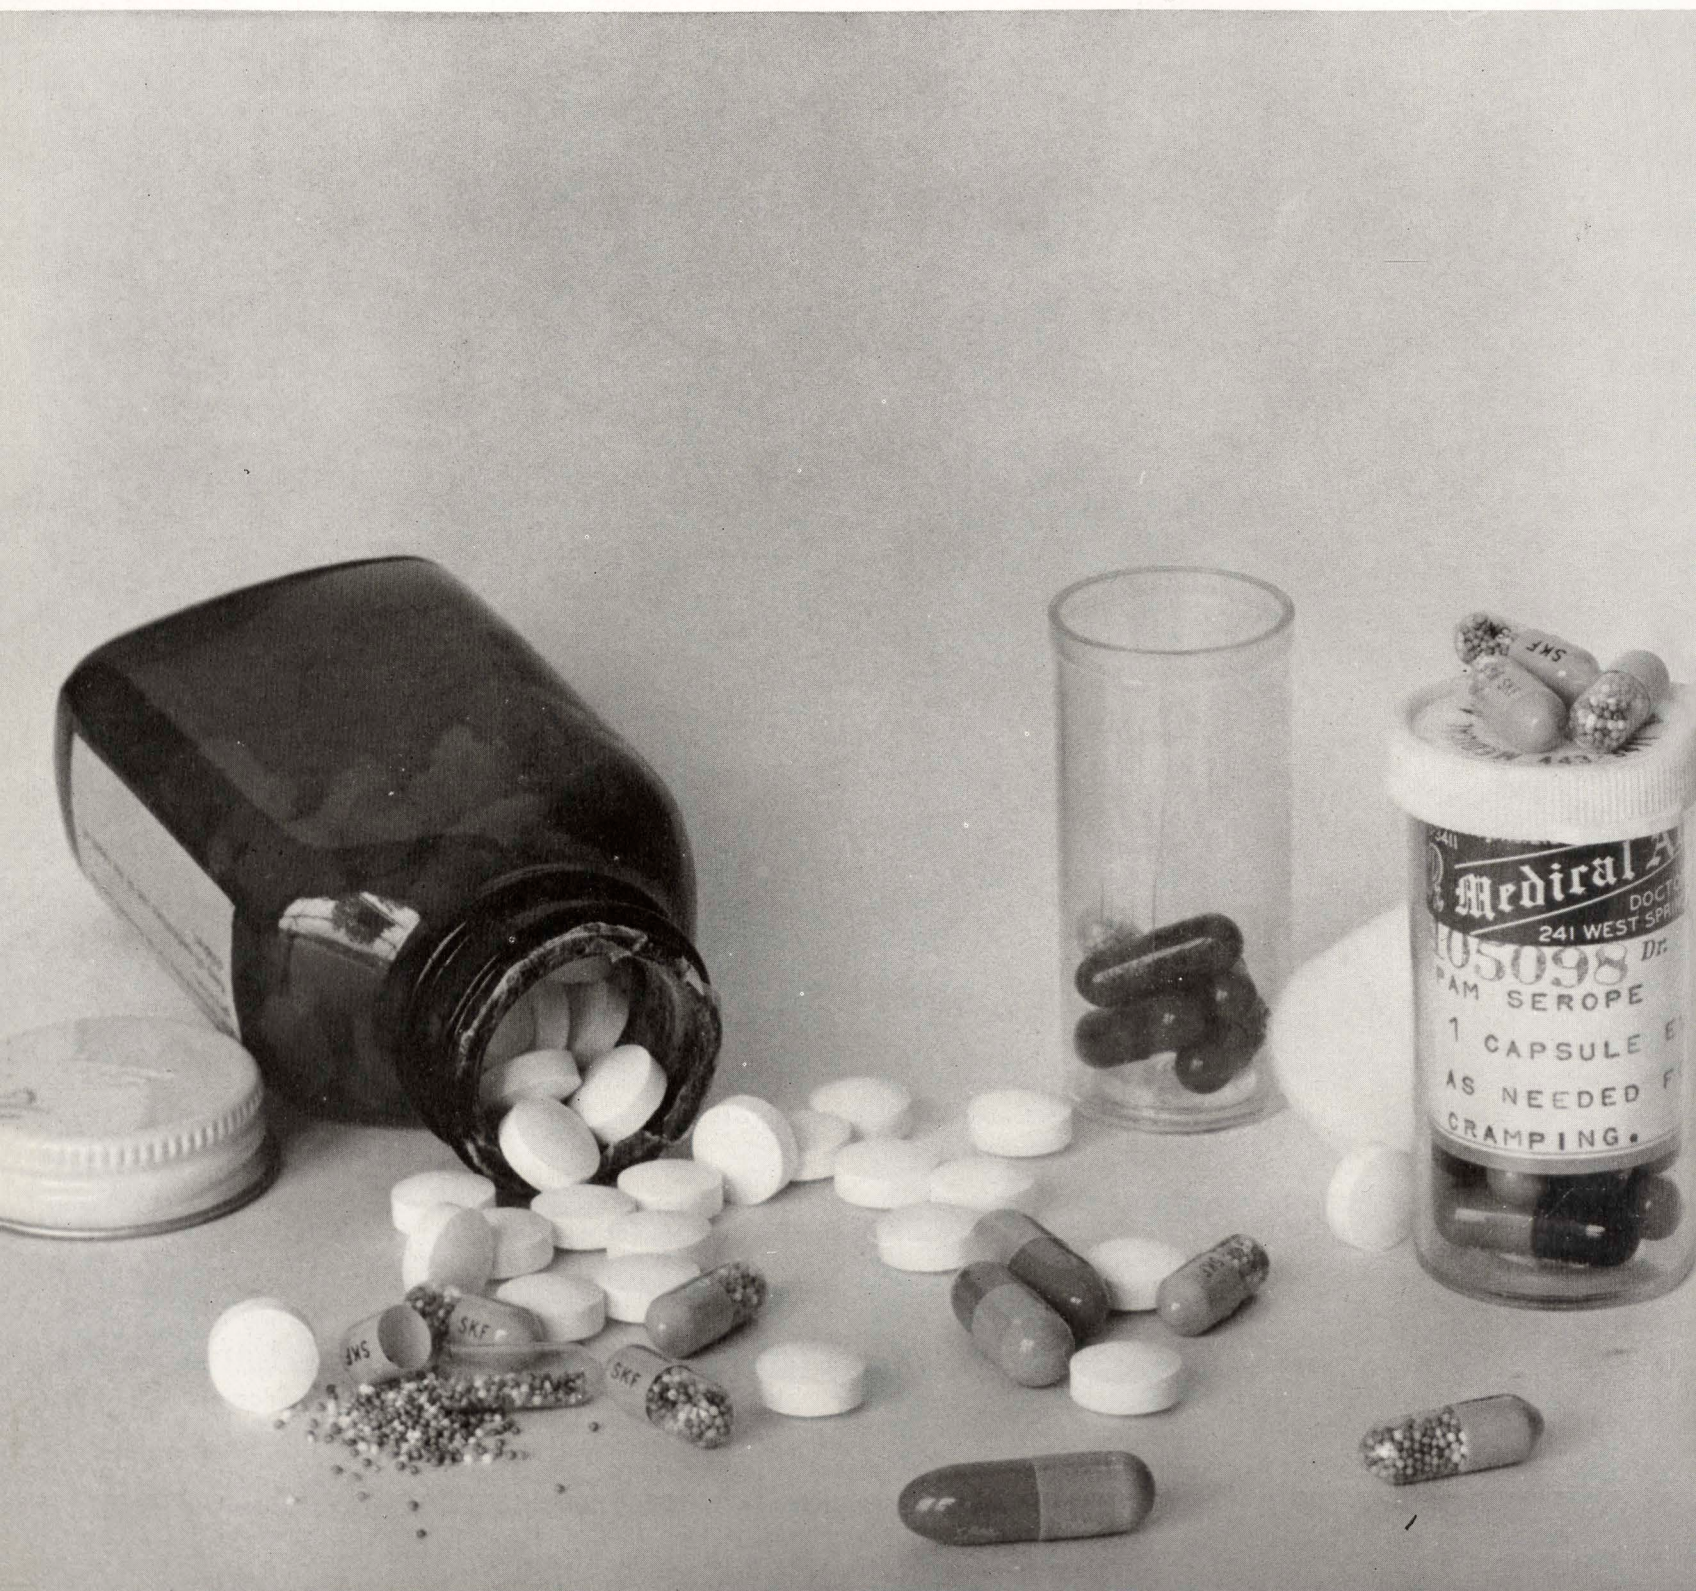

Only her . . . his . . . it's—well, surely somebody knows for sure.

With the return from home after Christmas vacation, the big news on campus was the various and sundry engagements. Sorority houses could have cancelled electricity and relied on the light from the candles in their candlelights if they hadn't needed all the power they could get to compete in the grade point race that is kicked off around finals each semester.

The Council on the Coordination of Higher Educational Finance recommended the merger of Little Rock University and the University of Arkansas.

The Student Union opened its ballroom to all studiers for finals with private booths and coffee and doughnuts to aid them. Desperate students stuck to books in last minute efforts.

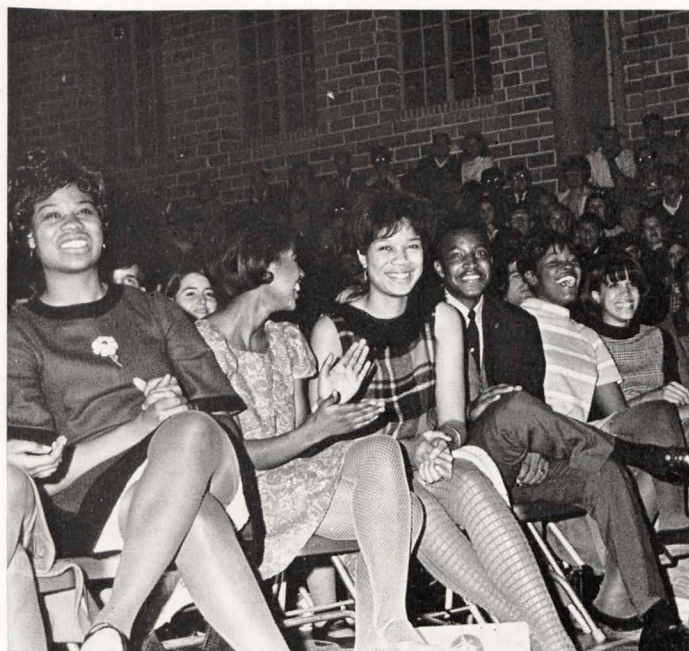

Pill pushers prosper during finals — but after finals two fraternities went bankrupt.

2nd Semester Begins with Joe Tex

Soul Brothers find you can feel it better if you can't see it.

"Who wants this woman with the skinny legs?" When no offers appeared, Joe decided to go for it himself.

The Joe Tex Concert was held one night and was enjoyed by many University of Arkansas students.

Spring semester sprung giving a clean slate to all — many of whom desperately needed another chance due to such things as the addition of study hall hours, the subtraction of allowances, or the warm draft of Uncle Sam's breath down the neck. Semester rush, which consists of giving out bids and moving in, was about as exciting as could be expected.

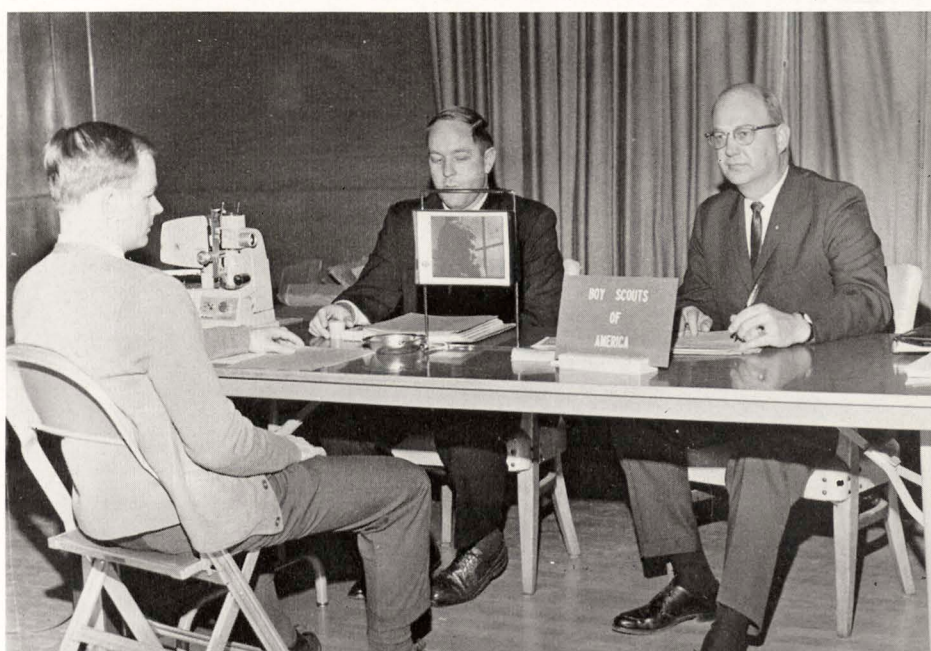

The controversial publication "Preview" was finally published and distributed. Even English majors had to admit that much of it failed to live up to its advocates' slogan of "stronger than dirt".

Engineers picked six finalists for St. Patricia by interviews and the girls began work on their skits and diets.

The Joe Tex concert began second semester's scheduled entertainment, and turned out to be one of few which did not cancel. Arkansas Careers gave leading Arkansas businessmen and students a chance to interview one another. Kappa Kappa Psi and Tau Beta Sigma band organizations were awarded three trophies at the national convention. John Braun spoke to wide-eyed students on sex, love, and marriage. Many needed no lecture.

Students were entertained by the Campus Crusaders' Newfolk. They were a real "soul" group.

"Now back in '22, I ate more Girl Scout cookies than anyone in the troop."

U of A Public Relations at Work

In a meeting closed to the press, President Mullins' ad hoc committee headed by Dr. William F. Denman, Dean of Student Affairs, continued examination of plans for a trial transit system. The TRAVELER was hacked off at being left out.

SSOC (Southern Students' Organizing Committee) demanded that Dow Chemical Company, major manufacturer of napalm, cancel plans for recruiting at the University. Dow came anyway.

ABC contributed $430 to the Bill Ferrell Memorial Fund established in memory of the former Razorback trainer and assistant coach. The check was given to the University Medical Center for leukemia research.

Peace Corps volunteers were in the Union all week and spoke to several classes.

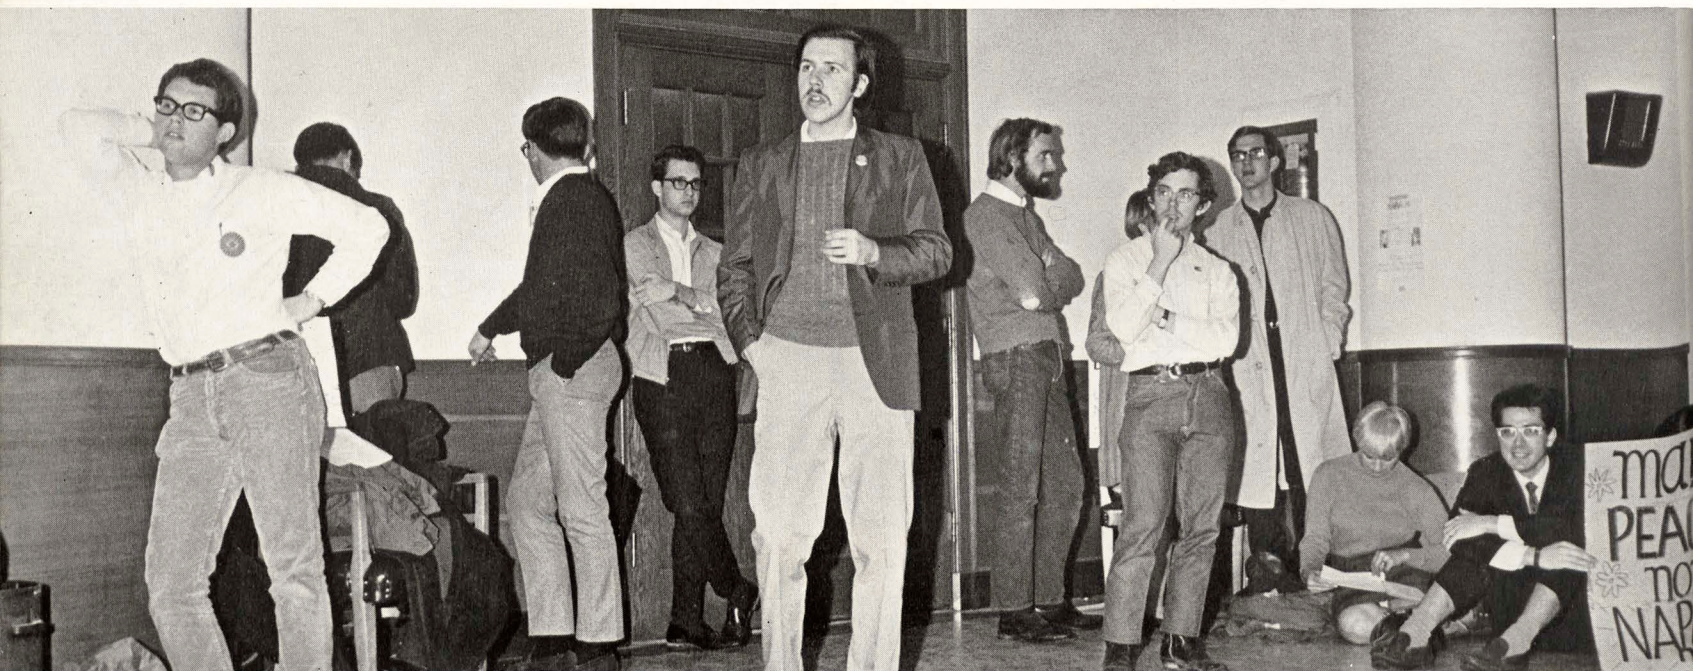

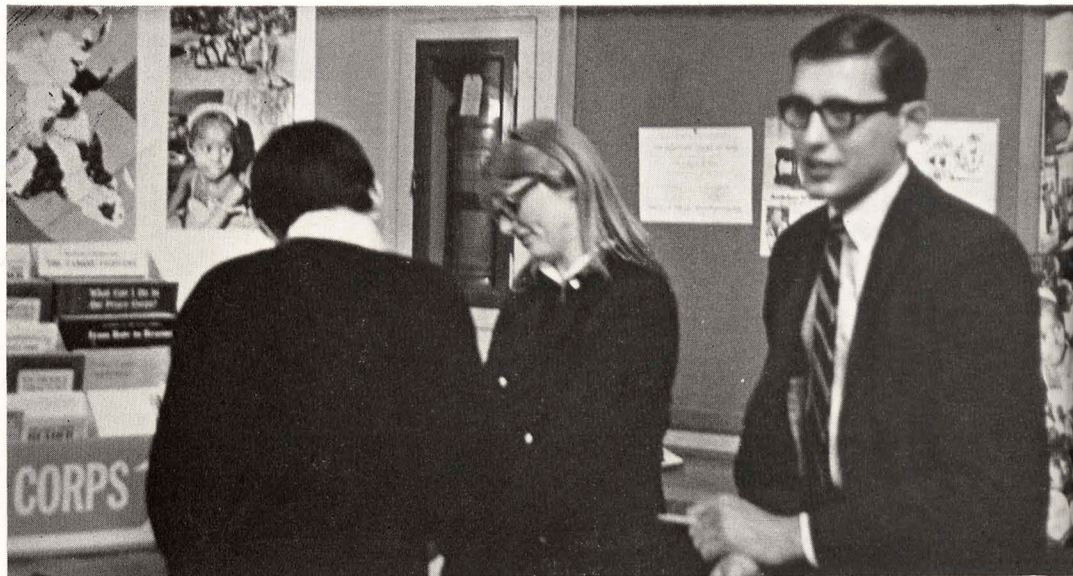

The J. Dwight Peterson Award was presented to Sigma Chi's U of A chapter for over-all above average performance. University Theatre presented "Marriage of Figaro". Becky Baker was named Honorary Lt. Colonel of Seventh Regiment of Pershing Rifles. The Student Union sponsored the Poor Man's Art Festival or a place for students to display and barter their own works of art. Busy Week.

"Damn it — Go Home!"

"You don't know how much I appreciate this. It's such a long way to Hot Springs."

The Peace Corps visited the campus renewing the idea that there is no such thing as a bad peace.

SSOC protesters almost threatened Dow's visit to the U of A.

Activities On and Around Campus

"Gee, it's so great being here with all the boys; who owns this place anyway?"

It's time to end the war when we have to rely on this.

Alpha Chi and Farmhouse won first place honors in scholarship for the fall semester.

The Student Senate was especially active this week, voting to give official recognition to the SSOC chapter on campus and adopting a resolution concerning freedom of information stating that all University meetings should be open to interested persons wishing to attend.

The third in a series of Arkansas Forums was held before a capacity crowd. Dr. William F. Cheek headed a panel which discussed "War and American Society".

Alpha Zeta chapter of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity held a centennial celebration on Campus this week. The first chapter was founded in 1868 at U. Va.

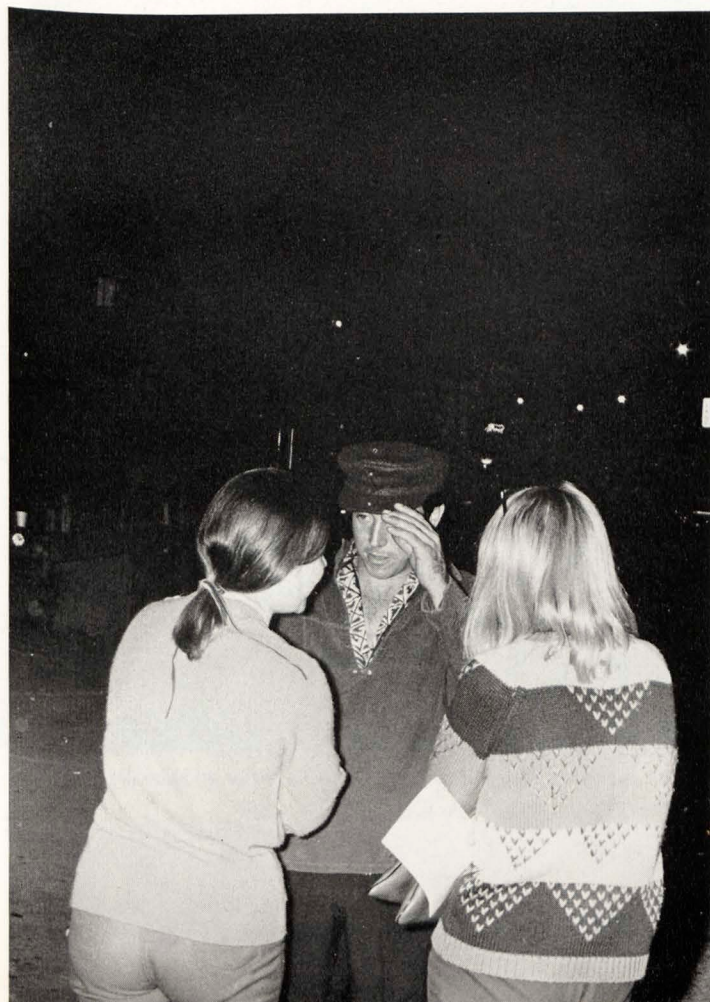

Someone told me to go fly a kite —

Spring Combines Hard Work and Fun

Springtime finds the Razorbacks in their old position but with a new plan — to win.

It was announced that the long-awaited transit system would run this week, but much to the disappointment of Co-Ed Complex residents, it was halted because the University felt that certain stipulations concerning the lease for the tractor had not been met. Students complained of an administrative thumb over them point-down instead of up like Mack's.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield spoke as a part of Symposium. He urged a continuing appraisal of our commitments abroad and a substantial reduction of United States forces in Western Europe. Mansfield said that he did not feel that the security of Southeast Asia is vital to the security of the U. S.

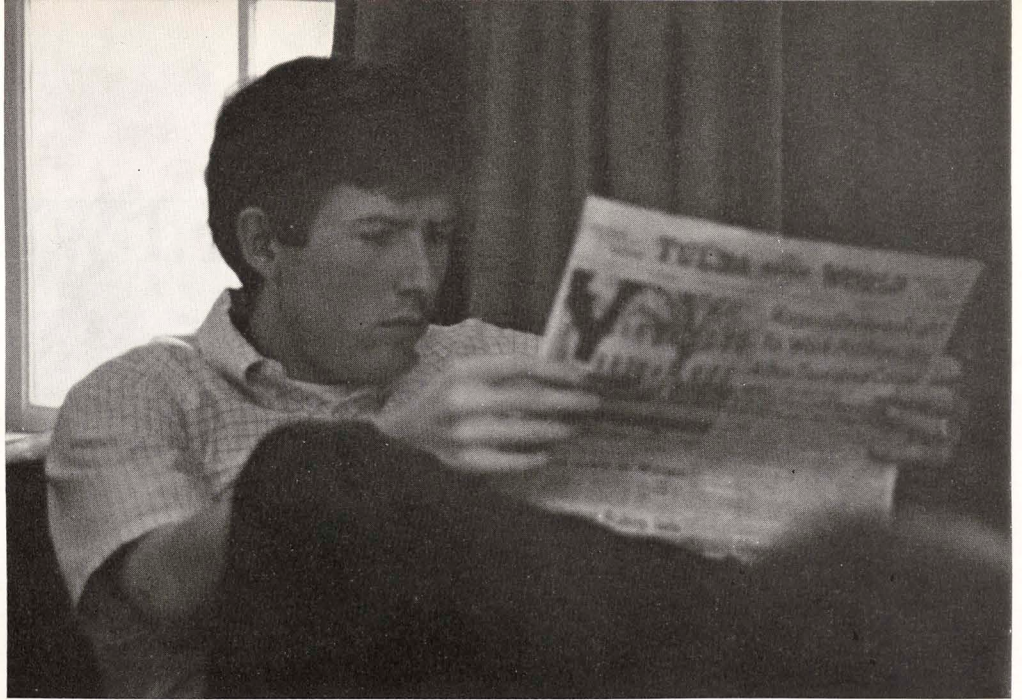

Campus honors flowed as Linda Walker, ChiO, was named Miss YDC; Ruth Gwynn, OCW, was crowned Agri Queen; Blue Key tapped ten new members and ODK, seventeen.

The Razorbacks finished their basketball season by edging the University of Texas 74-73. The University golf team began its 1968 season with a second place finish in the Southwest Recreational Meet. U of A athletics finally looked up.

Pre-Med Day sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Delta was held for visiting high school seniors.

"Heads or tails?"

This boy appears to be absorbed in the world problems, but he's only trying to figure out B.C.

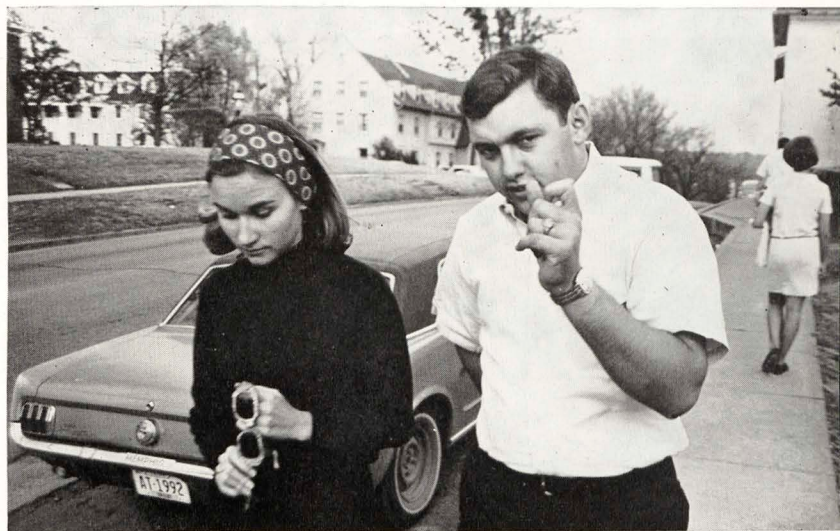

The long awaited transit system finally materialized. It is now the most highly insured piece of machinery in the state.

Notorious Personalities in Action

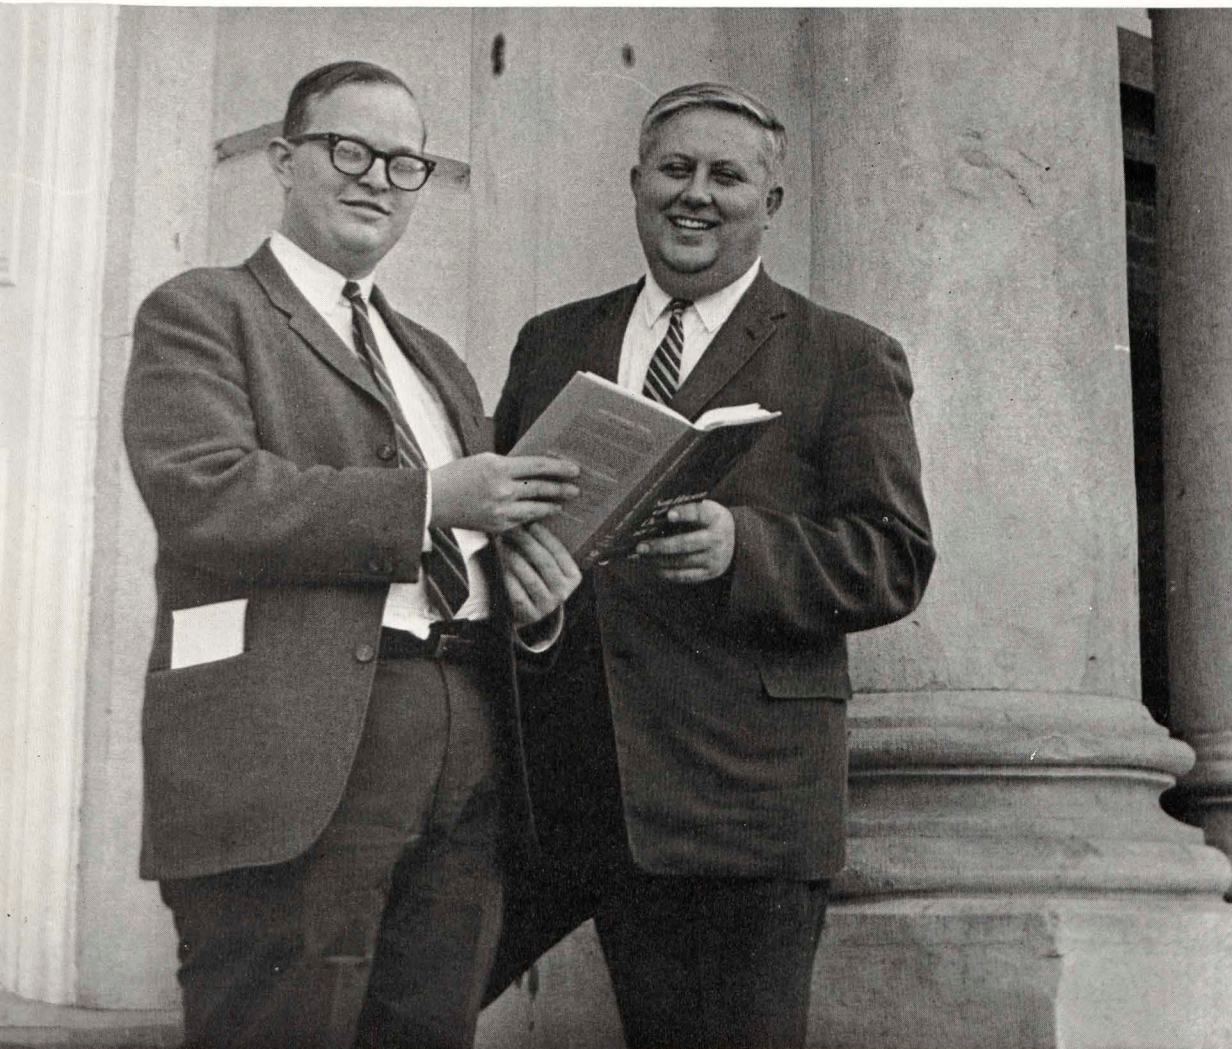

Engineers Week brought an outgrowth of grizzly beards (for those who could grow them), a succession of banquets, and hours of skit practice for St. Pat and Patricia candidates. Suzy Gerety, Tri Delta, and Mike Eidson, Sigma Pi, were chosen to reign over festivities at the less-than-gross Engineers Rally, high spot of the week's events.

Senate Majority leader Mike Mansfield spoke at Symposium '68, covering such topics as the Viet Nam war, United States' relations with Southeast Asia, and possible presidential candidates for the coming election year.

For the first time in twenty years, classes were cancelled for a day because of a blizzard-like snow storm, and, to the chagrin of the administration, gave students an unplanned holiday. AWS elections were also postponed so that coeds wouldn't have to take time out from romping in the snow to go to the polls to vote.

... and so are many other things.

SMU outswam all the rest to a Southwest Conference victory, although Arkansas swimmers set our own school records in every event. Texas finished in second place.

Candidates for Associated Student offices and Senate positions began filing. Much apprehension began to build as to who would campaign for whom. Of course, getting voters to read one's platform was another matter.

Late in March Razorback Beauties were announced, giving some a thrill and others a shock.

The Commerce Day banquet ended a day of seminars on all areas of the business profession, and announced Commerce Guild officers and the new Commerce Queen, Mildred Buchanan, Tri-Delt.

"If I used Ban, would anyone sit by me?"

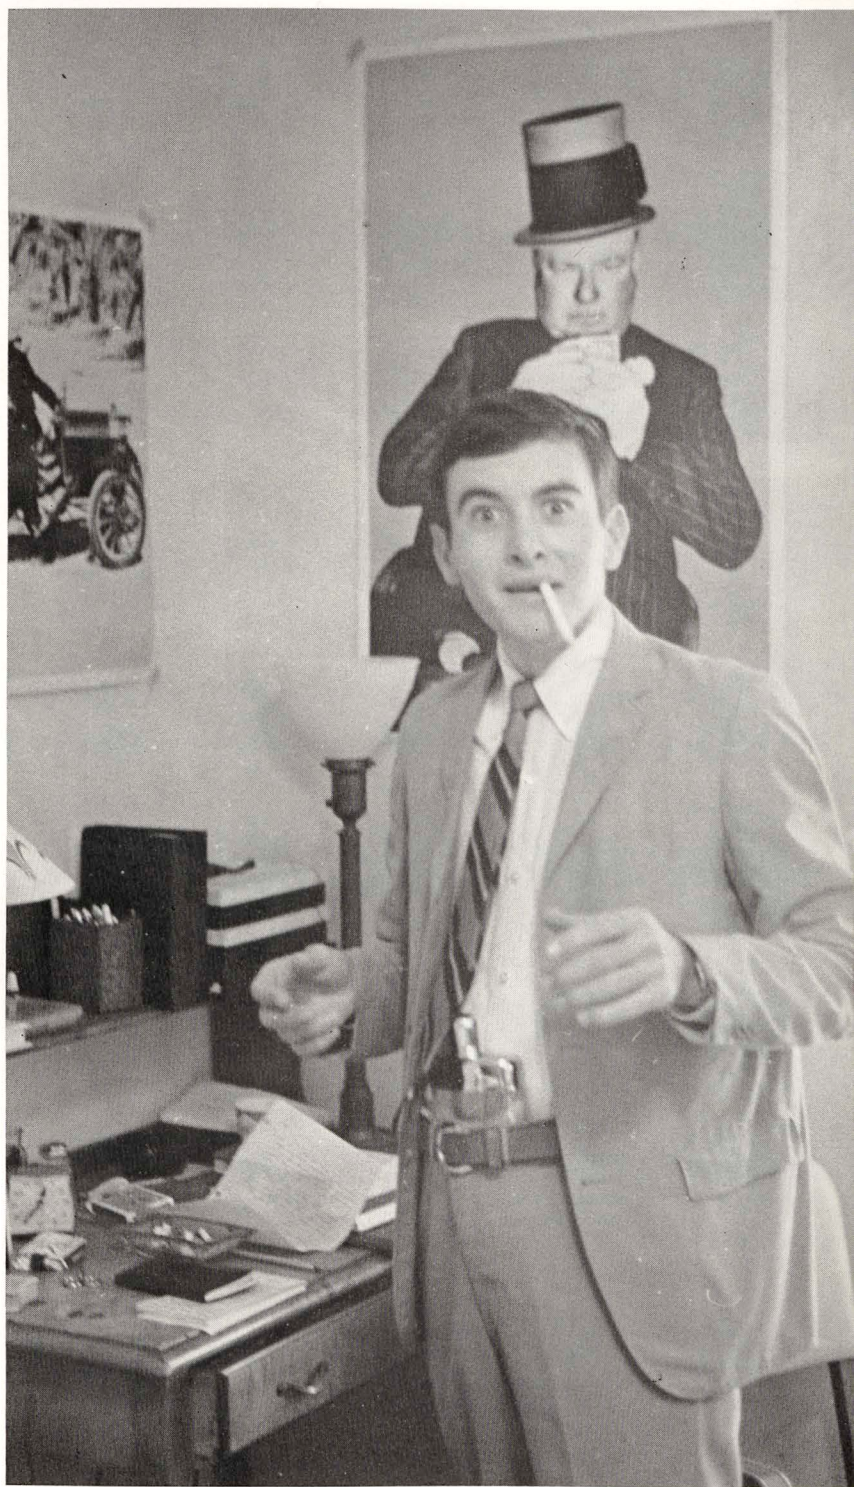

"No, this is not the pit."

Spring Break is Welcome Relief

Dr. Martin Luther King's assassination in Memphis left the University, as the entire nation, stunned and saddened. President Johnson pleaded for calm, but rioting broke out in many cities. University students and faculty held a memorial service and march through campus and downtown, honoring King. Following the march, the group of about 150 gathered on the courthouse steps for a similar service with prayer and freedom songs. Negro students on campus advocated non-violence in keeping with King's teachings. All classes were called off on the morning of King's funeral; a few Arkansas representatives attended the actual service; many went to local services, and some watched the television broadcast. All mourned.

Do you think she danced all night?

"W. C. Fields is alive and well in Cuba?"

Students turn to the Library again to express heartfelt emotion.

U of A students continued Dr. King's ideal of non-violence as they mourned his death with "We Shall Overcome".

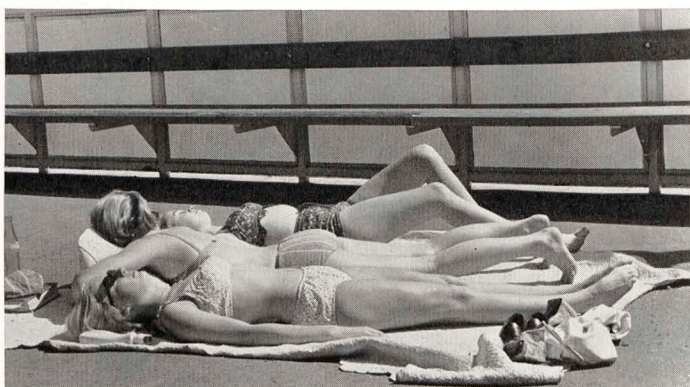

There were many emotions that day.

Demonstrators Pay Tribute to King

Mother, father, and girlfriend look in disbelief at boy's new tatoo. It's the newest thing on campus.

If you want to see Pi in the sky, ask a Sigma Chi.

Chi Omega swept to victory in the third annual Sigma Chi Derby Day. The Skis were pleasantly surprised as the Bonnie and Clyde gang (actually ChiO's) raided their house to win the transportation event.

Walter Slaughter and Mike Fitzhugh discussed their platforms in various forums during pre-election campaigning. Fitzhugh came down with "foot-in-mouth" several times during the week — but freshmen women continued to say that Fitzhugh fit them because he was definitely the cutest; and after all, they couldn't betray all those Sigma Nu drops.

Hallabaloo was a great success even though Sam and Dave, not unexpectedly, cancelled. Powder puff football proved that girls are not always ladies — in fact, they can be real "jocks". Boys remained interested in these frantic females, however, as was shown in the bed relays and "Bod race" which highlighted the field events.

The Journalism department held the seventh annual J-Day on which several distinguished Arkansas journalists spoke.

When they said Powder Puff, she didn't bargain for all the hard knocks.

The teams were well coached in the tactics of football, but you can be sure this is the only pass this girl will ever catch.

Derby Day—A Colorful Success

A case of "female fatigue" swept the campus after a frantic weekend of coed-competition in the Sigma Chi Derby Day events and Powderpuff Football frolics. Sore muscles, purple bruises, and band-aids marred numerous female figures throughout the week.

Approximately 4,000 students voted in the student body primaries, throwing some races into run-offs. All eyes were on the prexy primary, through which Fitzhugh led Slaughter by a narrow margin. Edward Vinson, a third candidate for the top office, moved his support to a write-in candidate for the upcoming presidential run-off.

Agri Day Weekend harvested a crop of events for Agri Queen Ruth Gynn at the awards banquet, open house, tug-of-war, plus a barbecue and rodeo at the Washington County Fair Grounds where people sat on or fell to the ground all day long.

More girls dropped "trou" at Derby Day than all the Kappa Sigs in history.

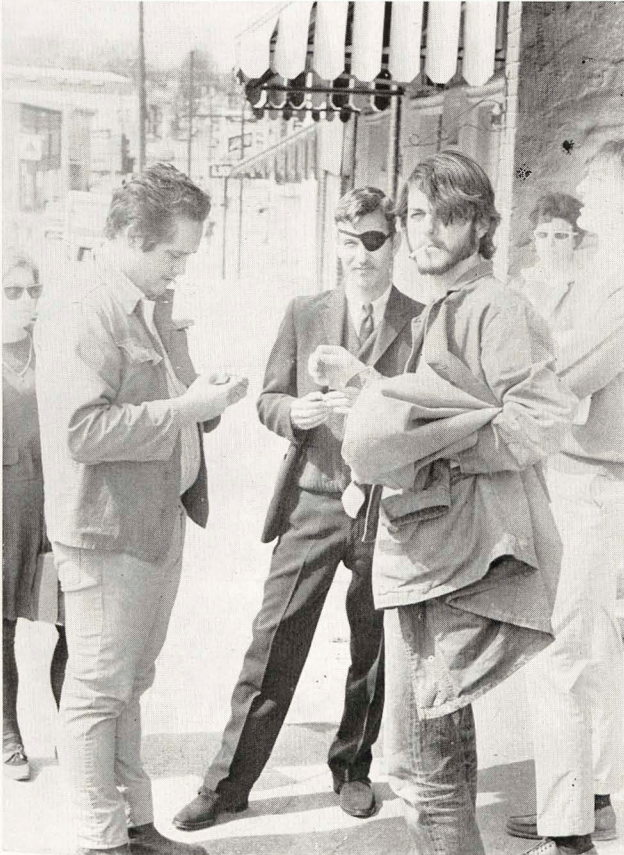

Derby Day found Pi Phis finally willing to take their pants off.

Draft dodgers: we would hate to think of our country's survival in their hands.

Spring comes chug-a-lugging in. So will summer and fall and winter and week-ends and always.

A successful spring break requires lots of planning. For instance, selection of motel and corresponding stories.

Spring days came on in full force and were noticeable by the universal signs (flowers and sunshine) and the university signs (crowded conditions at Jug's and not-so-crowded conditions in classes). Convertible tops went down as crowds flocked to Wedington, but the "Alphs" and "Spees" stayed behind to make their battle plans.

Alpha Phi Omega, Society of Automotive Engineers, started plans for what turned out to be another successful Road Rally. Trophies were given for the best average times.

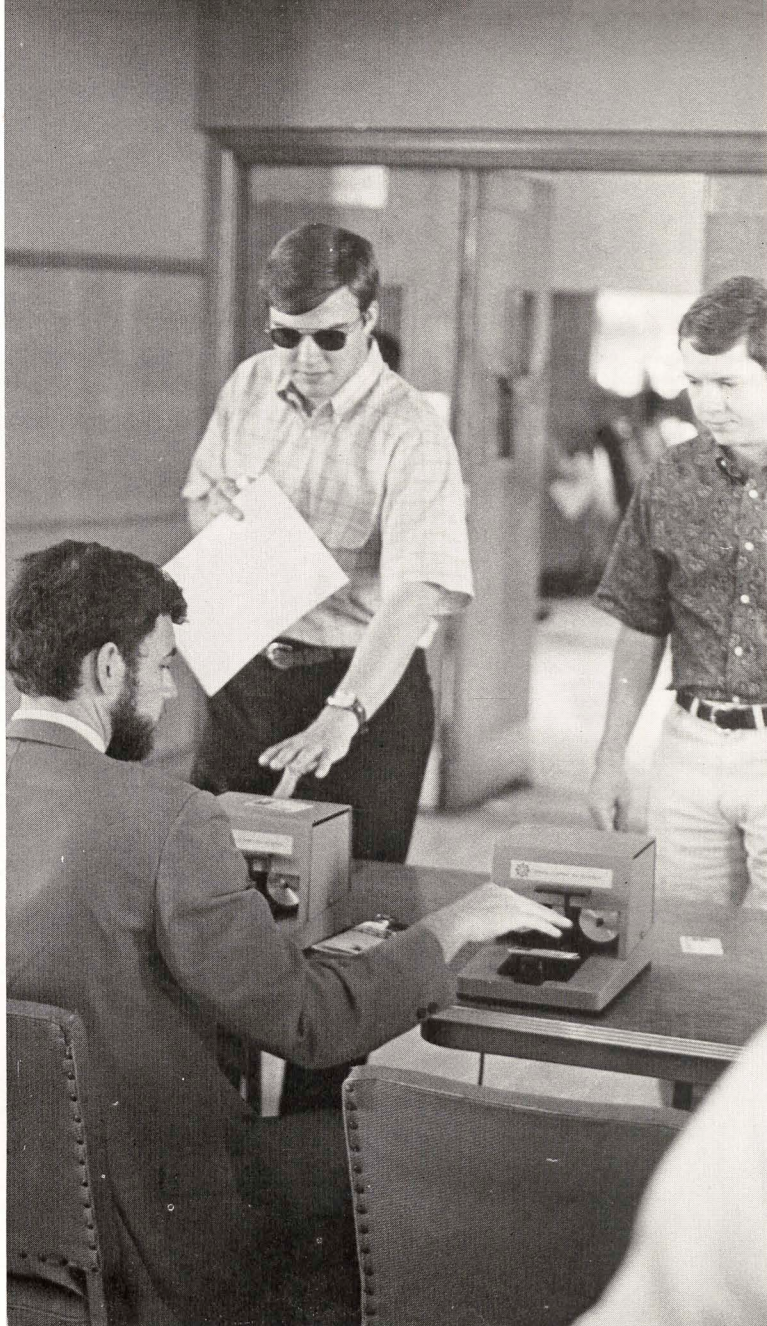

The English Department presented a full week of activities centered around guest speaker, Prof. Frederick Crews, professor of English at the University of California at Berkley. Some of his topics were "Literary Criticism and Political Morality" and "Psychoanalysis and the Study of Literature."

"The Graduate" continued its fourth successful week at the U-Ark. Students seemed to enjoy the naive, sexy adventures of Dustin Hoffman, though it's doubtful that there are any graduates from here with such little experience.

The long-awaited "breather", Spring Break, finally arrived and the campus was left naked.

Voters had to wear sunglasses to avoid flash on campaigners' teeth.

It was a real "dog eat dog" campaign.

"I knew we had fairy boats, but I never knew we had an air force."

Campus Elections Boom in 1968

As usual there were more campaigners than voters at the polls. This year there were also more votes than voters.

NOW spelled backwards is WON.

As student body elections came closer to the finish line, campaigners grew more fiercely aggressive than ever: streets around campus were lined with honking, sign-decked cars from dawn till dusk; candidates handed out everything from hamburgers to Easter eggs (and salt; and students dodged poster pickets with their ears closed, tummies full, and a trail of hand-bills behind them.

Choice '68, the first National Collegiate Presidential Primary, came to campus, giving students a chance to name their first, second, and third choices for President of the United States. The ballot listed every current, leading political figure with room for write-ins.

"You mean Mack is running again!"

"Yes we use VOTE toothpaste. It really works."

Slaughter Victors for Top Spot

SAE's rallied like hell to switch Slaughter from a preliminary loser to an over-all winner. It was hard to believe that the long talked about "NOW" had finally arrived and those little red, square stickers didn't fit anyone after all.

George Lease made a big victory for independent students by sweeping the vice-presidential votes. They claimed to have won a new lease on university life.

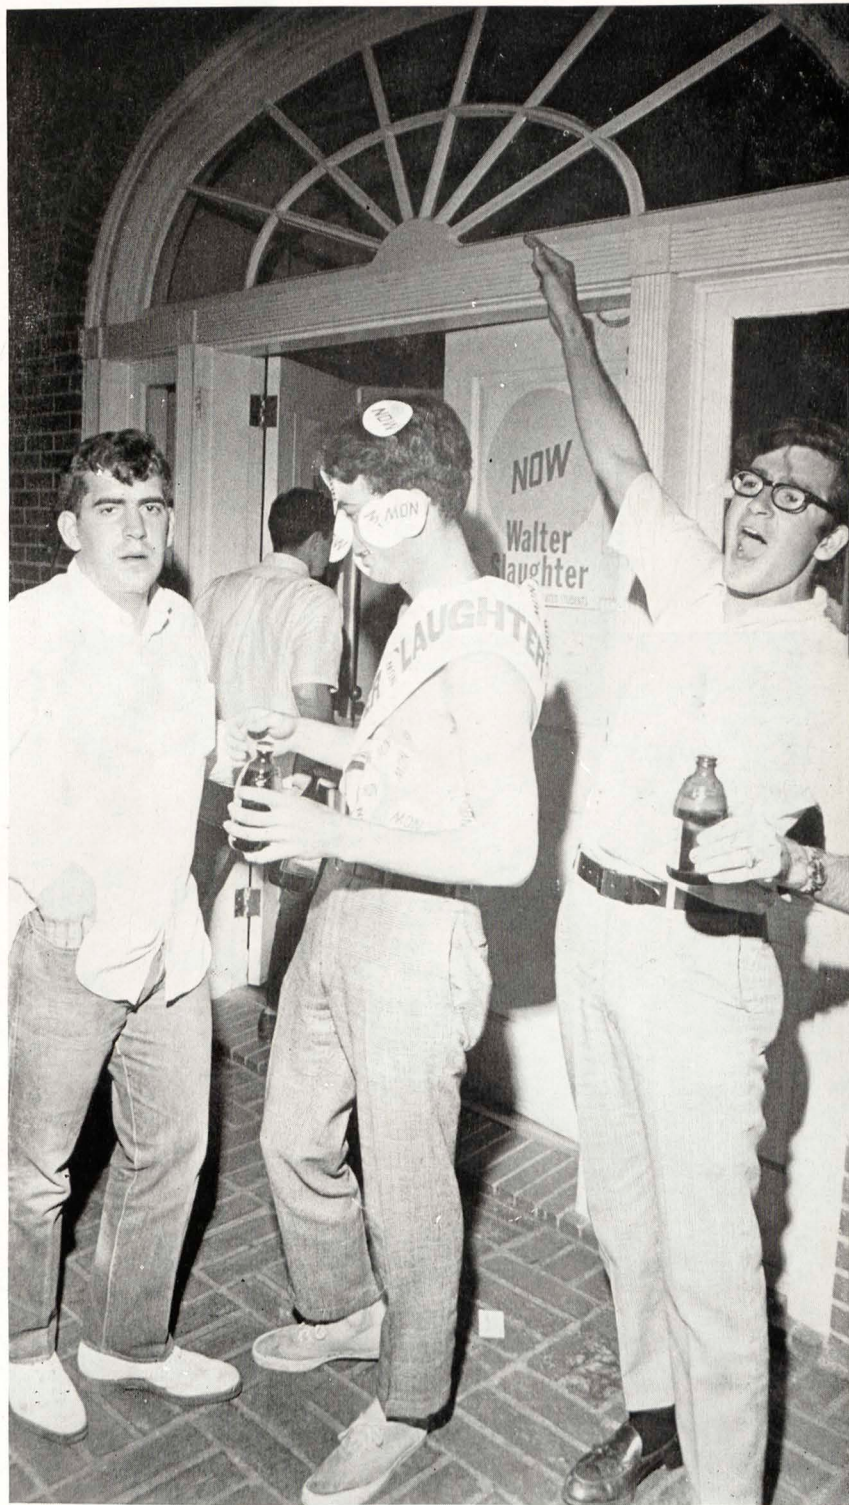

Sarah Watt ran unopposed for secretary and saved the ChiO's from having to carry out the election plans they had made in September. The general knowledge of these plans might have had something to do with her being unopposed.

Lambda Chi's pretty boy, Bill Williams, won the treasurer's battle by edging past Randy Riddle, AKL.

As usual, a Razorback football jock won president of the Senior Class: Terry Stewart. The Phi Delt's say this trend is due to leadership on the field being proof of leadership elsewhere; others say it has something to do with hero-worship.

All-in-all the elections were clean and fun.

Mortar Board Taps New Members

"... but I assure you one thing, I'll end the war in Vietnam, maybe the world too, but the war for sure."

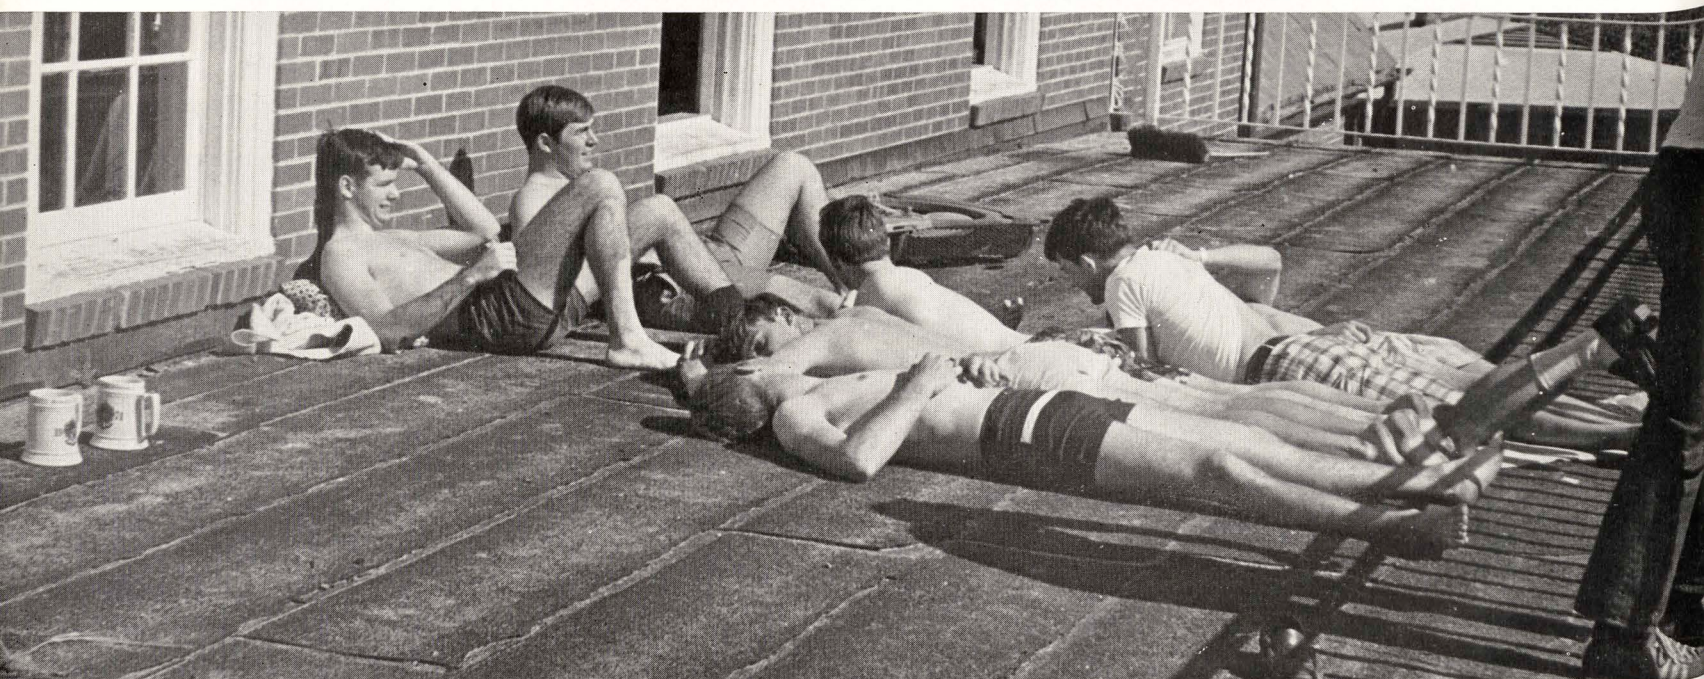

To the great disappointment of coeds, the AWS Spring Festival offered no sack suppers this year. Four scholarships were awarded, resident hall assistants and sophomore counselors were announced, and Mortar Board used "flower power" to tap its new members, which was the highlight of the program.

The twenty old outstanding women of Chimes tapped the twenty new, after about two months of screening, re-screening, and interviews. Right away the young ladies began their duties by guiding campus tours and assisting Miss U of A contestants at the pageant.

Barry Goldwater, 1964 Republican Presidential nominee, was the year's last Symposium '68 speaker. Goldwater, who last fall predicted that the Vietnam war would end by November '68, declared he still supports that statement and feels that the United States is winning the war. In speaking of the upcoming Democratic nomination, Goldwater speculated that Hubert H. Humphrey will be victorious. In answer to the question of "getting out of Vietnam regardless of how we do it", the former Senator expressed concern over the communist challenge if the U.S. were to do so.

He hasn't fared as well as his Sigma Chi brothers. Maybe he should go back to college.

"Fayetteville on Review", a closed circuit television broadcast, hosted a program interviewing several anonymous U of A Students on campus-city relations, student activities, and the generation gap.

Once again the ever-popular questioning panel selected a queen. This time it was for Miss YRC, and Deborah Wilson, Delta Gamma, was selected.

The spring Red Cross blood drive fell below its goal set for soliciting student donations. In spite of cookies, cokes, and hovering military sponsors in snug-fitting uniforms and heels, ROTC boys just didn't seem to care whether the Army or the Air Force won in their competition for giving the largest amount of blood.

How could the Greek Week dance fail? With 2000 people in the Rink, there's no choice but unity.

Greeks Unite for Their Week

Greek Week activities kept sororities and fraternities jumping from weekend to weekend. The highlight of the week was F. Lee Bailey, noted criminal lawyer, who spoke in John Barnhill Fieldhouse. Bailey examined U.S. justice systems and said that they are not the best, though, in theory, they have great potential.

IFC and Panhellenic joined hands in a workshop with speakers from different houses and a talk by Mrs. Charles Palmer, Jr., Associate Dean of Students at the University of Kentucky.

Darrell Trovel, Dean of Fraternities at Oklahoma State University, spoke to those attending the Greek Week Banquet at the Holiday Inn. To everyone's surprise, Kent Rubens who has won everything but praise for his work at the University, received the Outstanding Greek Man award. Gail Stephens, DG, won Outstanding Greek Woman.

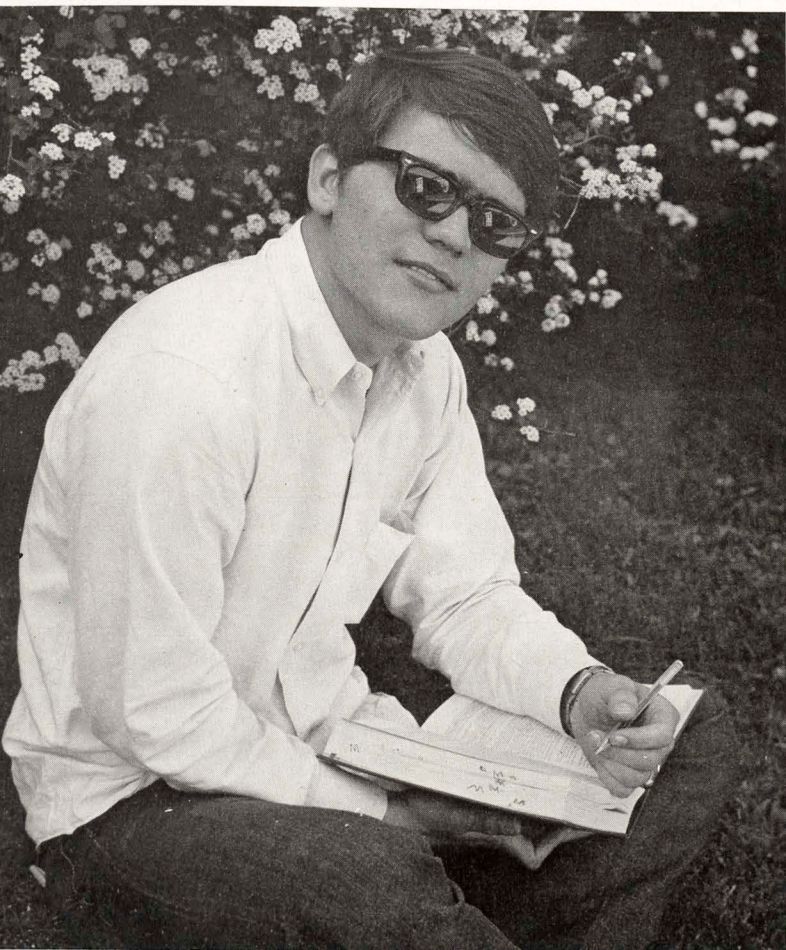

Fitzhugh is still looking for Dr. Mullins to clarify a campaign controversy.

Students show their thirst for knowledge as 40 coeds crowded into Barnhill Fieldhouse to hear F. Lee Bailey.

An Old Landmark Gets a New Face

The opening of the rejuvenated DeLuxe drew crowds of students who rejuvenated themselves on all the free beer.

Bill Woodyard's dog watches his master's old home go down.

Arkansas' Big Red #1 became a father when his girlfriend, Prudence Pig, presented Big Red with eight piglets. There was talk of a paternity suit, but the pair seem to be quite happy together in Hog Heaven.

The DeLuxe re-opened its doors after several weeks of remodeling, and then had to relock them for fear of the multitudinous crowds over-packing the place to celebrate with free beer. But soon the free beer was gone, and the moochers moved on, while the loyal patrons of Pat and Helen stayed on in larger, newer, yet still comfortable surroundings.

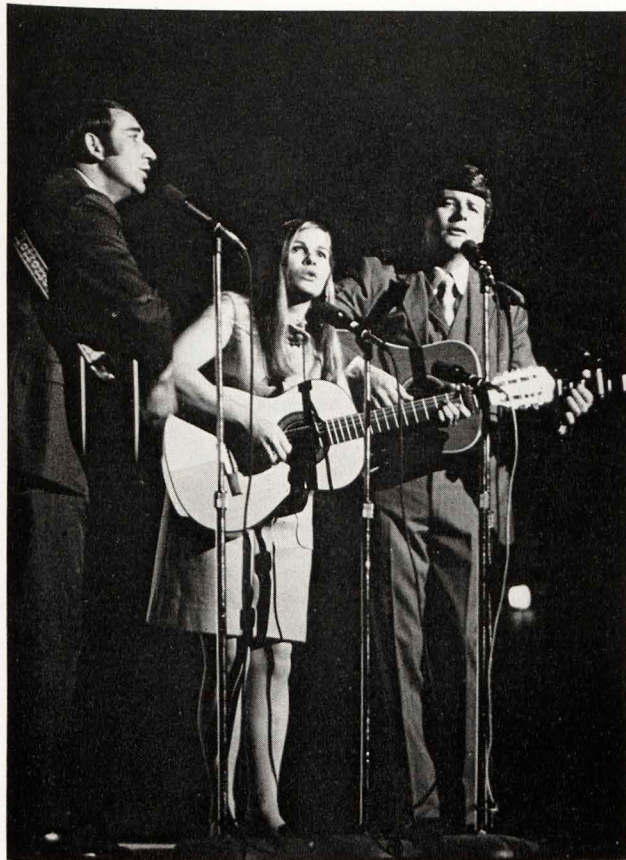

Tryouts for '68-'69 cheerleaders selected eight regular hog-callers and four alternates.

Gaebale Concludes '68 Activities

The Pozo Seco Singers gave a folksey touch to Gaebale.

Gaebale was more successful than ever before with pretty weather and lots of activities. Artie Gregory and Mike Fitzhugh, co-directors, won praise for a job well done.

Pozo-Seco Singers got the ball rolling with their folk-rock concert, but the "man who can't stand himself", James Brown, stole most students' hearts and everyone's soul.

The Miss University of Arkansas pageant couldn't help being good with sixteen of the most beautiful girls on campus vying for the title. The judges picked Nan Castleberry, Chi Omega, to reign as 1968-69 Miss U of A.

The Gaebale Carnival drew a large crowd with booths featuring everything from mud-throwing to "skin-flicks". People got carried away clobbering the Theta car and the fire department was called when it crashed and burned.

Coach Broyles was a bit disappointed with the Red-White scrimmage game, but the crowd loved seeing the Razorbacks kill each other. Fans or sadists?

Gaebale, the big weekend of the year, was followed only by bookin' it for exams, so for the typical fun-loving student, THE YEAR ENDED.

Fulbright Hall

Enthusiasm Brings Spirit Award

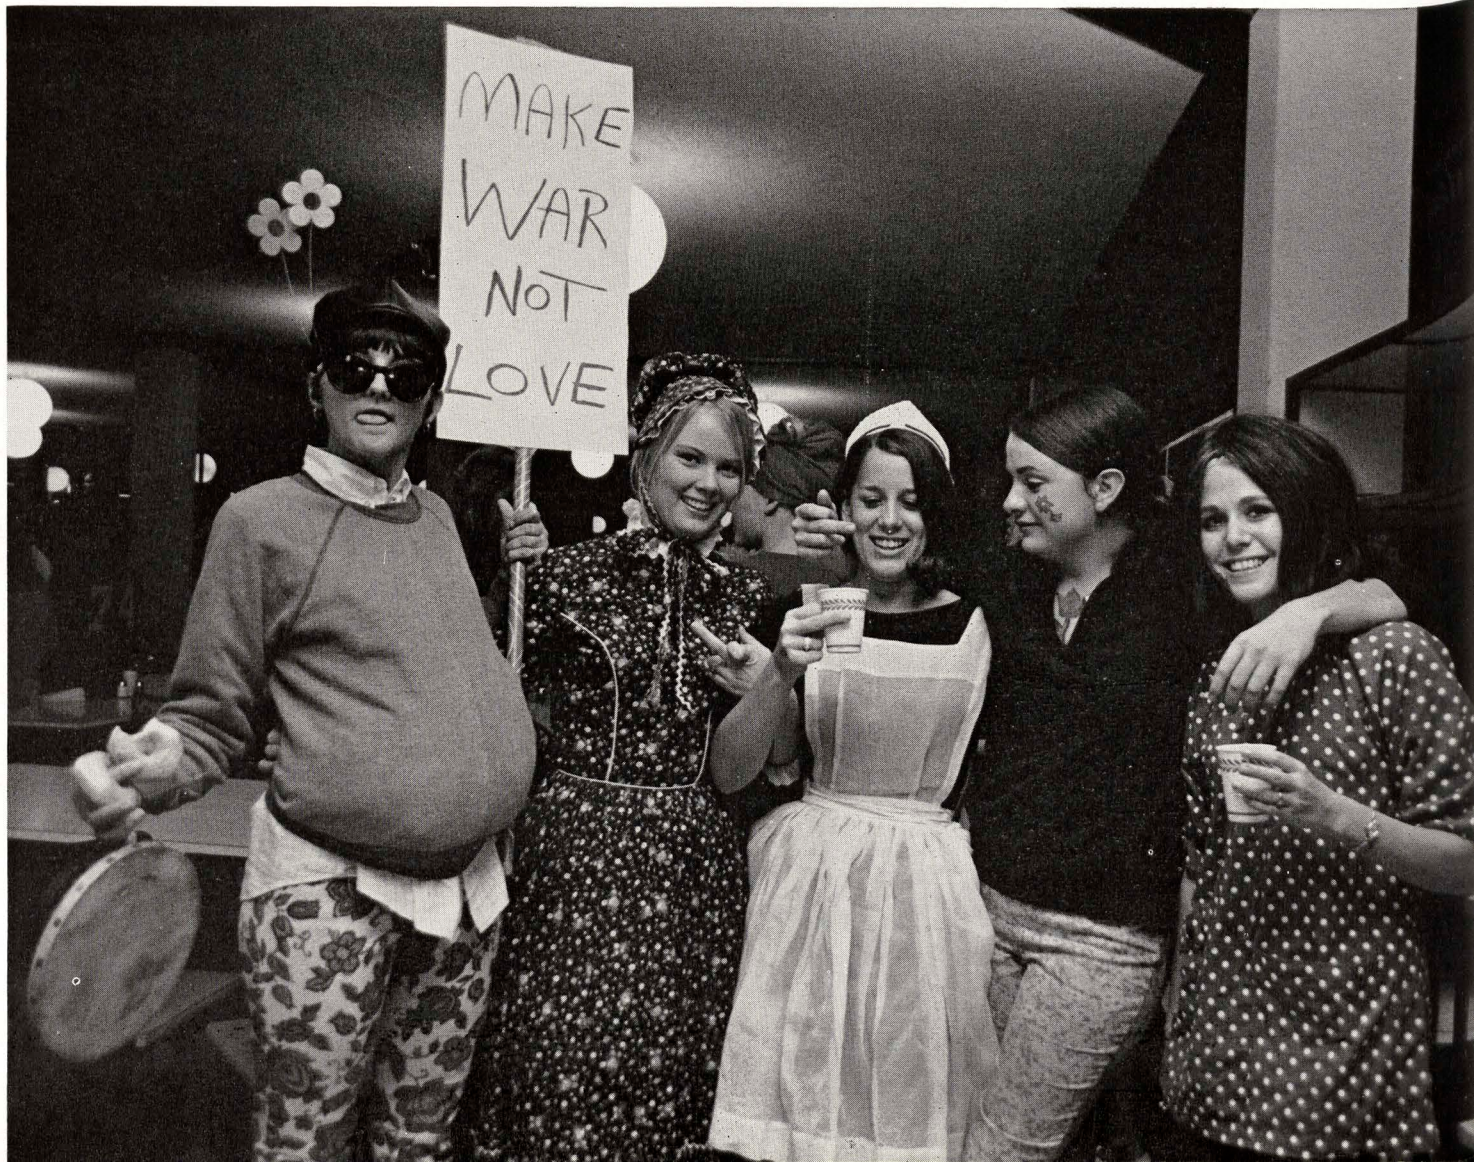

The 400 occupants of Fulbright Hall met their first year at the University with much participation and spirit. Functions within the dorm included a Halloween party and the annual spring formal, "Sweetheart Tree."

Patty Stallcup, Marty Bettis, and Teresa Driggers were selected as ROTC sponsors; Stacy Heringer, Dee Dee Davis, and Mary Beth Twiehaus were Hallaballoo sponsors. Eighteen Fulbright women were chosen for Alpha Lambda Delta. The spirit award at the Beat Texas pep rally went to Fulbright, as well as second place award in Singfony.

The 1967-68 officers were Barbara Holloway, president; Marilyn Brewer, vice-president; Margaret Mentil, house manager; Vicki Lee, social chairman; Mary Beth Twiehaus, treasurer; and Myra Jane Curtis, secretary.

Razorback Hall

Shows Diversity of Interests

This year has been a successful one for the women of Razorback Hall, as they attempted to bring recognition to their dorm. Awards and activities included third place in Homecoming decorations and a Christmas party for needy children.

Sciences senator. Kathy Stell was president and Miriam Duell was vice-president of Tau Beta Sigma. Vera Allen and Vicki Morgan were in Gamma Beta Phi, and Becky Bane was in Tau Alpha Upsilon.

The offices of president, treasurer, secretary, and social chairman were held in the fall by Sharon Duckes, Mary Frances Jones, Mary Lea Ginn, and Dalene Lamb; and in the spring by Louise Meinecke, Judy Clark, Marjean Holloway, and Vicki Morgan.

Reid Hall

First in Homecoming Decorations

Although the newness has not quite worn off, Reid Hall, now in its second year of occupancy, has become well-integrated into University life.

Reid's spring tea for Student Government candidates is becoming an annual event. The hall placed first in Homecoming house decoration competition and second in Powder Puff football. The spring formal was held in the Downtowner.

Reid Hall girls have been active and represented in almost every phase of the University community. They are found on the TRAVELER, RAZORBACK and A-BOOK staffs, working as heads of Gaebale committees, serving as Hallaballoo hostesses, in Student Senate, ABC, Alpha Lambda Delta, Tau Alpha Upsilon and other campus clubs and honoraries as well as among the RAZORBACK beauties.

WIHC Expands Service in all Areas

Judy Graves served as president of WIHC this year.

The representatives from seven women's living groups which compose WIHC were busy this year with many projects. In continuing old traditions and adding new services, WIHC proved that it is not limited to residence hall activities.

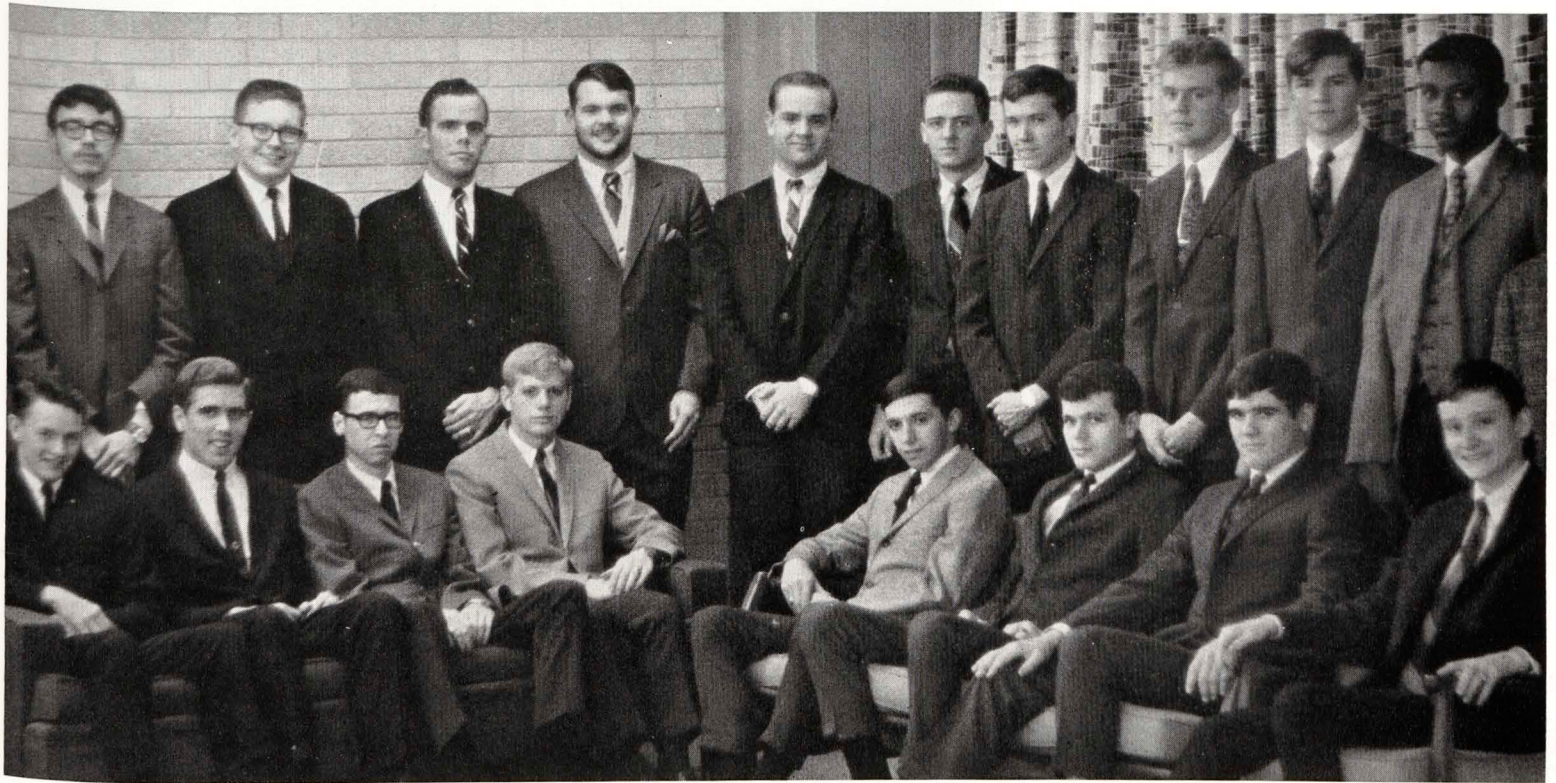

Hallabaloo Week, begun last year in cooperation with MIHC, was successfully repeated this year. The Casino Carnival (also with MIHC), sponsorship of foreign students, and awards to the outstanding hall and senior woman were also continued. A "Meet Mack" tea was held, and the first spring fashion show took place in April. Other activities included health films, a job availability program, and the scholarship award.

Officers for the year were Judy Graves, president; Stephanie Johnson, vice-president; Johnnie Holcomb, secretary; Helen Vancuren, treasurer; and Becky Bane, social chairman. Helen and Johnnie were named national officers at the NACURH convention.

First Row: Debbie Canada, Stephanie Johnson, Judy Graves, Johnnie Holcomb, Becky Bane.

MIHC Captures NACURH Offices

Men's Inter-House Congress is composed of representatives from all men's residence halls and is designed to organize and coordinate student activities in the residence hall area.

Again this year, MIHC cooperated with WIHC in sponsoring Residence Hall Week, Hallabaloo '68. Darrel Rice served as a capable co-chairman of the week of activities. Featured this year was a speech by Dr. James Kavanaugh, former Roman Catholic priest. After the "powder puff" football games, "bed races" and Hallabaloo Relays ended, the week terminated with dancing to the sounds of the great "Uniques".

Other yearly MIHC projects and social activities included the annual Casino Carnival, free entertainment films for residence hall men, and free athletic equipment for residence hall teams. MIHC also offered awards to residence hall men for academic excellence.

To keep the men interested in campus politics and government, the Campus Affairs Commission sponsored forums for candidates for student body officers.

Officers for the year were George Lease, President; Jinx Wilkinson, Vice President; George Myers, Secretary; Charles Drake, Treasurer; and Gorton Hitte, Social Chairman.

Buchanan House

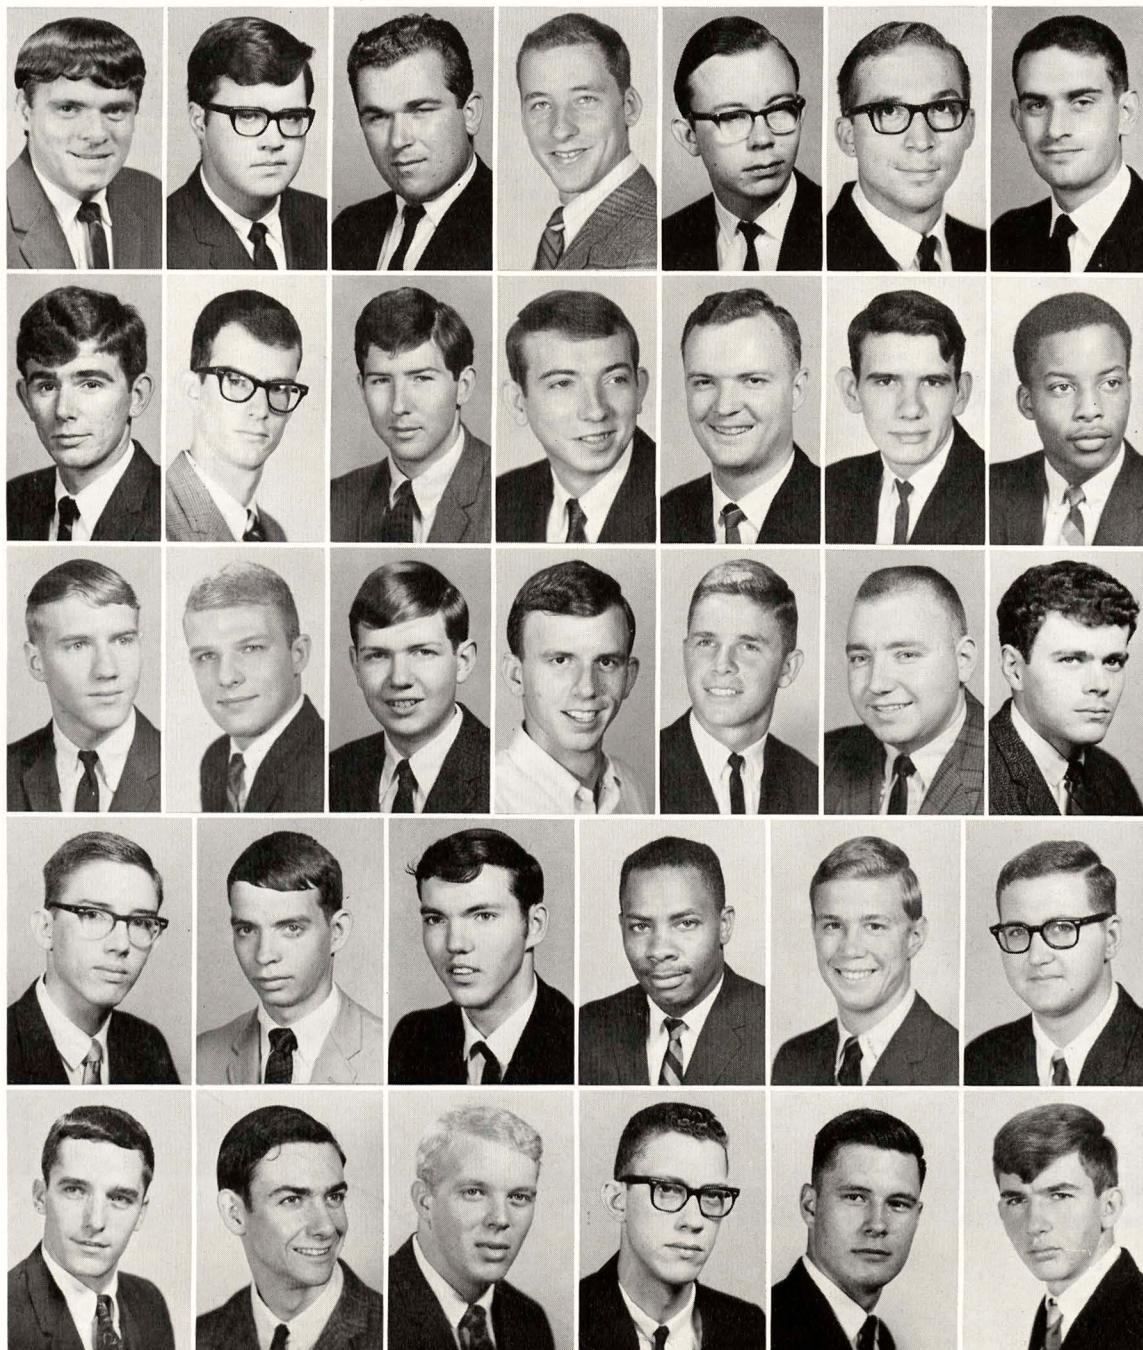

The "Sleepy Hollow Gang" in Buchanan House experienced another successful year while participating in all the many phases of campus life.

When the big man spoke there was quiet. Joe Clay, resident assistant, spoke firmly and his men reacted in a most favorable manner. This year not only the house officers but many of the house members took active roles in Alpha Phi Omega, I.E.E.E., Young Republicans and Democrats, A.S.C.E., M.I.H.C., A.S.M.E., and the campus intramural sport system. Not a bad show.

Many of these same men were instrumental in re-activating the local chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity.

Taking a somewhat independent course of action, Buchanan House included itself in all that could be considered fun. A very familiar line was "care for a little fight".

Fifth Row: Robert LeRoy Smith, Thomas Lee Smith, Harold Randall Sullivan, William Sam Surratt, John C. Warren, Bobby William Wray.

Droke House

Droke House has been in a rather unusual situation this year. It has become the University's first graduate dorm. Long an undergraduate hall for men, Droke has adapted to the peace that is necessary for study. Each man is participating in extensive research with just a dribble of fun for the sake of sanity and relaxation.

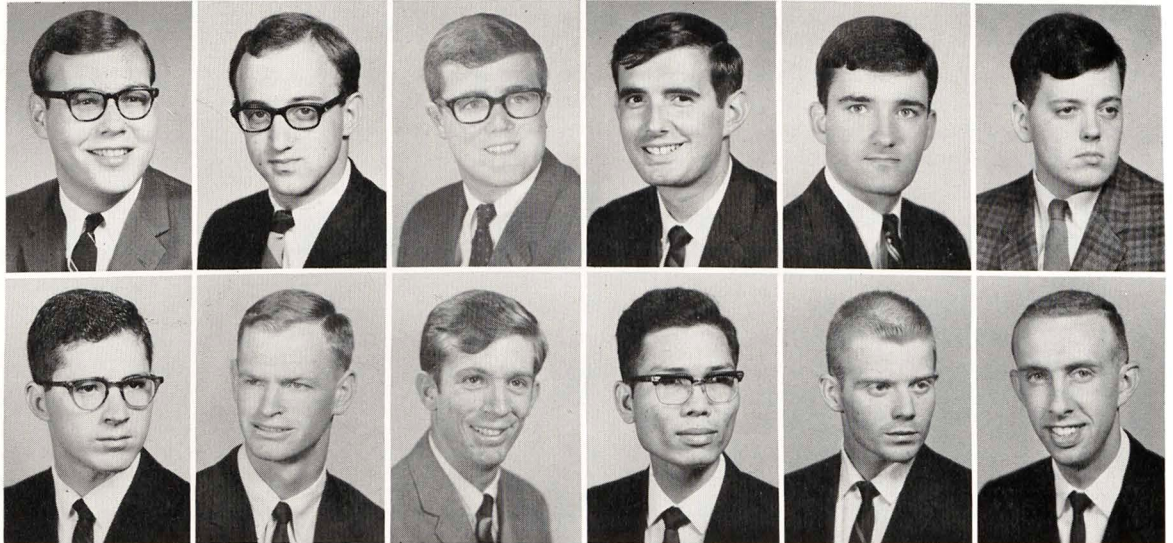

No officers were elected so the men were governed by means of lively discussions, not always the most subtle but by far one of the quickest methods of settling little disputes.

Activities have been kept to the barest minimum to aid the house members in their studies. A basketball team was formed and many of the residents were active in this sport, but there was little success when it came to competition.

Maybe it is enough to note, they tried. The least we can do is wish them greater success in this next year.

Holcombe Hall

Holcombe Hosts Dignitaries

Again this year, Holcombe Hall housed men instead of shapely lassies. Leading Holcombe in an active and prosperous year were the officers and men themselves. The way was right.

After a rather extraordinary intramural group last year, Holcombe again literally ran away in the Residence Hall Intramural sports.

Although intramurals were an important facet of the "Super Dorm's" extracurricular activities, numerous social functions also highlighted the year. Among these activities were watching parties during away football games, a Christmas Orphan's Party, several drop-ins, some memorable outings, and the night Holcombe unofficially hosted some of the wildest members of the Texas Aggie Corp. They really showed a great deal of hospitality as the Aggies literally moved in.

Holcombe also took pride in their entry in the annual Singfony and a fine grade point in the Residence Hall area. On many occasions the men invited some of the University's professors to participate in student forums.

To generate more participation in campus politics, a special forum was conducted to introduce prospective campus leaders. The spirit of the men made it all worth while.

DG cuts bushes for Holcombe. Holcomites might just return the favor.

Humphreys Hall

Humphreys Clinches Frosh Posts

Life is never dull in a freshmen dormitory. Ask any freshman and he will attest to this observation. To this Humphreys is the rule and not the exception. Proves, I suppose, they can't be classified as being odd.

Excellent leadership came from the officers. During the fall semester the officers were: John Geelan, president; Alan Stewart, vice-president; Jerry Powers, secretary and treasurer; and Bill Thomas, social chairman.

Many of the Humphreys residents received scholastic awards from M.I.H.C. This does not in any way indicate that the social calendar was not also a success. A hall dance, several exchange dinners, and drop-ins were prominent events. Of course, a Christmas dinner party was given for many needy children.

Humphreys pep was seen and heard at the rallies and in the big Homecoming events. Hardly able to accomplish the same overt enthusiasm as their Yocum neighbors, they tried with their all.

In the fields of intramurals many of the men were able to participate in the varied activities: basketball, football, and tennis are only a few of the higher ranking ones.

Mixed company in Humphreys could result in more lost than a card game.

William House

William Takes Scholarship Honors

Scholarship is always a primary concern of the men of William House. This year they maintained their grade level at the point that gave them a first rating in the dormitory division. This is something they have become accustomed to. In this and many other areas, William was a leader in the men's residence hall area.

Led by these officers, Mike Atkinson, president; David Grimmett, vice-president; and R. Wayne Martin, secretary and treasurer, William participated in all of campus life.

Various organizations represented were Tau Beta Pi, Phi Eta Sigma, Sigma Pi Sigma, Alpha Kappa Psi, Alpha Zeta, Phi Mu Alpha, Pi Mu Epsilon, and Kappa Kappa Psi to name a few.

A childrens Christmas Party was given; other social events included a Homecoming dance and M.I.H.C. functions. William House men also participated in Sing-fony and this years Hallaballo. Darrel Rice was loaned by the men to become the co-chairman of the event of the spring semester. This could have been an indication why William scored as it did in many of the events.

The over-all success that the dorm enjoyed was due in part to its fine campus representation and work of Head Resident Tom Wyrick.

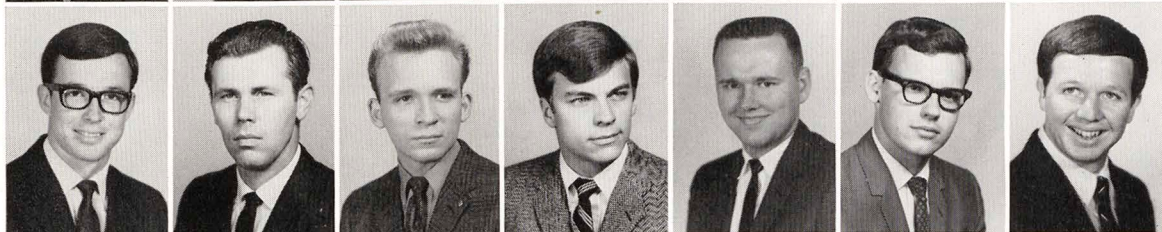

The University's scholarly Fine Arts lab taught students what they learned in the first grade.

Sedgewell House

Sedgewell Campaigns Against Fire

Sedgewell House residents witnessed one of the most active semesters of the house's history under the leadership of the fall semester officer grouping: Larry Ludwig, President; Joe Martine, Vice President; Herschel Cast, Secretary; John Watkins, Treasurer; and Bill Nielsen, Social Chairman.

One of the highlights of the year was a Homecoming dance which the men of Sedgewell co-sponsored. Other social activities included various drop-ins, open houses, and a Christmas party for local underprivileged children.

Under the direction of intramural manager Arthur

Bowie, Sedgewell continued its record of full active participation in intramural sports. This group has long been known for a great volleyball involvement and contest skills.

The men of Sedgewell participated actively in campus activities, including M.I.H.C. and National Association of College and University Residence Hall functions. Jim Burnett served as a delegate to the N.A.C.U.R.H. Convention at Penn State and Charles Drake was treasurer of M.I.H.C. Ranking high on campus scholastically, the men of Sedgewell were as outstanding in many honor fraternities and service groups.

Wilson Sharp

HOGS promote Sportsmanship

Wilson Sharp House has seen more than its share of excitement over the years as the campus home of the Arkansas Razorbacks. A carefully-planned social schedule is worked out each year with Mrs. Karle Smith, House mother. These play an important role in planning drop-ins after the home football games and various other activities.

The social season usually climaxes with an important final conference football or basketball victory. Even though a Bowl game was not on this year's agenda, the Porkers had more than their share of total victories.

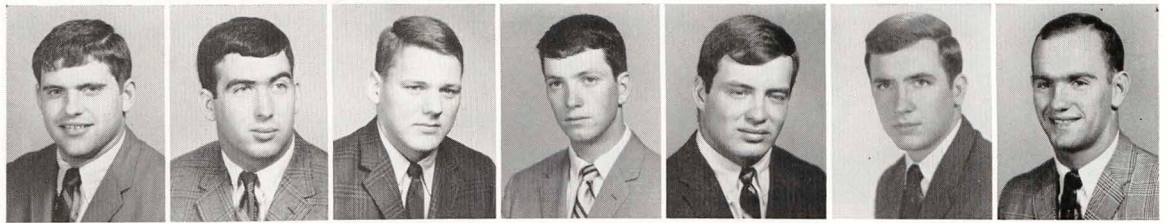

The leadership of Wilson Sharp encourages as much participation in as many campus activities as possible. Although some 125 athletes live in Wilson Sharp or the Ripley House annex, all of the scholarship athletes (including the married ones) are invited to take part in its programs.

This routine, by nature, requires that the various athletes maintain a basic level of scholastic achievement while they take part in all the various demanding routines of campus life, arduous schedule of athletic participation, and grinding requirements for hero admiration.

Yocum Hall

Yocum Captures Spirit Awards

By far the best! Each year seems to outdo the preceding year in some honor. This year Yocum welcomed the first centennial class to the Fayetteville campus. And with this group came a new breed of spirit and enthusiasm.

Even when parts of our football spirit faded, Yocum sparked a new flame and won the A.B.C. spirit awards presented at each pep rally.

Participation in intramural sports was also an important extracurricular activity for the men of Yocum. In the dorm division, Yocum placed several of its floor athletes in the top rankings. This did not include regular horseplay and boisterous fun.

But, Yocum did not forget an active social life for her men. Highlights were the dance for Casino Carnival, Homecoming activities, Singfony, Christmas parties and social interest in Hallaballoo '68.

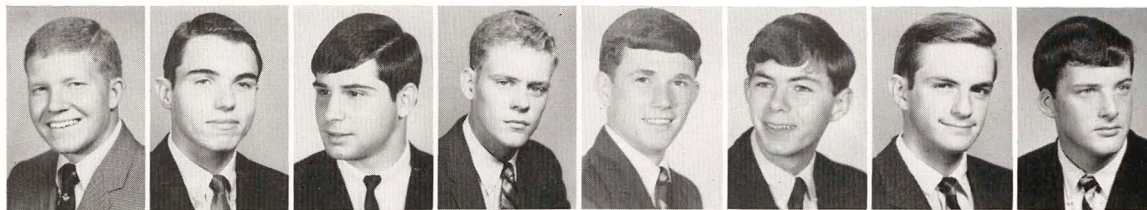

Scholastically, Yocum Hall represented a high grade point average with many of the residents compiling a 3.0 or better. Not bad for a group of this new and lively breed!

Officers were: President Norman "Put" Wilber, Vice President Dennis Watson, Secretary-Treasurer Roger Gorton, and Social Chairman Don Harris.

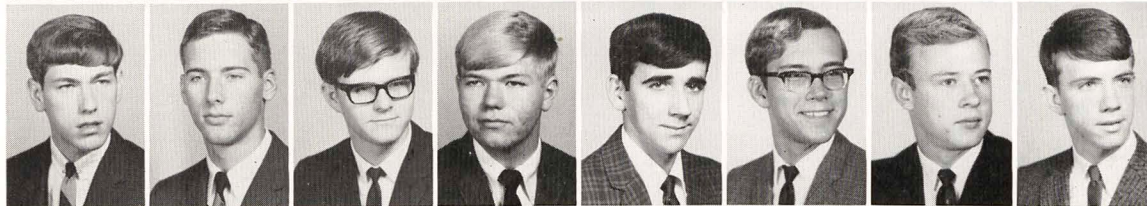

Yocum celebrated the U of A's first centennial class. Even with such facilities as showers and running water, this freshman finds the welcome more than he can stand as he leaves.

Coed Complex

Coed Is New Housing Innovation

In its first year, Coed Complex prided itself in many activities. Social functions ranged from faculty teas to receptions and dinners for the speakers of Symposium '68. The highlight of the fall semester was the Christmas Formal, while spring brought spontaneous dances and the Spring Formal. Awards included second place in Singphony and third place in Homecoming floats.

Steve Page, Kay Thomas, Brenda Blagg, T. J. Patterson, Steve Briggs, Brenda Hemenway, and Dave Martin were tapped for Tau Alpha Upsilon; Sharon Montee, Joyce Plumber, and Susan Sisco were in Alpha Lambda Delta, with Susan as vice-president. Judy Graves and Carolyn Holcomb were selected for Who's Who, and T. J. Patterson was picked co-editor of the 1969 RAZORBACK. Jane Dial and Nancy Bucy were Hallaballoo hostesses. Donna Wolf was alternate cheerleader and a member of Angel Flight. Nancy Bucy and Diane Carpenter were selected RAZORBACK beauties. Diane was also an ROTC sponsor officer.

Coed made an outstanding mark on campus.

Coed, like the library, was not completely finished when school began. Most people did not mind, others expressed a desire for elevators. Ladders sufficed for a while.

AGR's cultivate a good time at their annual Pink Rose Formal held this spring.

Alpha Gamma Rho

AGR Has Growing Year in New Home

Alpha Gamma Rho represents a unique concept in the Greek system at the University of Arkansas — that of the social professional fraternity. Alpha Iota chapter carries this concept to its ultimate end — a well rounded fraternity.

AA intramurals were won by the Rho's as was the Red Cross Blood Drive. Many AGR's are serving in campus activities. Walter Goin serves in Cardinal XX and is chairman of the Student Employment Board. Stan Wingert, Alan Pack, Galen Bryant, Don McCaskill, Jim McCoy, and James Aikman were tapped for Omicron Delta Kappa. Bill O'Bar represents AGR in Blue Key. Stan Wingert, Jim McCoy, and Aron Tallent are in Phi Eta Sigma. Larry McCain is editor of the Arkansas Agriculturist. Joe McBride is treasurer of YRC and a member of the U of A Debate team. Galen Bryant is president, James Aikman is treasurer, and Wayland Holloway is secretary of Alpha Tau Alpha. Dan Kennett is the senior senator from the College of Agriculture. Bill Moss is in Alpha Kappa Psi.

Social life at Alpha Gamma Rho included the Dad's Day Dance, Pledge Dance, Homecoming Dance, Pink Rose Formal, several outings in the spring, as well as drop-ins and exchange dinners. These were highlighted by the Outer Limits Party.

AKL was also represented on the Fayetteville Chamber of Commerce, had two members on the Student Senate, and four members in Tau Beta Pi. AKLs were also active in Theta Tau, Phi Eta Sigma, Alpha Kappa Psi and Scabbard and Blade.

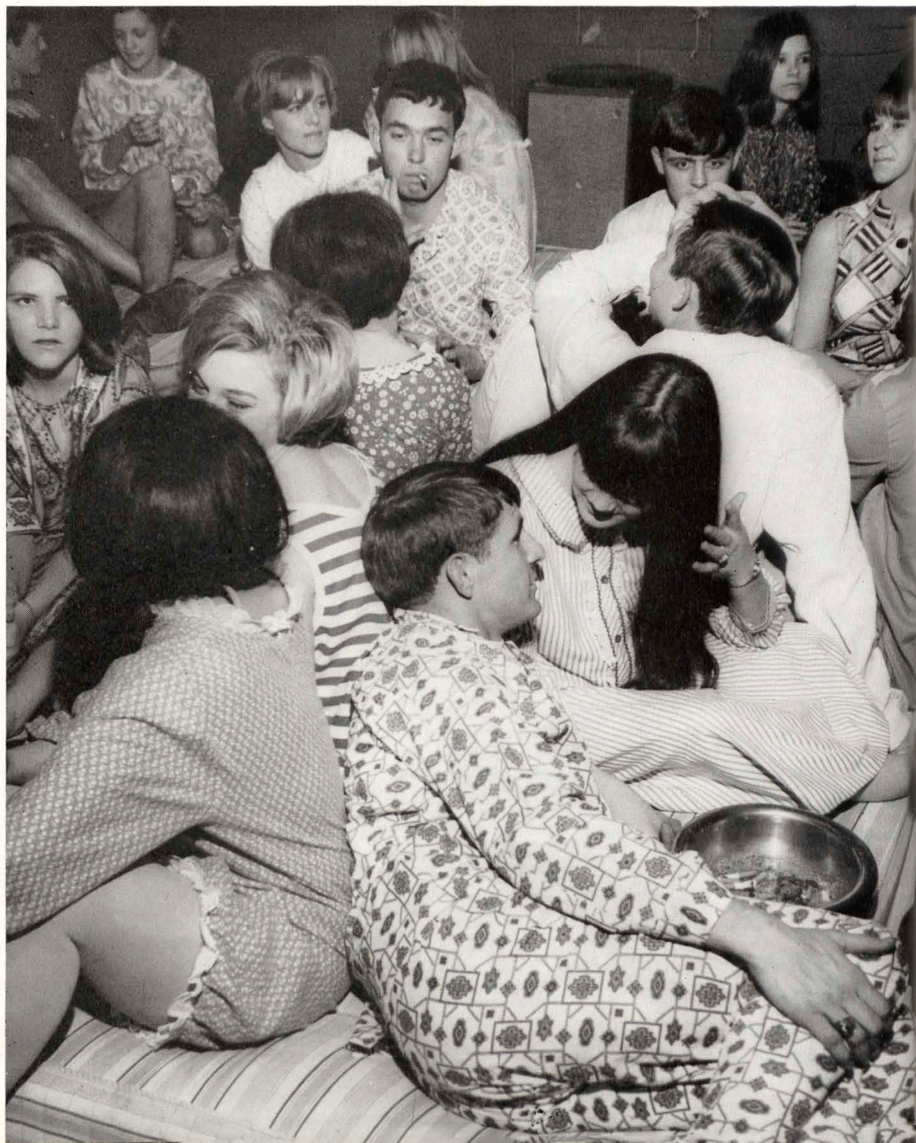

Socially, the year was highlighted by the annual Yellow Rose Formal and the "Go to Hell with AKL" party. Numerous outings and drop-ins were held along with the Dad's Day Dance, Homecoming Dance, Pajama Party, Pledge Dance and Halloween Dance.

For the second consecutive year Alpha Kappa Lambda took first place in the Homecoming festivities, with their float "Beat Their Brains Out."

Farmhouse

Another Scholarship First For FH

Farmhouse fraternity "builds men" by stressing faith in God, loyalty among its members, and superior scholarship.

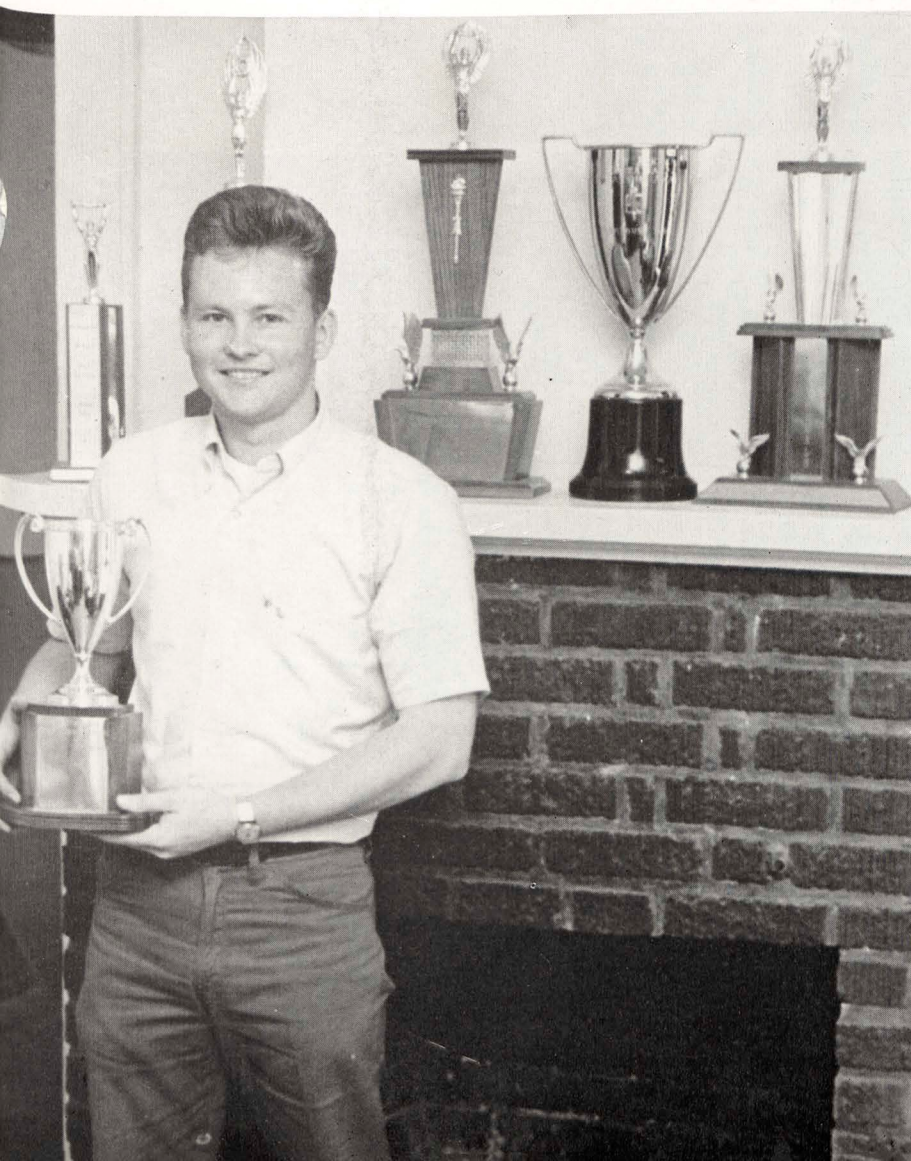

Reaffirming its academic superiority, the men of Farmhouse had the highest grade point of any living group on campus with 50 percent of its members on the Dean's List or honorable mention.

Farmhouse men holding main offices in the College of Agriculture are John Snoderly, president of A.S.A.; Wayne Bell, president of A.I. Club and vice president of Ag. Economics Club; Gary Keathley, Alpha Zeta chancellor.

Active in many campus activities, Farmhouse also has officers in Agronomy Club, Entomology Club, and Association of Baptist Students. There are members in other organizations such as Alpha Tau Alpha, Phi Eta Sigma, and the Student Religious Council.

Farmhouse also strives to develop a well-rounded life for its membership. This was done by social activities and athletic competition in Intramurals.

Phi Gamma Delta

Phi Gam Arrives At U of A

When Phi Gamma Delta colonized on November 5, 1967, it became the newest and yet oldest fraternity at the University of Arkansas.

Phi Gam is the oldest national fraternity on campus. The chapter celebrated the national fraternity's 120th anniversary on May 1, 1968.

The celebrated nickname of Phi Gamma Delta is Fiji. The word is a unique manipulation of Phi and Gam.

Phi Gam is already becoming well established with members in many school organizations. These include commander of Arnold Air Society; Law School senator; senior B.A. representative chairman of the student body liason board; past presidents of Coed and Holcombe; and vice-president of ABC pledge. Phi Gam is also represented by a presidential scholar; two members of Phi Eta Sigma; Greek Week College Bowl committee co-chairman; and members of the IFC Liason Board; Alpha Kappa Psi; Circle K, Alpha Phi Omega; and the Student Union Entertainment committee. In varsity sports Fijis were active in baseball and track.

With the end of its first successful year on campus, Phi Gamma Delta looks forward to a bright and exciting future.

The Phi Gam's held their chapter meetings in a dorm just prior to the purchase of their new home.

In the comforts of their new home, these Fiji's found time to relax from a hard day on the Hill.

These men are just now exiting the most unusual basement of any fraternity house on campus!?

ASME Plays Informative Role

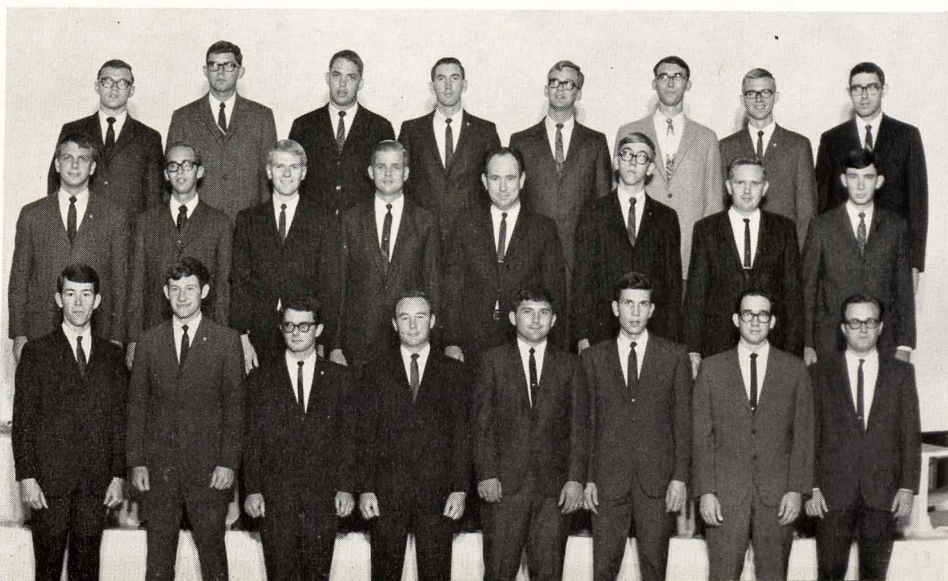

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers again boasted an increase in membership during the 1967-68 year. The purpose of ASME includes the advancement of knowledge of the theory and practice of mechanical engineering. Through various technical meetings and field trips to industrial firms, ASME tries to acquaint the young mechanical engineer with the problems facing industry of today and the possibilities of tomorrow.

ASME activities include joint meetings with parent societies, Open House activities, Engineer's Week events and activities, and regional meetings. ASME and Pi Tau Sigma work together to provide a helping hand to the mechanical engineer.

Pi Tau Sigma is the honorary fraternity for mechanical engineering students, drawing its membership from the top twenty percent of the junior class and the top thirty-five percent of the senior class. Inductees must have faculty approval as to their character and leadership qualities.

The Physical Education Majors club is a group composed of all those students with either a major or a minor in Physical Education who have expressed a concern for the development of their field. The club serves as a contact point for both the students and faculty in the department. Their purposes were to coordinate the professional and social organization in the department, broaden information about and participation in PE, and thereby encourage understanding and professional interests in the field. In their meetings, the members heard several lectures and saw films on new developments and theories in physical education and physical therapy.

Phi U Selects Top Economists

Phi Upsilon Omicron is a national professional home economics fraternity whose members must be at least second semester sophomores and are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and character. Throughout the year, Phi U's members help in many phases of the College of Home Economics' activities. At registration they assist the members of the faculty at the Home Economics table. One of the projects is visiting high schools and encouraging Home Economics students to continue their education in whatever field they desire. Another project is compiling a file of summer jobs that might be available to anyone in Home Economics.

Phi Eta Sigma is a national honorary fraternity for men who receive a 3.5 grade point or better for either the first semester or accumulative over their freshman year. The main purpose of the organization is to bring recognition to freshman achievement; however, members are generally active during their sophomore year. Among the projects carried out this past year by Phi Eta Sigma have been ushering at Symposium '68, helping with Razorback Day, distributing "How To Study" booklets, ushering at Honors Day, and selling Christmas candles on campus. SAE Holds Industrial Exposition

The Society of Automotive Engineers, with the aid of an increased membership, continued to be successful in the aims of the organization in the 1967-68 year. SAE promotes the arts and sciences and engineering practices connected with the design, construction, and utilization of transportation vehicles. The SAE student branch here at the U of A tries to acquaint young engineers with the problems and possibilities of future transportation techniques.

This year SAE again held the Annual Industrial Exposition for U of A students and interested residents of the area. Twelve industrial firms presented outstanding projects to insure the success of the exhibition. Several technical meetings and inspection trips highlighted this successful year.

The Society for the Advancement of Management is a social organization of managers in industry, commerce, government, and education. Once during each semester they sponsor banquet meetings, one of which was the banquet given on Commerce Day. They also organized field trips for their members which included plant tours. During registration for the first and second semesters, the members of SAM operated a bookstore exchange for the buying and selling of books for the students in the College of Business Administration. In addition to these functions, they have worked to promote the aims of business on the campus by assisting BA freshmen and by bringing in guest speakers in the field of business.

Council Rewrites Constitution

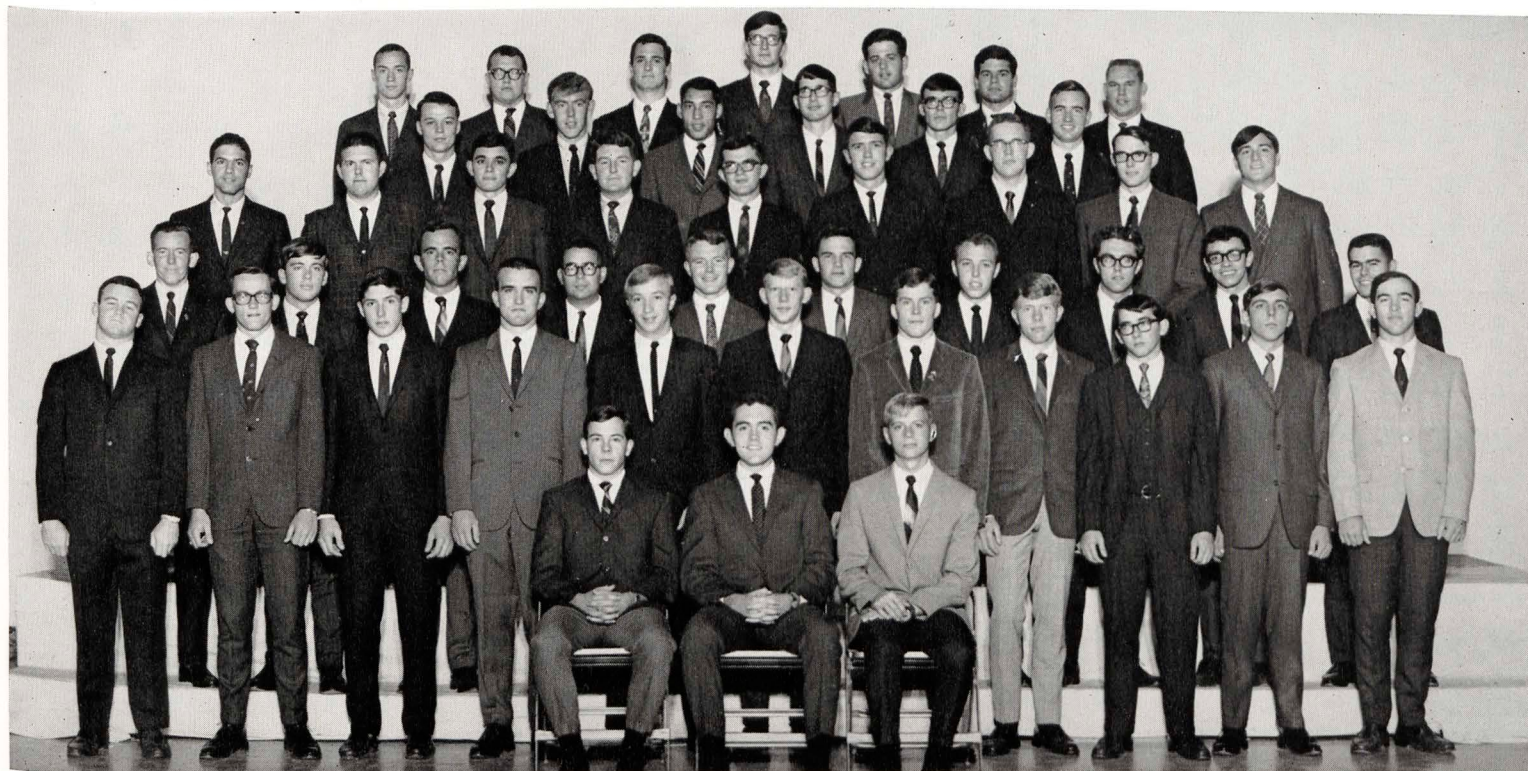

The Men's Sophomore Council is an honorary service organization composed of men chosen during their freshman year. Qualities of leadership ability, high moral standards and an interest in serving others were the prerequisites for membership in the Council. This past year, they aided the University by helping the incoming freshman men adjust to a new college environment. Founded in 1963, their relatively new organizations on campus had as its objective the improvement of relations between the freshman men and the administration.

The Young Democrats Club is a group of University students who express an interest in knowing more about politics and the Democratic Party. It is composed of the Club itself and an Executive Council which planned the program of events for the school year. The Club paid tribute to John F. Kennedy by presenting the film "A Thousand Days: John F. Kennedy in the White House." One of the Club's new members, dissenting Democrat Robert Vaughn, was the final speaker in the first round of Symposium speakers. The Young Democrats also took controversial stands opposing censorship of "Preview" magazine and disaffiliating itself with Info '68, the controversial television program sponsored by the Democratic party chairman in Arkansas. As usual the Club selected its Miss YDC and played a leading role at the state Young Democrats Convention.

Republicans Honor Senator Brooke

The Young Republican Club is for students and faculty members who are interested in learning more about the Republican party and government and want to take a more active part in politics.

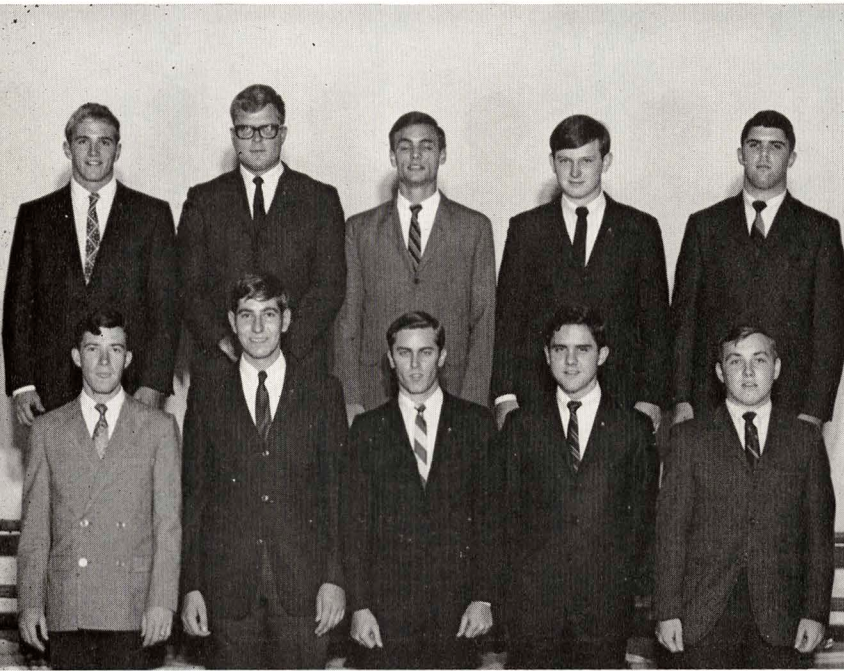

In bi-monthly meetings, besides regular business, the club had speakers from local, state, and national levels. Several projects were completed this year. A petition to lower the voting age to 18 was circulated, a reception for Senator Brooke from Massachusetts was held, and the annual Miss YRC contest was sponsored in April. Plans for beginning a Teen-age Republican Club in Fayetteville and forming a YR club at John Brown University were also made.

Miss YRC and several club delegates attended the convention in Hot Springs, representing the University as the largest club in the state.

Civic Club Sponsors Singfony

The Civic Club, whose members are drawn from each living group on campus, is representative of the entire student body. Representatives are elected by their own living group for one year. Last fall Civic Club sponsored Singfony, and in the spring it held the annual Campus Chest project featuring the Campus Sweetheart and Campus Lover Contests. These two fund-raising projects were similar in many respects to the workings of the United Fund, since the two events took care of all charitable donations for the entire year at the University. As a result, the individual living groups enjoyed immunity from numerous requests from various organizations for donations. The members of the Club itself decided in their meetings how the money should be distributed. At the end of the year, all money collected was proportioned out to the United Fund, Boy Land of Arkansas, and the World University Service.

This year they have solicited enough contributions so that next fall the first annual Tau Beta Pi scholarship will be awarded to a deserving engineering student. In addition Tau Beta Pi makes a cash award each year to the outstanding Freshman engineering student.

Debate Team Goes Abroad

The debate team had an international program. In December, a British team composed of students at Cambridge University and Trinity College debated Arkansas's Randy Marshall and Bill Strickland in a public debate held in Barnhill fieldhouse.

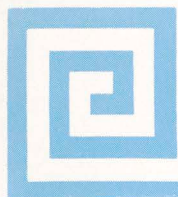

Between semesters Randy Marshall, Steve Millin, Terry Jones, and Bill Strickland debated in Ireland and England and also toured in the Netherlands, Switzerland, and France. Over twenty students participated in tournament competition including the Air Force National Debate Tournament.

The University hosted four debate tournaments including the Southwest Conference Debate Championship. Students from forty-five colleges and universities and from high schools in a five state area participated in these meets. Top debating championships were won by Steve Millins, Phil Love, Terry Jones, Bill Strickland, Phil Boudreaux, Jack Magruder, Steve Hayes, and Vicki Stephens.

Arts

Art—Flower Power for '67-'68

Painting, sculpture, and design encompass the plastic arts of the Fine Arts Department, which is combined with architecture in the Fine Arts Building. Exhibitions offered in the gallery this year have included student and faculty shows as well as exhibitions from other schools such as the University Collects from N.Y.U. For the first annual Fine Arts Festival in the fall, architecture students built a special "Flower Power Tower."

A statue watches over the pond and fountain in the courtyard of the Fine Arts Building.

Bare beams surrounding an architecture student's desk reflect a constant awareness of his art.

One member of this lovely couple at the Beaux Arts Ball is Architecture Department chairman Faye Jones.

Two students walk through an exhibit in the Fine Arts Gallery. The biggest crowd the gallery draws is during intermissions at the theatre.

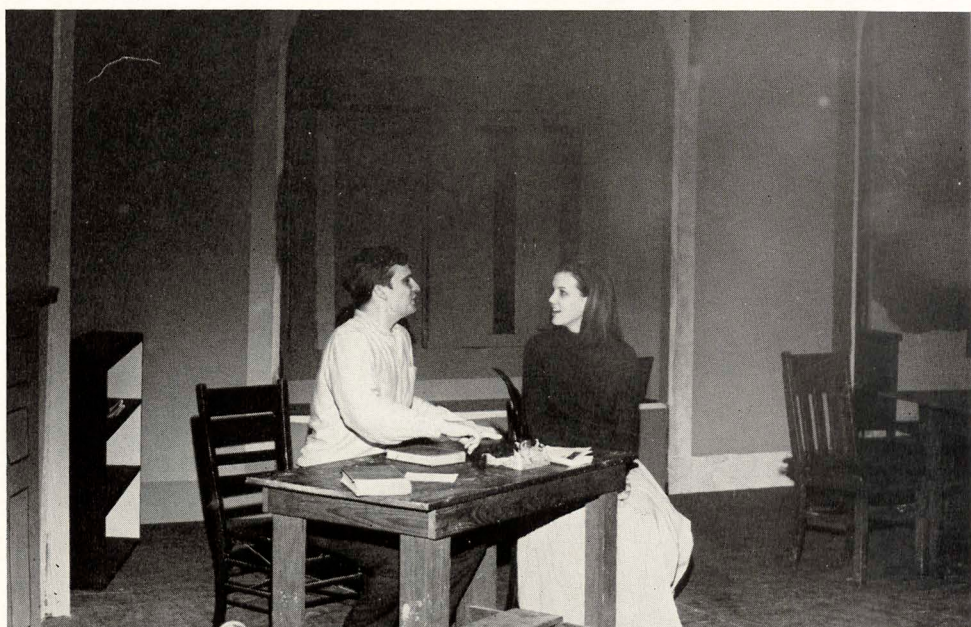

Artists are always neat and tidy, as the sculpture room clearly shows.

Disguised as a countess, Susanna (Sylvia Rose) slaps Figaro (George Frey) in "The Marriage of Figaro."

Lord Fancourt Babberly (Ralph Clift), disguised as Charley's Aunt, faints away as his girlfriend enters the room.

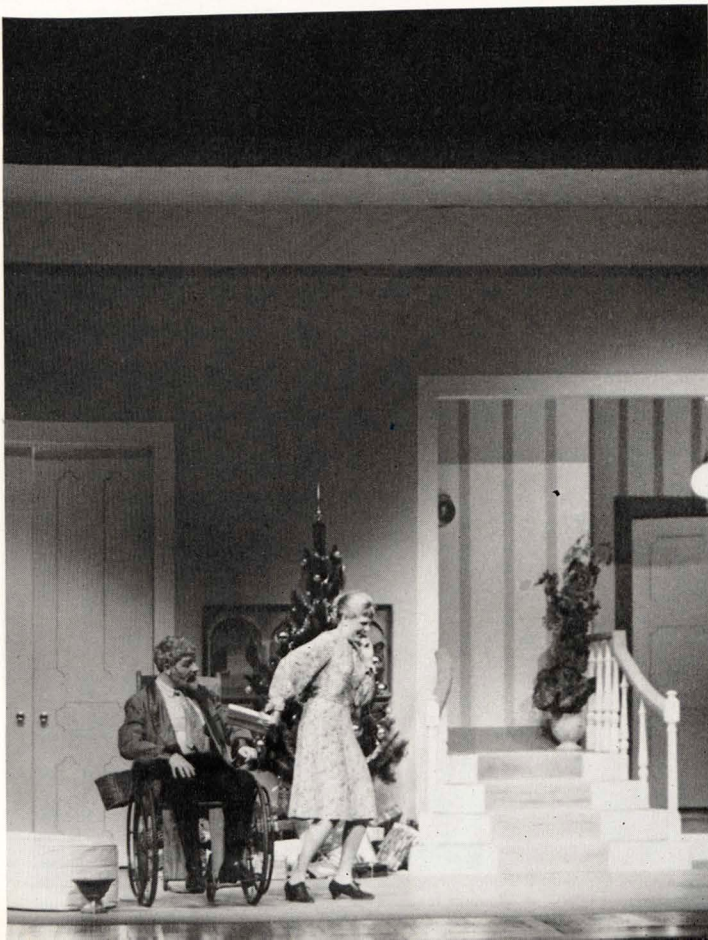

Jack Chesney (Gene Mackey) and Kitty Verdun (Becky Kendrick) discuss the possibilities of marriage in "Charley's Aunt."

... Presenting a Year of Comedy

Special lighting effects and scenery created an illusion of hell in "The Firebugs."

The University Theatre presented a season of a variety of comedies in 1967-68. Brandon Thomas' "Charley's Aunt" was the first production, which ran from October 9-14. Action was the key word as two young men struggled to get together with two girls under the protection of a strict guardian. Cleveland Harrison directed the production.

"The Firebugs" was the highlight of "The Arts '67" festival from November 6-11. This Theatre of the Absurd play by Max Frisch was directed by Norman DeMarco. Considered a revelation of the reactions of the European people confronted by the threat of Hitler, the controversial "Firebugs" is thought both a slapstick farce and a satirical attack against complacency.

The traditional Christmas play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," played on the University stage from December 4-9. Paula Orsborne directed the story of a celebrity who is stranded in a small Ohio town for Christmas. Bobby Wayne Huguart received rave reviews for his portrayal of this character.

Harriet Stanley (Sheryl Mackey) slips a Christmas gift to Sheridan Whiteside (Bobby Wayne Huguart), "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

Theatre

Opera workshop and singers from the Fayetteville area made up the cast of "The Marriage of Figaro," the University's comic opera presentation from February 12-17. Max Worthley directed the performances and Kenneth Ballenger conducted.

A "Theatre-in-the-Round" production, directed by Cleveland Harrison, was performed in March. Using the carnival atmosphere of the round stage which was built on the University stage, Jean Anouilh's "Thieves' Carnival" concerned the complicated efforts of three thieves to make off with the valuables of a rich society woman. Audiences, seated on all four sides of the stage, were treated to an unusual flute commentary throughout the comedy.

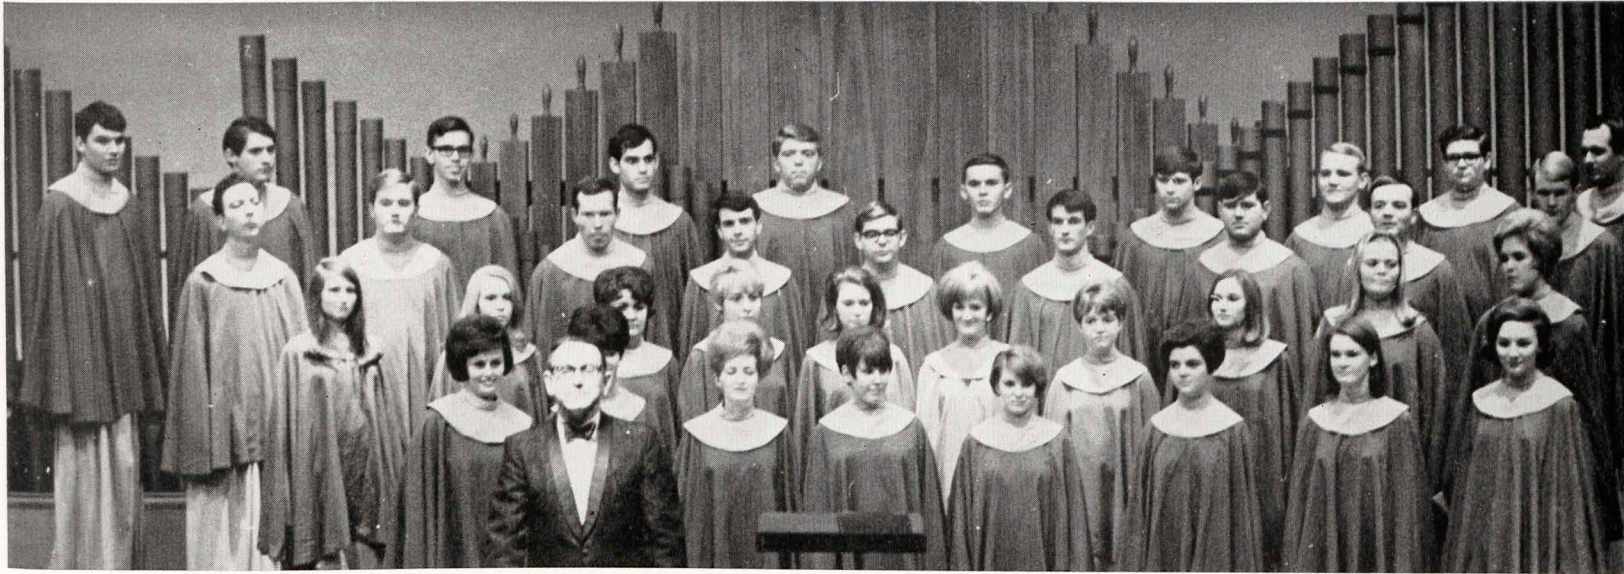

The world of the Mad Hatter and the White Rabbit came alive April 22-27, in "Alice in Wonderland," directed by Norman DeMarco. The cast of 33 performed in elaborate masks in this adaptation of Lewis Carroll's story.

Alice meets the Queen of Hearts in the final University Theatre production, "Alice in Wonderland."

A "theatre in the round" was constructed on the University Theatre stage for "Thieves' Carnival."

Schola Cantorum to Tour Europe

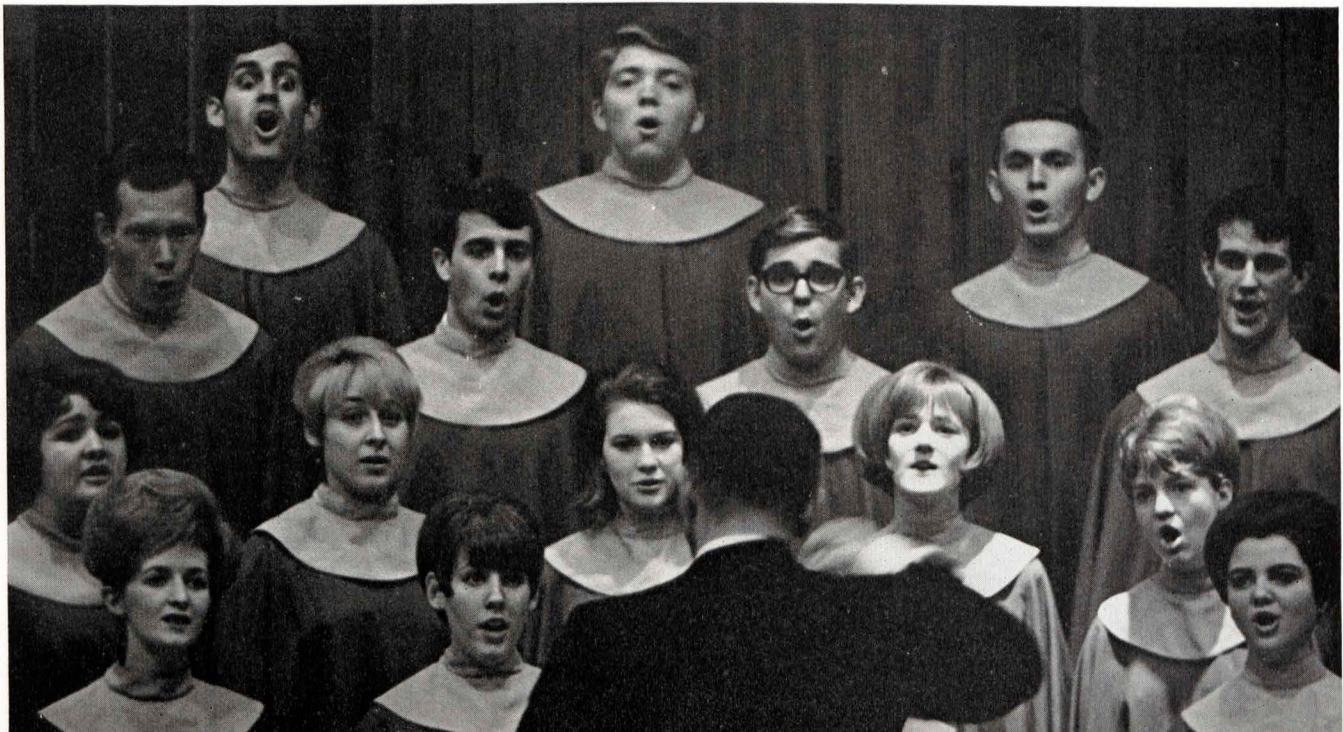

The 38-member Schola Cantorum, under the direction of Mr. Richard Brothers, continued its standard of excellence in 1967-1968. Singing music from all historical periods, the Schola toured the state at Christmas. The group also made a record of their Christmas program.

Highlighting the year will be Schola's trip to Europe in June and July. Touring nine countries, Schola will sing Josquin des Pres' "Mass for Peace" in churches and concert halls throughout Europe. Finances for the trip were partially earned by record sales and donations from sponsors throughout the state.

Schola sang three concerts at the University this year, and represented Arkansas at Expo '67 in Montreal last summer.

Dean Dalton puts a little more soul into his singing than other Schola members.

Consisting of University students, local residents, and faculty members, the University-Fayetteville Symphony appeared throughout the state.

Symphony Presents Five Concerts

The 68-member University-Fayetteville Symphony Orchestra presented five concert programs in the 1967-1968 season. Under the direction of Dr. Marx Pales, the orchestra presented two concerts in October with a guest soloist, cellist Leslie Parnass. In December baritone Kenneth Ballinger was soloist with the Orchestra.

A trip to New Orleans was the outstanding event for the Symphony in the spring. Several educational t.v. programs were taped on this February trip. An orchestral concert in April and a Concerto-Aria program closed the season for the symphony.

Dvorak's "New World Symphony" was presented in a fall orchestral concert.

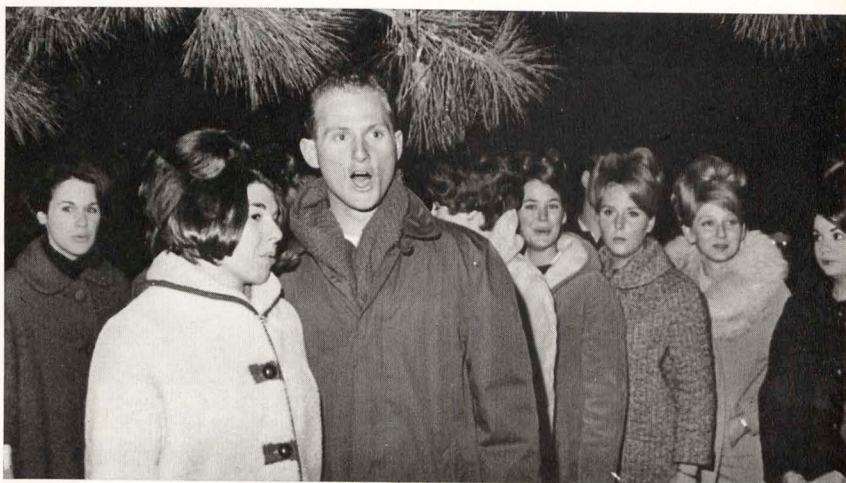

Uarkettes Travel To Mexico

This spring the Uarkettes made a special trip to Mexico City for the Rotary International Convention from May 10-15. In order to earn the money to finance the trip, the troupe performed benefits in Missouri, Mountain Home, and here on the campus on April 26-27.

Mr. Kenneth Ballinger directs the Uarkettes, whose musical talents range from musical comedy vignettes to folk and popular songs to opera selections.

Making an average of 12 performances a semester, the Uarkettes this year appeared on campus at the Christmas tree lighting ceremony in December.

Concert Band Tours Arkansas

University band director Dr. Richard Worthington watches for a Unidentified Flying Object hovering near the ceiling . . .

The seventy-piece University of Arkansas Concert Band under the direction of Dr. Richard A. Worthington and David G. Pittman highlighted the year with its biennial tour of Arkansas civic and high school concerts. Performances in Fayetteville included such nationally-famous guest artists as Dr. Leonard Falcone, Director Emeritus of the Michigan State University Band, and Don Kraemer, Director of Bands at Little Rock University.

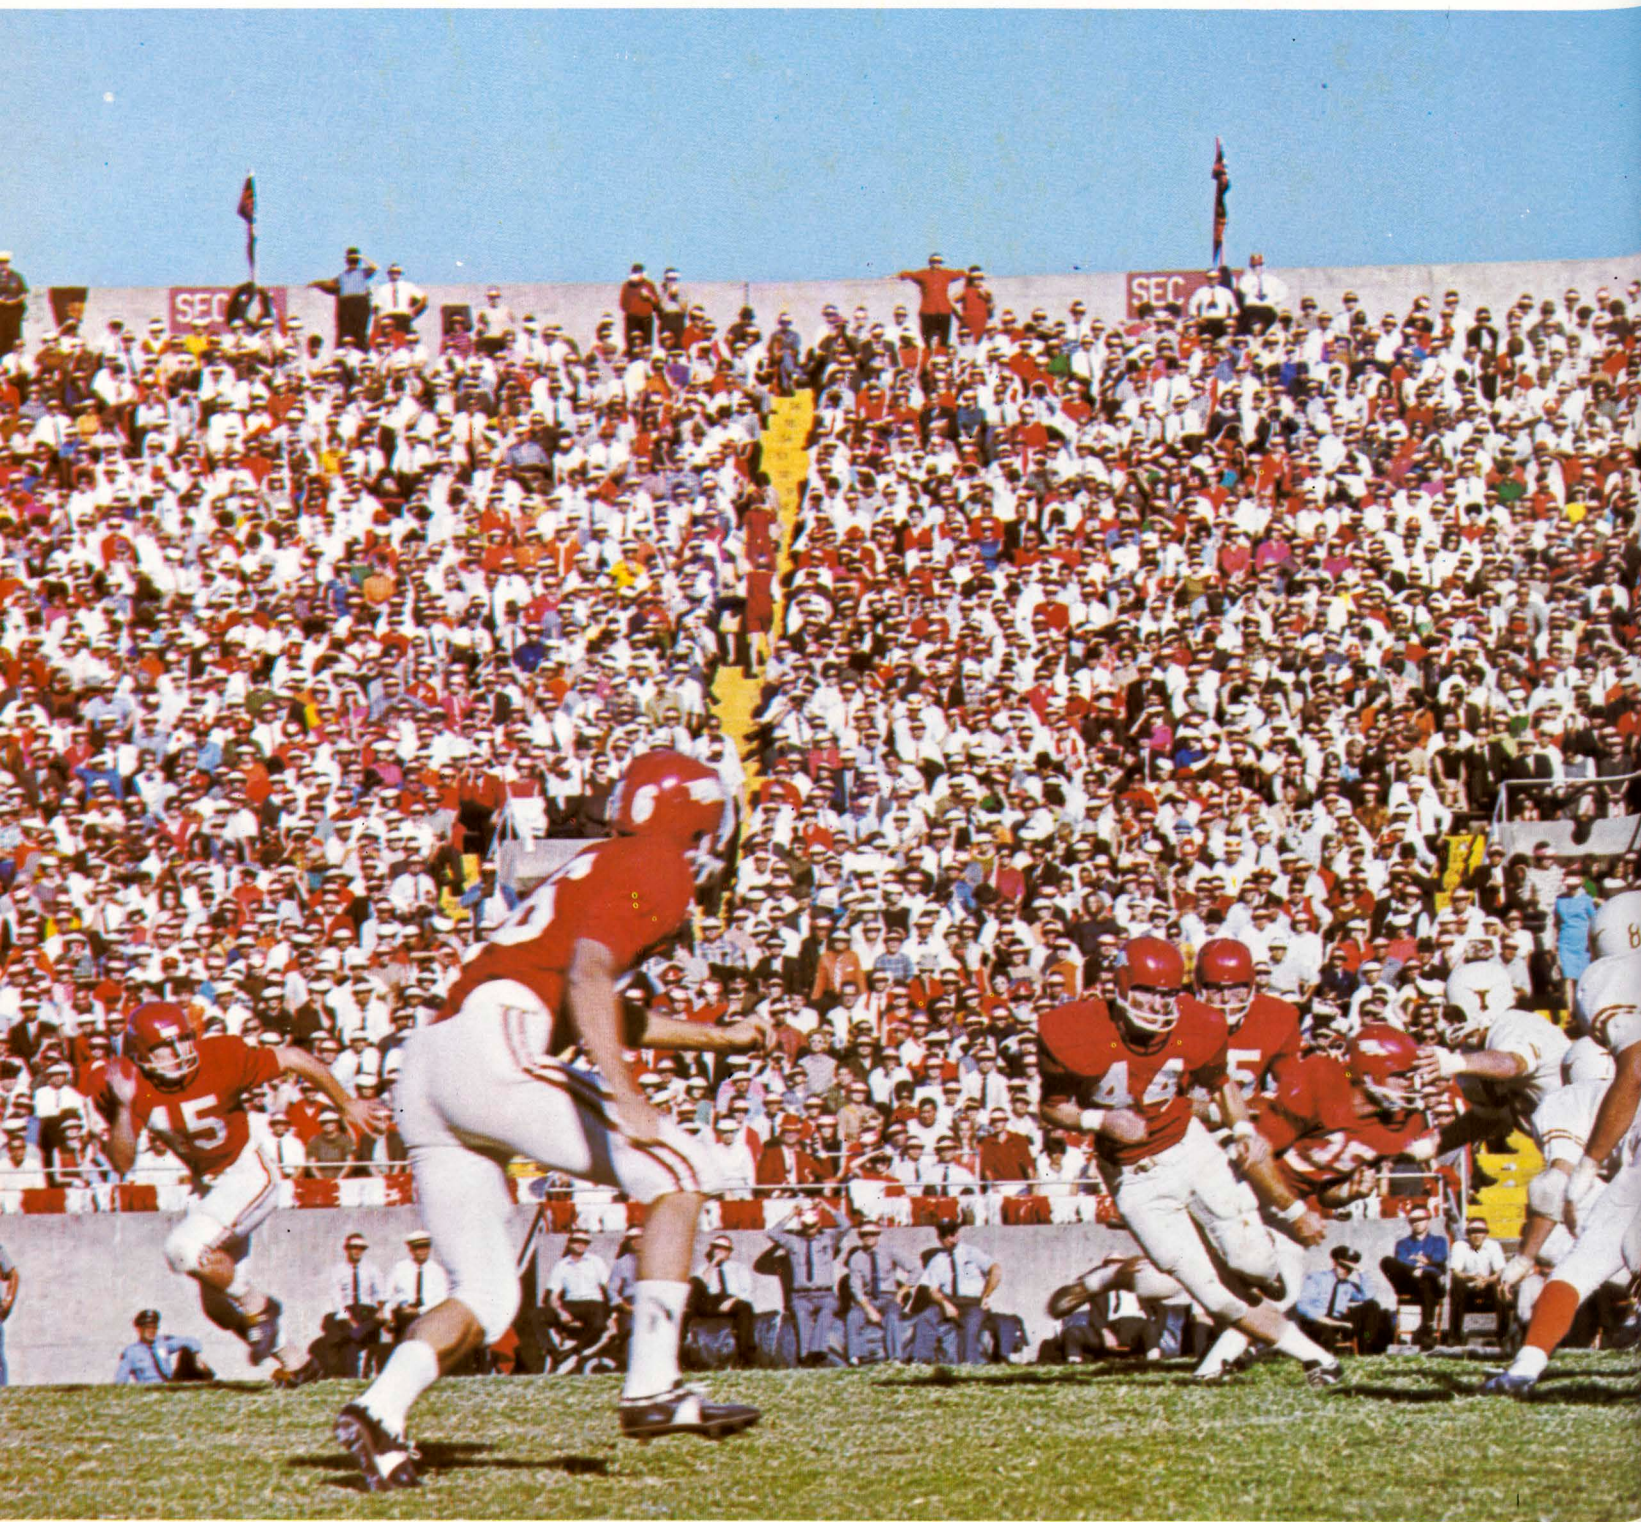

With a challenging repertoire that included the contemporary "George Washington Bridge" by William Schumann, the Overture to "Colas Breugnon" by Dmitri Kabalevski, and the "Symphonic Dance Number Three" by Arkansas' Clifton Williams, the band earned the acclaim of directors and audiences across the state.

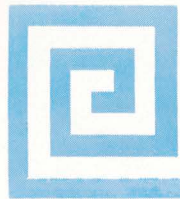

In addition to the University Concert Band, the spring semester also includes the University Varsity Band and activities by Kappa Kappa Psi and Tau Beta Sigma, National Honorary Band Fraternities.

Any goofing-off ended in the effort required for a concert performance.

. . . but later returns to the serious business of directing a rehearsal.

Sports

A part of Razorback athletics since 1946, Athletic Director John Barnhill has made his mark on sports at the University of Arkansas.

Barnhill Builds Coaching Staff

In ten short years Frank Broyles has led his Razorbacks into national football prominence. He heads the dynasty.

Assistant Athletic Director George Cole adds a personal touch to get things done.

This year has had special significance for the man who has guided U of A athletics for the past 22 years.

It is because of John Barnhill, Director of Athletics, that Arkansas has, for the first time, had a full-time professionally-qualified coach for each sport in the rapidly expanding program. And with this comes a positive plan for recruiting, instruction and improved scheduling.

Assistant Athletic Director George Cole, prepared for his job by a lifetime of Razorback athletics, has been Barnhill's right-hand man in making Razorback athletics what they are today.

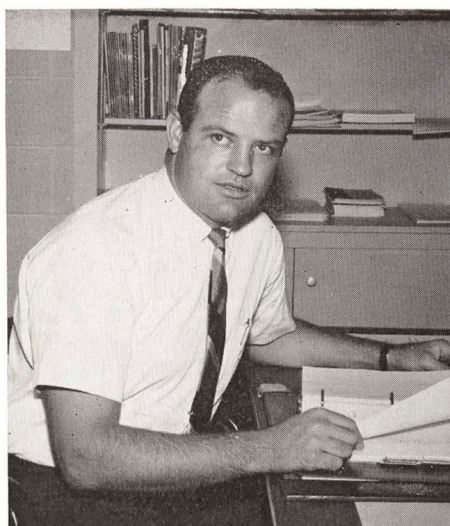

Barnhill's long-range program came of age when an energetic young coach named Frank Broyles took over the helm of Arkansas football.

Duddy Waller became head basketball coach as another step in Barnhill's plans to make Arkansas a respected power in the world of college athletics.

The dynasty is growing.

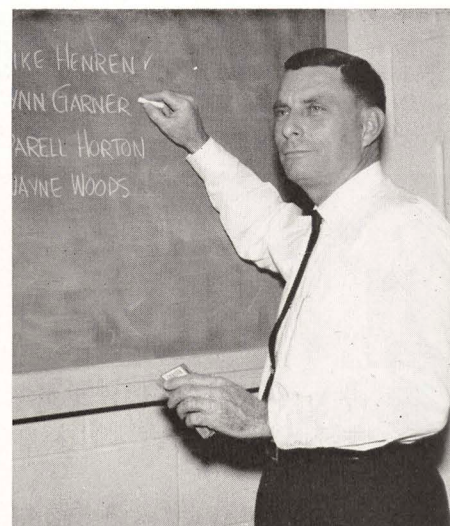

P. T. (Duddy) Waller, in his second season as head basketball coach, is building his brand of Razorbacks into SWC title contenders.

Wallace Martin supervised the track team this year. He replaced Ab Bidwell who is now in charge of Programs and Concessions.

Lynwood Cathey served as assistant basketball coach to Duddy Waller. He also coached the freshmen.

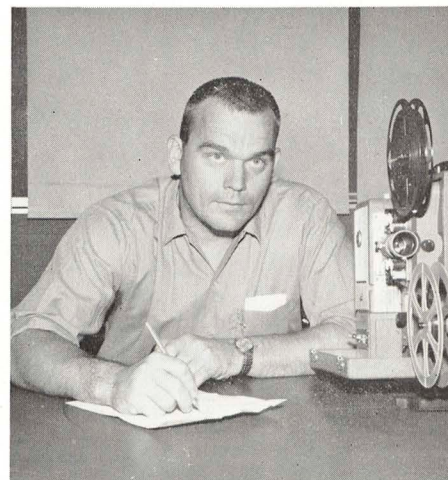

Jim Bone kept all the athletes going this year from his position in the training room as head trainer. He took over after the tragic death of Bill Ferrell. No assistant has been named to him yet.

Hogs Get Experience, Look To Next Season

It was a rebuilding year at Arkansas.

Following an 8-2 season that many Arkansas fans found disappointing, the young Razorbacks were forced to swallow many a bitter pill.

The absence of experience, and the big play that results from experience, plagued the Porkers from the humiliating openers to the final crushing blow of losing a Liberty Bowl bid on regional television.

Fans unaware of the other side of the coin sat silent after the initial loss to OSU. The Hogs had jumped to an early lead. Then they watched it disintegrate, losing 7-6.

The same was true in the Tulsa game. The Hogs were able to gain an initial advantage, but were unable to hold on for the win. It was like a nightmare for the Hogs, who have come to expect opponents to make the mistakes. This year it was a new story.

Changes were made. Ronny South, plagued by lack of spring training, was replaced by sophomore John Eichler. Things seemed to tick better — the Hogs were able to convincingly handle TCU on Dad's Day. But even then the Hogs seemed doomed, losing Eichler to injury.

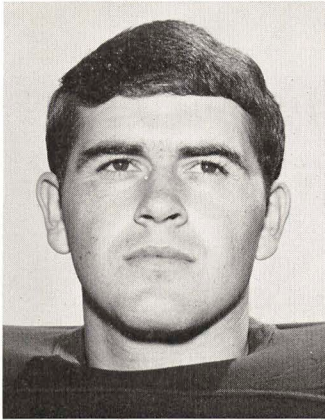

The Hogs were forced to accept the fact that one game does not a season make. Trying for an unprecedented four wins in a row over Texas, the Hogs fought valiantly, only to fall short. Ronny South replaced Eichler in the third quarter and did what the pre-season polls said he could. Taking to the air, the Hogs tied the score. But there was just too much Horn for the Hogs to handle.

The Hogs then put together wins over Kansas State, Rice and SMU, interrupted only by a very disheartening loss to A&M in the Homecoming game. The Hogs again jumped to an early advantage only to lose their Homecoming in the last quarter.

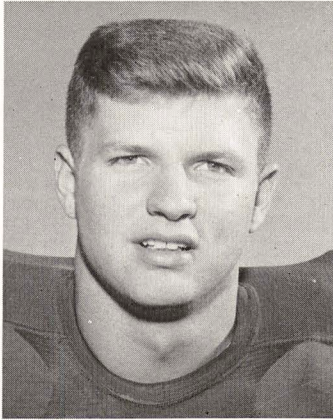

But the wins in the next two weeks over Rice and SMU put new hopes in the Hogs. It seemed that all they had to do to earn the bowl bid that had seemed out of the question earlier was to beat Texas Tech. And they almost did.

The game was proof that lightning does strike twice in the same place. The Hogs kept the Raiders on the ropes for three quarters and could almost hear the Liberty Bell ringing. And then an intercepted pass ruined the dream. It was a stunning sequel to last year.

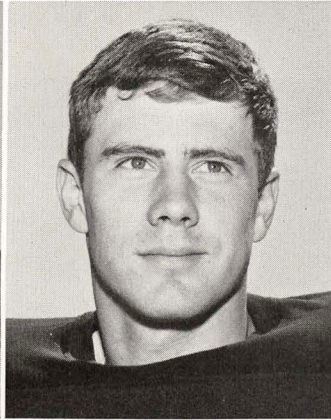

All in all it was an unusual year. Few years could be so affected by changing such a small number of plays. It is easy to compare to past years, but more difficult to look optimistically to next year. With so many returning Hogs, 1968 could just be the best year yet.

Cowboys Rustle Hogs In Opener, 7-6

53,000 fans called the Hogs louder than ever before during the game, but sat silently thereafter as the Razorbacks lost their opener to the Cowboys of OSU by the score of 7-6.

The Razorbacks seemed doomed from the start when they had to settle for field goals instead of touchdowns. This allowed OSU to squeeze the one point margin on a touchdown by Jack Reynolds and an extra point.

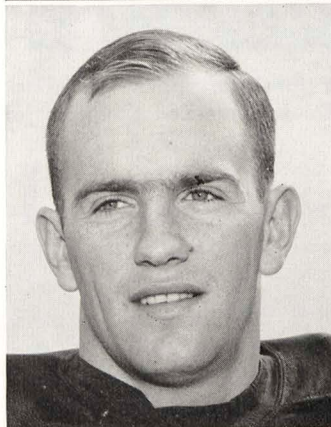

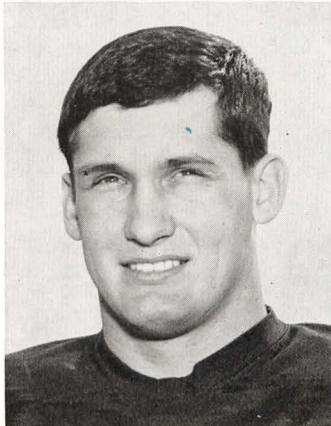

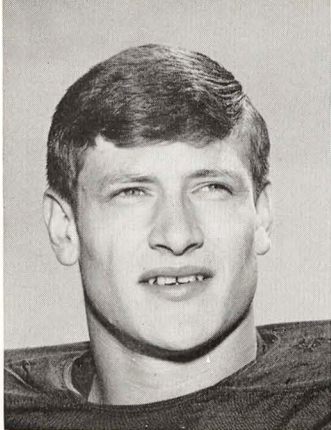

After the game Coach Broyles remarked that the game bore out the fact that games are lost and not won.

Evil Winds Blow Hogs Off Course

The Razorbacks, playing the majority of the game without the aid of All-SWC defensive end Hartford Hamilton, dropped another squeaker to the University of Tulsa by the score of 14-12. This was the first time ever that a Tulsa team had beaten a Frank Broyles coached Razorback team.

Hog scores were on runs by David Dickey and Russell Cody. Both Tulsa TD's were produced by sophomore quarterback Mike Stripling.

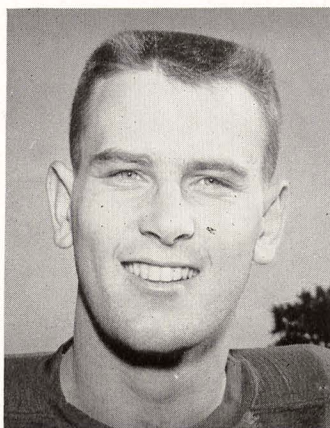

Again, the big difference was inexperience. Also, the Hogs failure to control the Hurricane running attack helped the Tulsa team. This was Arkansas' second loss by less than a field goal.

Hogs Treat Dads To Win Over TCU

In his first game as a Razorback starter, John Eichler piloted the Hogs to an impressive 26-0 victory over TCU in a rainy Dad's Day encounter.

Eichler treated the fans to a 76 yard scoring quarterback sneak, posting the longest run of the year for a Razorback.

Other scores came on a one yard plunge by David Dickey, a two yard jaunt, again by Dickey, a field goal by Bob White, and a safety.

The big difference in this and other Razorback games was team unity. The win marked the first for the Razorbacks.

TCU's defense was on top of things for at least this part of the afternoon. At least it seems that way to this smothered Razorback.

Razorbacks Hogtie Baylor 10-10

Bob White kicked a 29 yard field goal with 37 seconds left in the game to give the Razorbacks a tie with the Baylor Bears. The score was 10-10. This was the first tie in the Frank Broyles era.

The game was marred by poor defensive play by the Razorbacks. The Razorbacks took an early lead but again failed to hold it.

The one Porker touchdown was set up by a pass interception by Tommy Trantham. The Hogs scored four plays later on a two yard run by David Dickey.

All together, the Porkers rushed for 258 yards, while Baylor moved 298 on the ground.

Dynamic Duo Too Much For Hogs

The Texas Longhorns continued their domination of the SWC second oldest rivalry by defeating the Razorbacks 21-12 before a capacity crowd in Little Rock. The game was nationally televised.

This places Texas ahead of Arkansas 36-13 in the series that dates back to 1903. In the current series, Frank Broyles trails Darrell Royal 6-4.

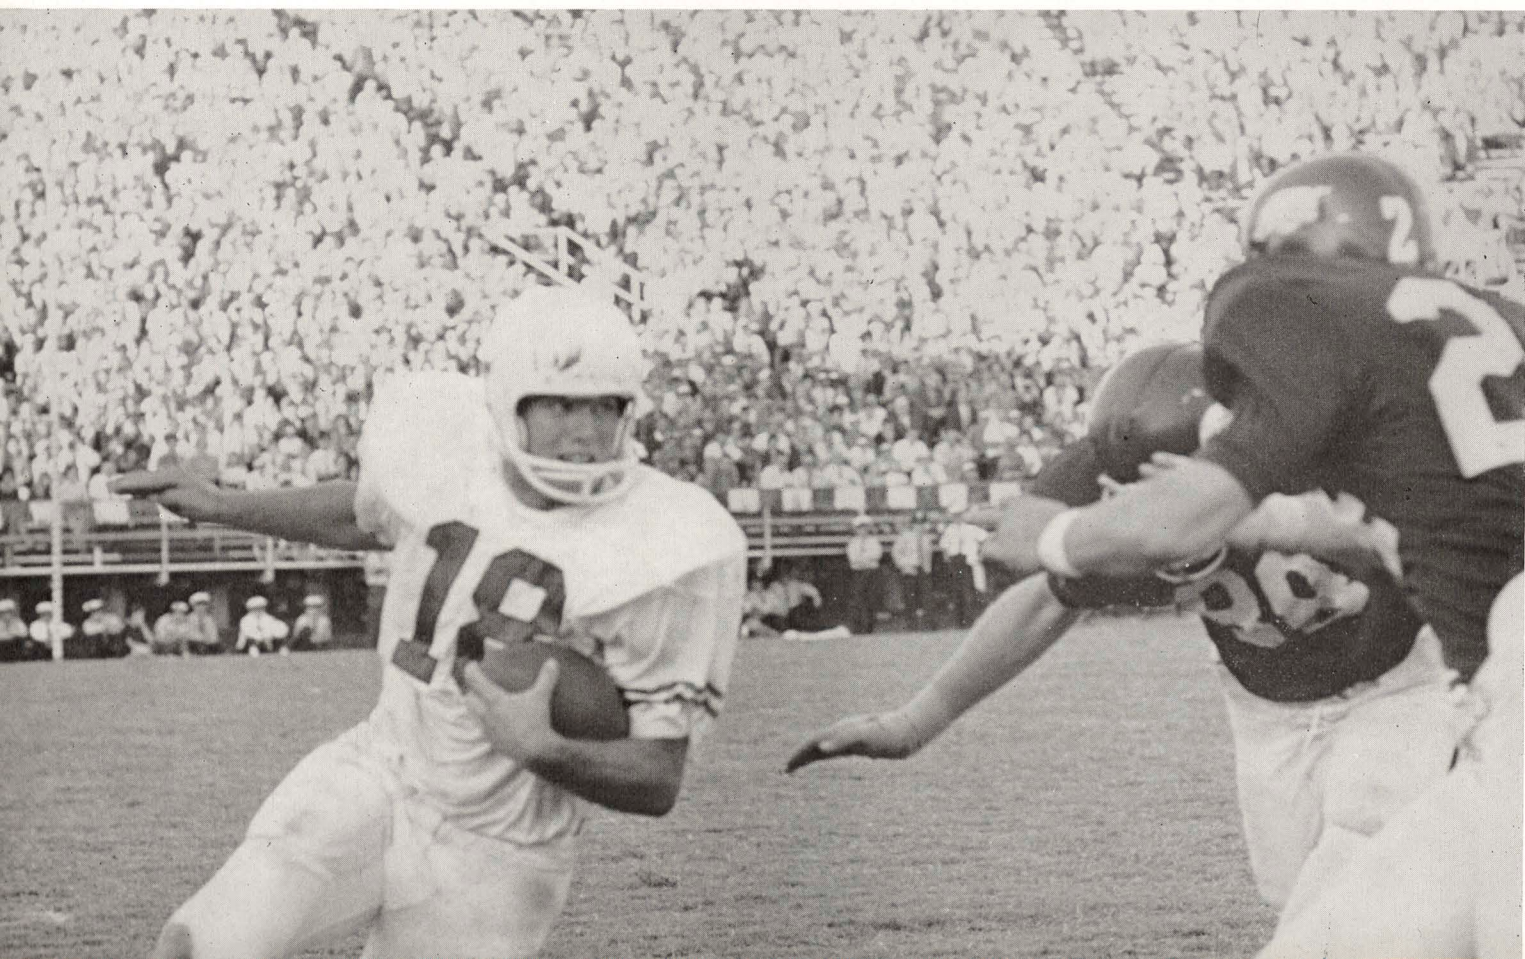

Chris Gilbert and Bill Bradley continued their reign as the most lethal one-two punch in the SWC, piling up 249 yards between them.

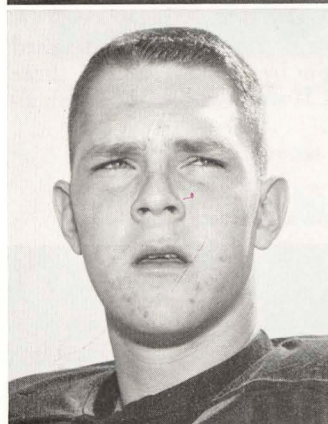

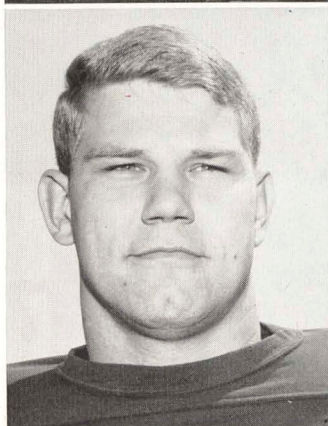

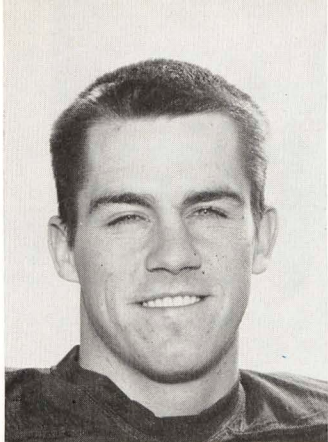

During the game, Texas intercepted five Arkansas passes. Arkansas recovered four Texas fumbles, while losing only one.

The loss spoiled Arkansas' present chances to become the only team ever to defeat a Royal coached team four times in a row.

Arkansas scored first on a one yard plunge by David Dickey. Then Texas blocked an Arkansas punt at the twenty and scored two plays later on a run by Gilbert.

After the half, Texas came roaring back, with Gilbert capping the drive on a ten yard run over tackle. Gilbert and Bradley accounted for all but one yard of the 52 yard drive.

The other Razorback touchdown came on an eight yard pass from South to Hendren, after South had replaced Eichler.

After an on side kick that failed, the Longhorns maneuvered the ball from the fifty with Gilbert again scoring from the twelve.

Razorbacks Hogwash Wildcats 28-7

The superb running of David Dickey and Mike Hendren and the passing of John Eichler helped Arkansas smash Kansas State 28-7.

The victory was a costly one, however, with Eichler dislocating two bones in his foot, disabling him for the rest of the year.

Arkansas's first touchdown was set up by an interception by Tommy Trantham. Dickey capped the drive with a four yard run.

Other Hog touchdowns came on runs of one yard by Dickey, two yards again by Dickey, and a three yard run by Larry Watkins. It was Watkins' first touchdown ever as a Razorback.

The win was Arkansas' second of the year.

Aggies Leave Hogs Defenseless

The Frank Broyles domination over the Texas A&M Aggies came to an abrupt halt as Edd Hargett sparked a late drive and posted a 33-21 victory over the Razorbacks before a capacity Homecoming crowd in Razorback Stadium. The Hogs had won nine straight over the Aggies.

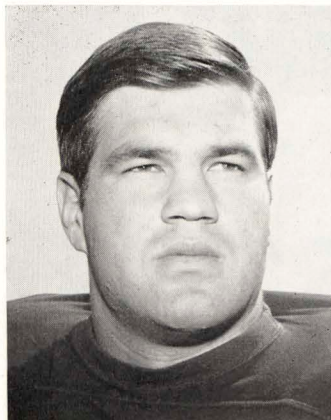

Not since 1961 have the Hogs given up more than 33 points. The great weakness in the game was Arkansas' defense.

During the game, Ronnie South hit 18 of 22 passes for 205 yards. It was one of the best performances in the career of the senior quarterback. The win was A&M's stepping stone to the Cotton Bowl.

Under rainy skies, the Razorbacks scored a turn-about victory over Rice. It was Rice's Homecoming. The score was 23-9.

The Hogs took their usual early game lead on a 44 yard field goal by Bob White. Four plays later, Ronny South found Max Peacock alone in the end zone for Arkansas' second score.

Frankly Enraged, Hogs Clip Ponies

The Razorbacks blasted SMU 35-17 in this year's game in Dallas. However, on the same weekend, they lost all hopes of a Cotton Bowl bid when Texas lost to TCU.

The game was sparked by the action of a usually sedate Frank Broyles. Broyles burst onto the field after a disputed call.

Scoring for Arkansas was taken care of by Dickey, Max Peacock, Mike Sigman and Hartford Hamilton, who caught SMU's Mike Livingston in the end zone for a first quarter safety.

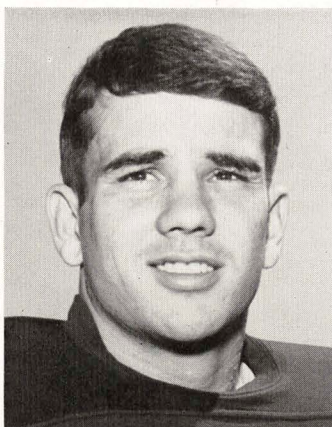

The blast by Broyles apparently helped, for it sparked the rally that helped the Hogs win.

Porkers Lose Liberty Bowl Chance

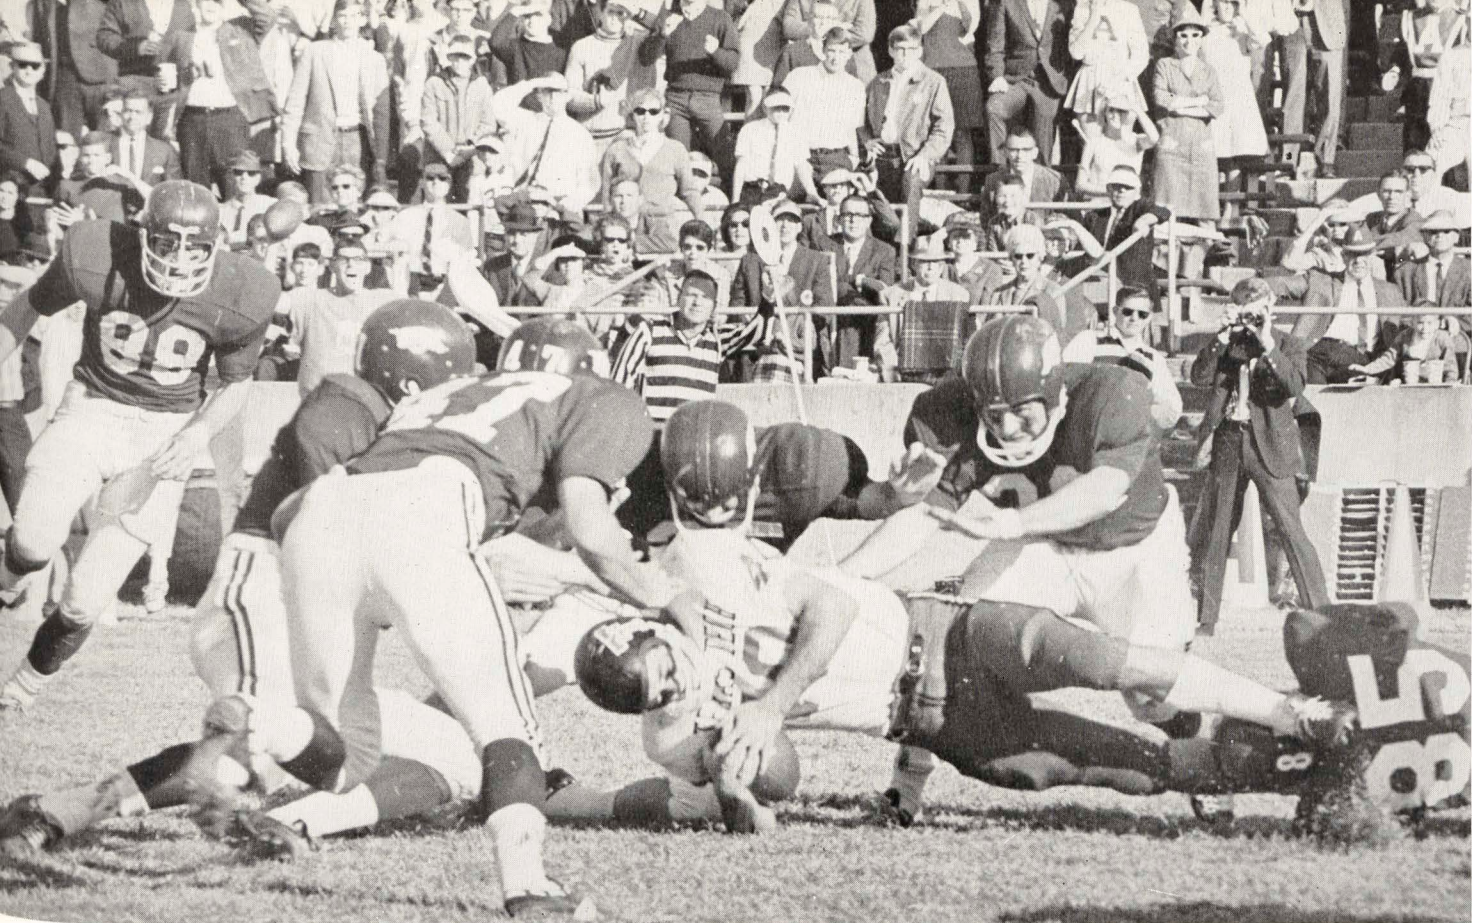

The Razorbacks watched all hopes of a bowl bid of any kind go out the window as they dropped the final game of the season to Texas Tech by the score of 31-27.

The Porkers, who trailed 24-0 at one time in the regionally televised game, fought back to 24-14, before a wild South pass was intercepted by Jim Moylan who raced 31 yards for a touchdown. This play, which turned out to be the turning point in the game, was the same way that the Raiders were able to beat the Hogs last year. The loss last year also kept the Hogs home on New Year's Day.

Two new Arkansas records were set in the game. Ronny South, in his best performance as a Razorback, completed 18 out of 33 passes for a total of 335 yards. Tailback David Dickey also tied a record held by Bobby Burnett for career scoring. Dickey added his 15th and 16th season touchdowns for a grand total of 24 career touchdowns.

Dickey also excelled in the pass catching department. He was on the receiving end of six South passes for a grand total of 123 yards and one of his touchdowns.

Max Peacock was on the business end of seven

South aerials covering 142 yards and one touchdown. The touchdown pass was a 77 yarder coming with the Hogs trailing 31-14.

Tech quarterback Joe Matulick led Tech in all offensive departments. He rushed for 70 yards in 14 tries. He also passed 18 times, completing 9 for 92 yards and one touchdown.

Punter Kenny Vinyard also kept the Hogs in hot water, placing his kicks perfectly. He kicked a 46 yard field goal to insure the margin of victory.

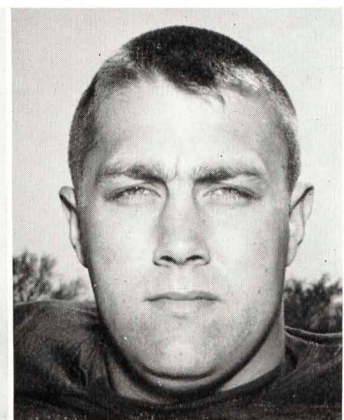

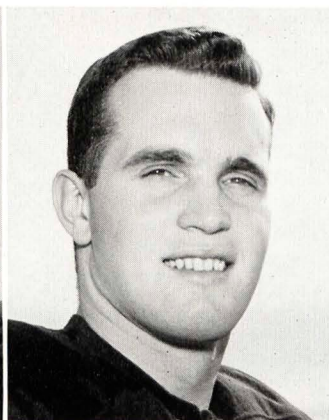

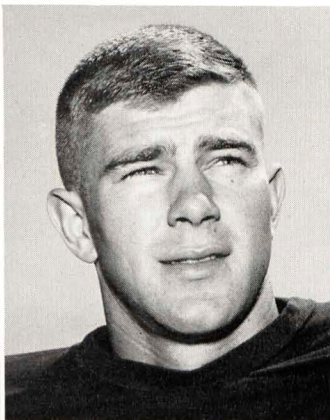

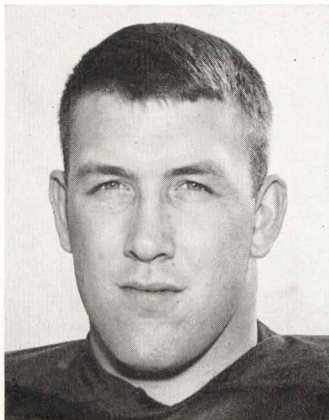

The loss left the Porkers with a 4-5-1 season record. This is the worst record an Arkansas team has posted since 1958 when they went 4-6.

In Memoriam

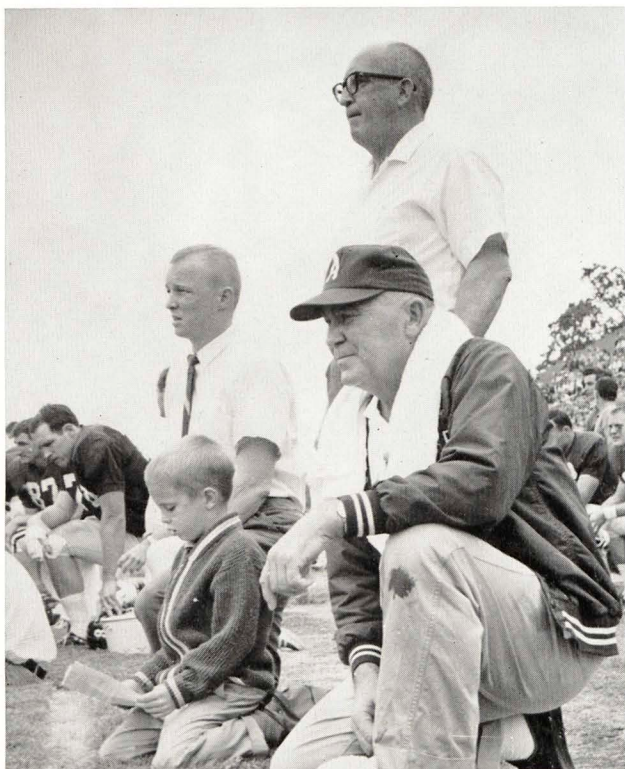

There'll never be another one like him . . .

The expression is inadequate to fill the personality of trainer Bill Ferrell. Here was a man so completely devoted to his family and to Razorback athletes that the two became interwoven into one beautiful tapestry of his life. He had a great depth of character, yet never lost his warm sense of humor.

You don't add up the life of a man like Grounny in statistics and records. You add it in the number of lives he touched. And for every Razorback he knew — and there were hundreds — there went a better man.

His death on September 13, 1967, takes from the UofA scene a man very much loved by everyone who knew him.

Razorback athletes of the future will be poorer for lacking that opportunity.

Bill Ferrell as he is best remembered — at the sideline.

Ferrell and Cole made plans for a Sugar Bowl trip.

Ferrell, with his family, received recognition.

A Surprising Year For Hog Basketball

It was not a rebuilding year at Arkansas as far as basketball went. It was more of a start from scratch proposition year. With only one man that had any experience, and that being on one of the weaker teams in Arkansas history, it didn't look like the Razorbacks were going to surprise anyone.

But they surprised everyone.

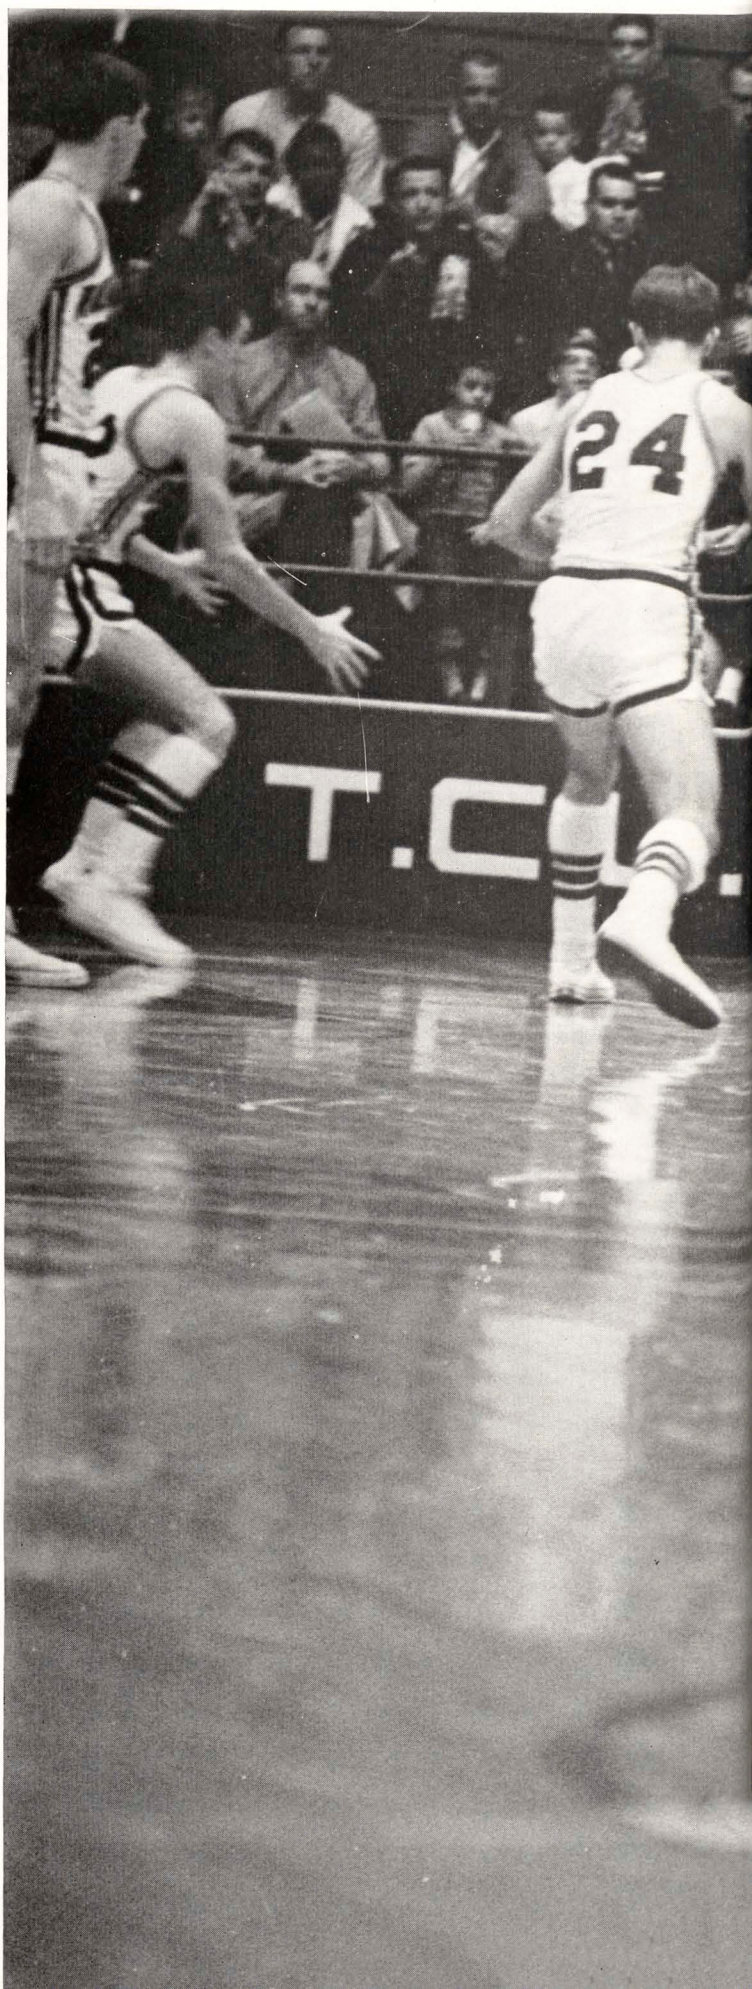

This is without the possible exception of Coach P. T. (Duddy) Waller. Start from scratch is exactly what he did. Armed with his one senior and an over abundance of eager, green sophomores, he set about to change the ideas of the preseason pickers that thought Arkansas would have to hustle to finish last.

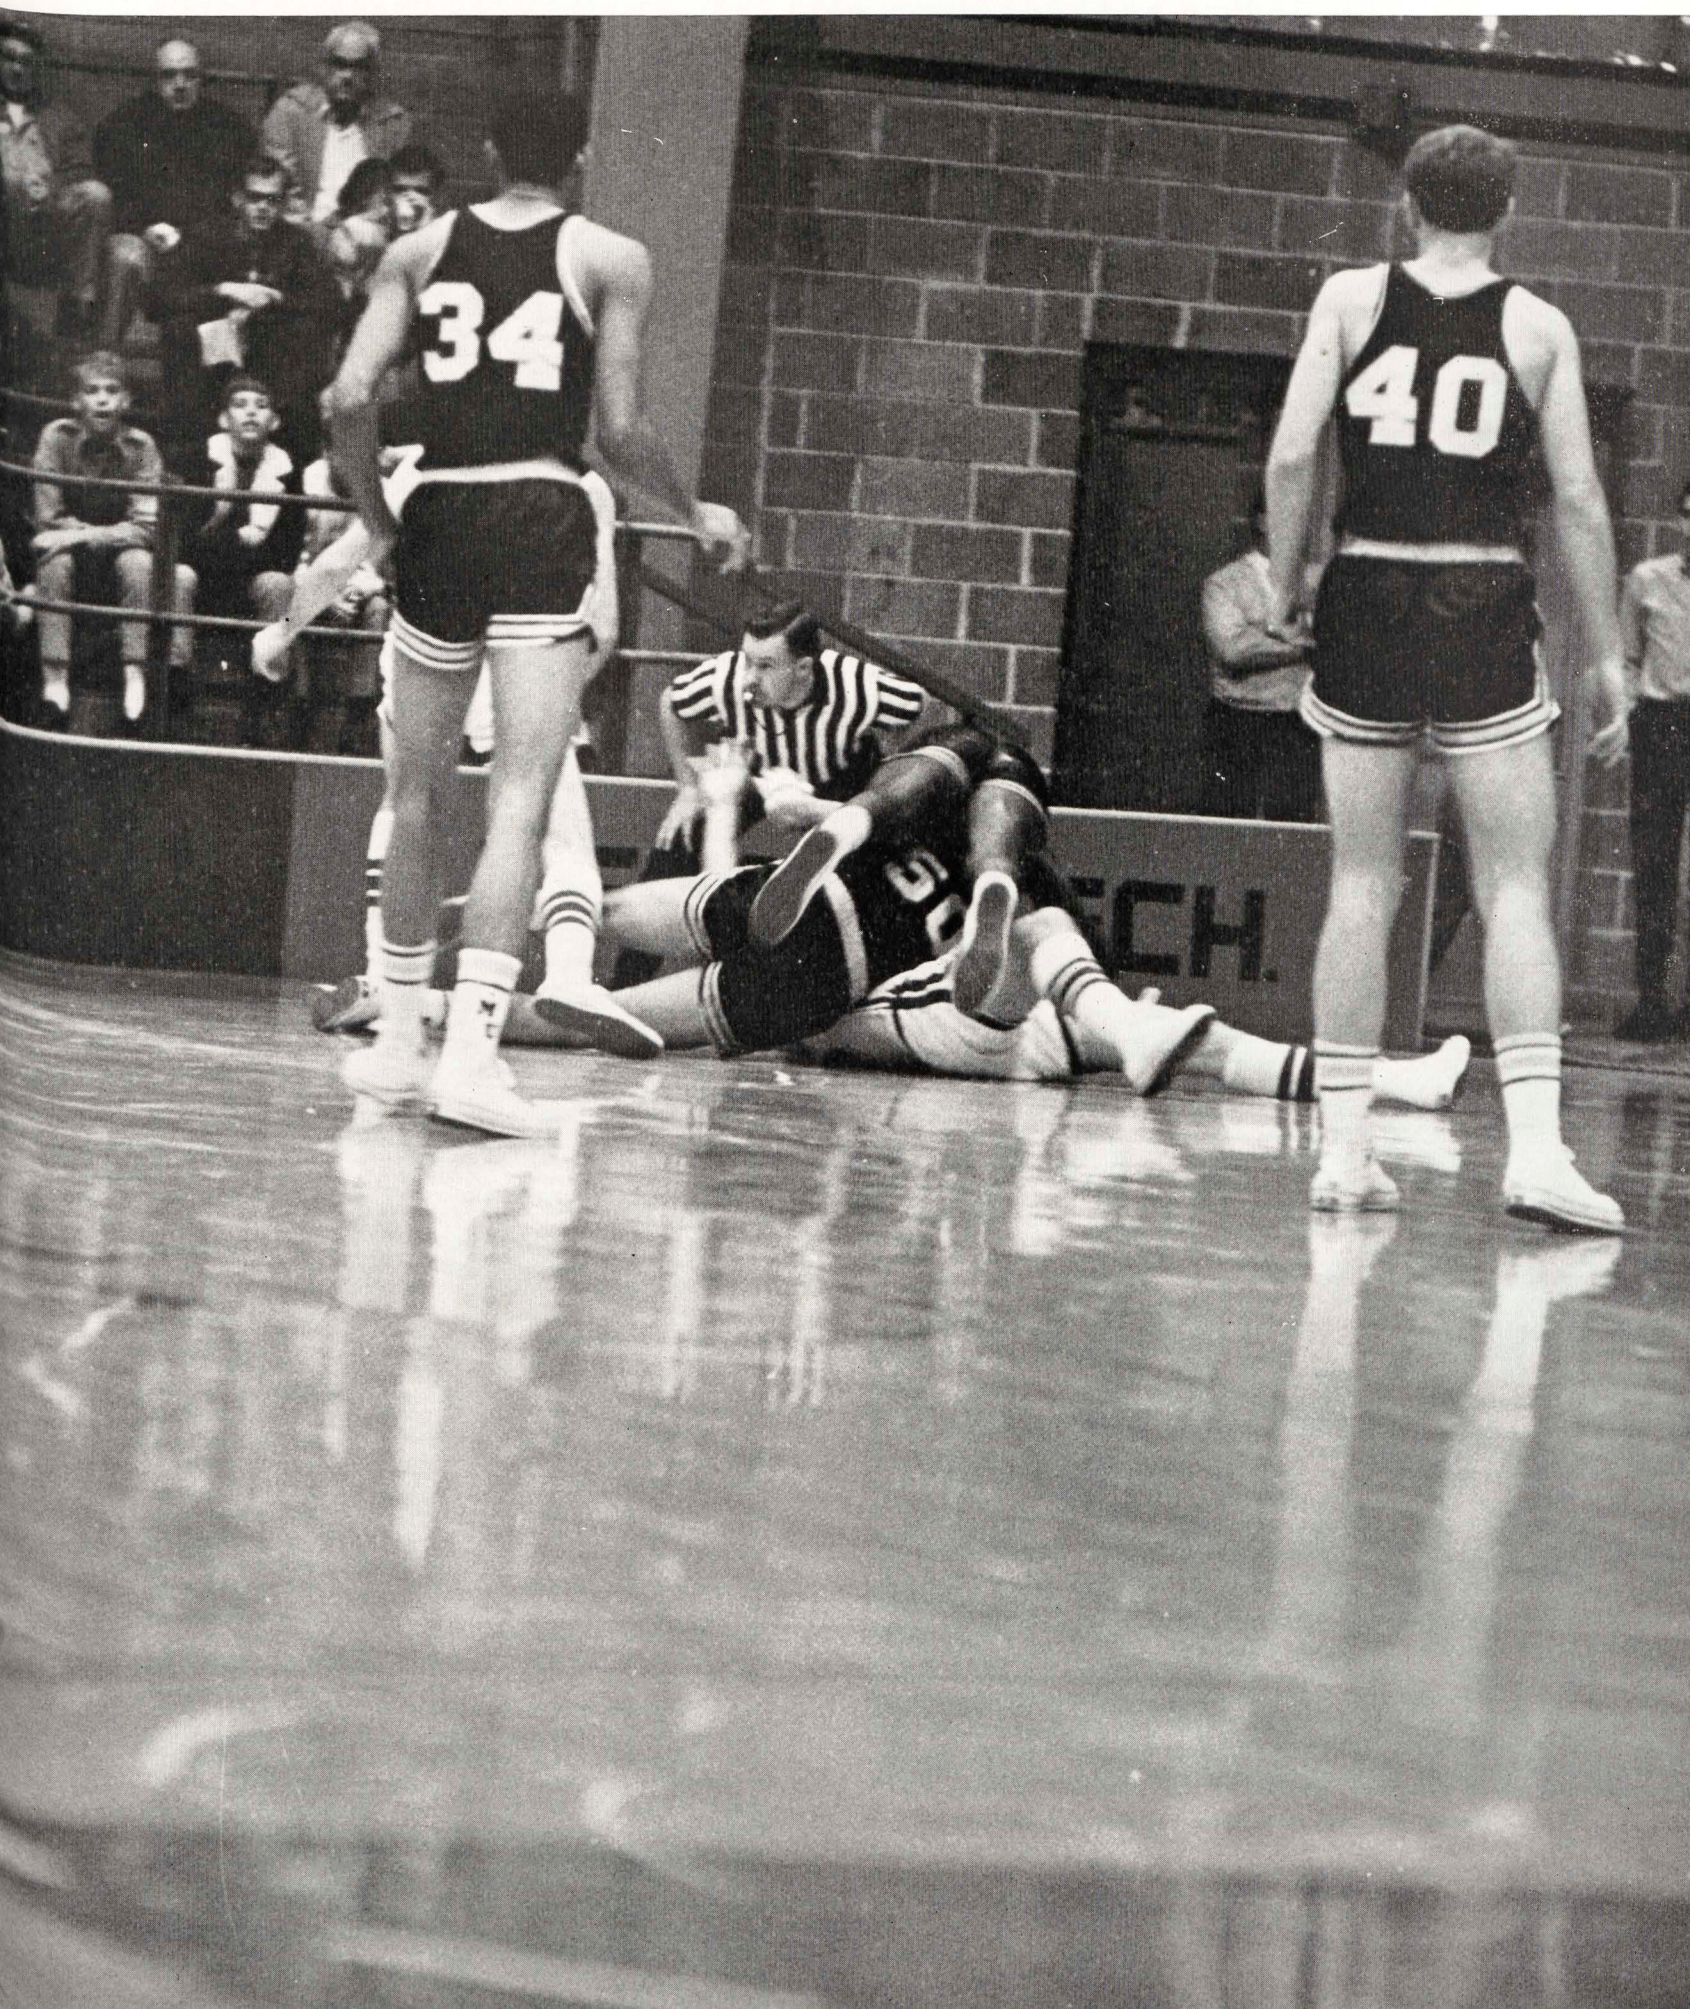

And he did a remarkable job of it.

With sporadic play, an unorthodox offense and the shortest team in the Southwest Conference, the Razorbacks were able to manage a 7-7 finish in conference play, beating everyone at least once with the exception of Champion Baylor. In total games, the Porkers went 10-14, not bad for one of the "weakest teams in the SWC."

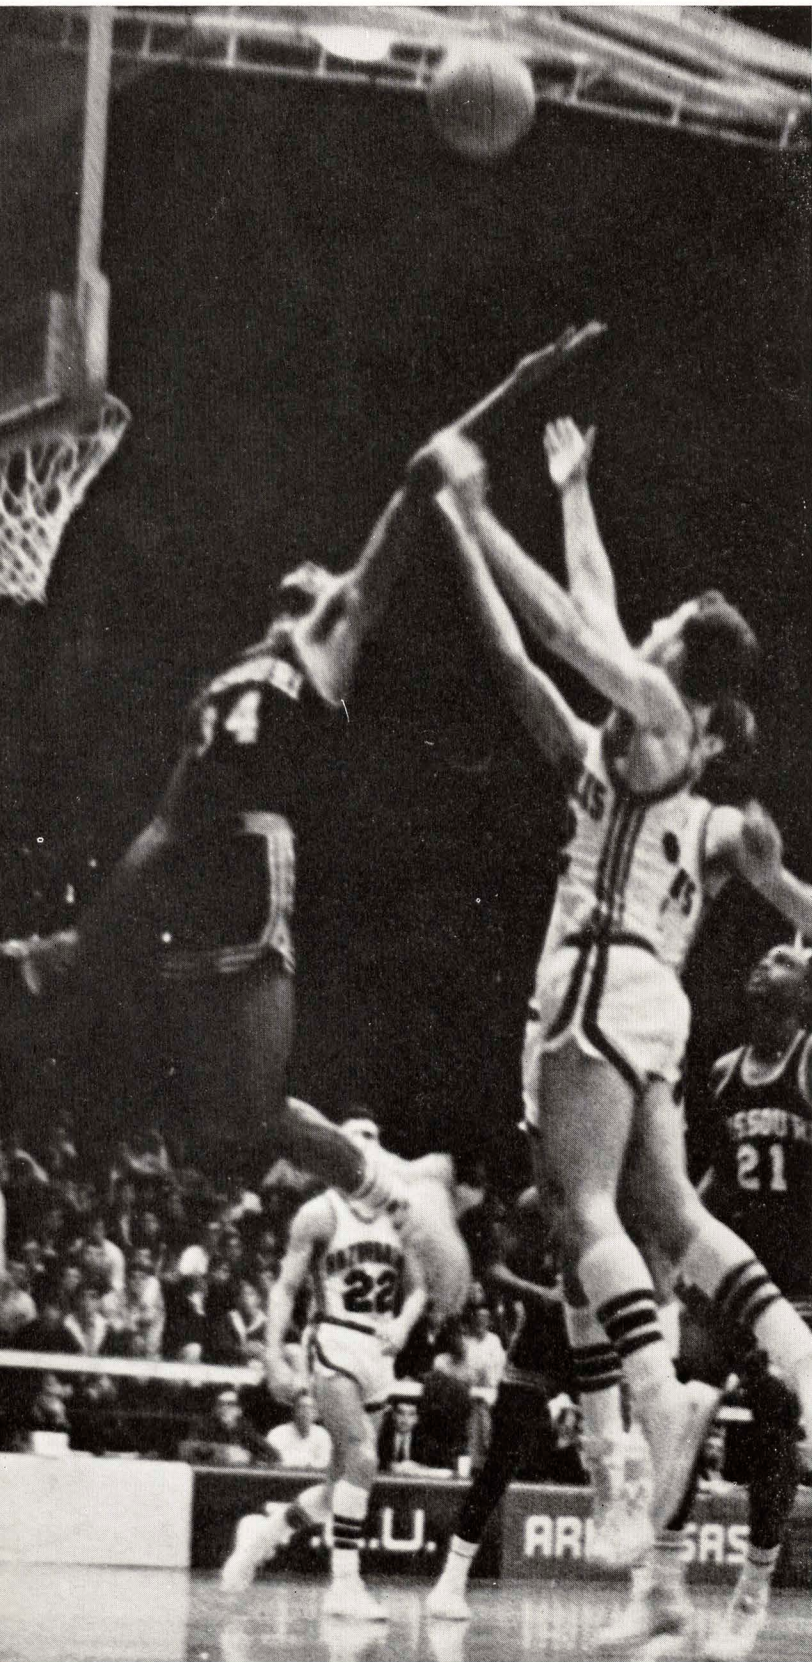

And indeed, the season started off fairly rocky for the Razorbacks. In their first two encounters, they couldn't seem to get the ball in the bucket. Their defense was not working as well as it should have been. The Porkers dropped their first game of the season to a strong but slow Missouri team by the score of 74-52. Junior Benton Cone paced the Hogs with 18 points. The second game was also rather dismal for the Razorbacks, as again the offense couldn't find the range. With a better defense the game was closer, but the Razorbacks still came up on the short end of the score, 61-52. Cone again provided the scoring leadership, gunning in 10 for the losing cause.

But then a strange thing happened. Another Razorback began to score. Sophomore James Eldridge began to spark the Razorbacks. The Hogs pulled past the Rebels of Ole Miss in a cliff hanger, 64-62. Eldridge hit 20 in the contest. Then the Hogs took a double header from Centenary, 85-65 and 90-82. Eldridge scored 20 in both of these contests.

Waller Builds Team From Scratch

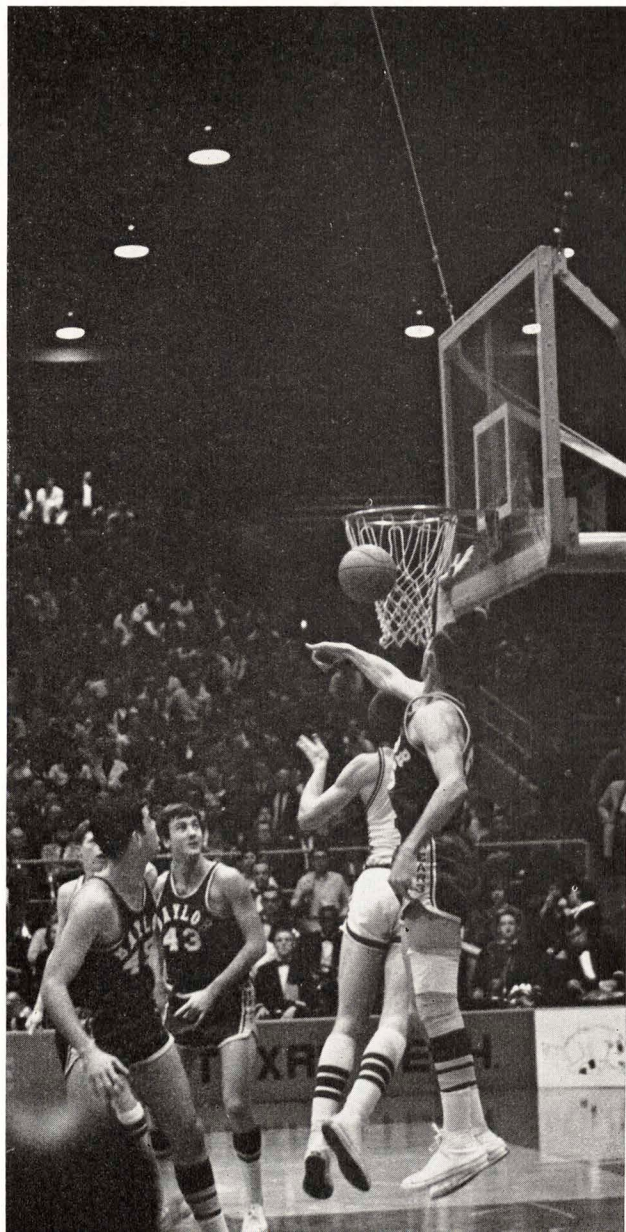

Kimbrell goes high for a rebound against tough Missouri.

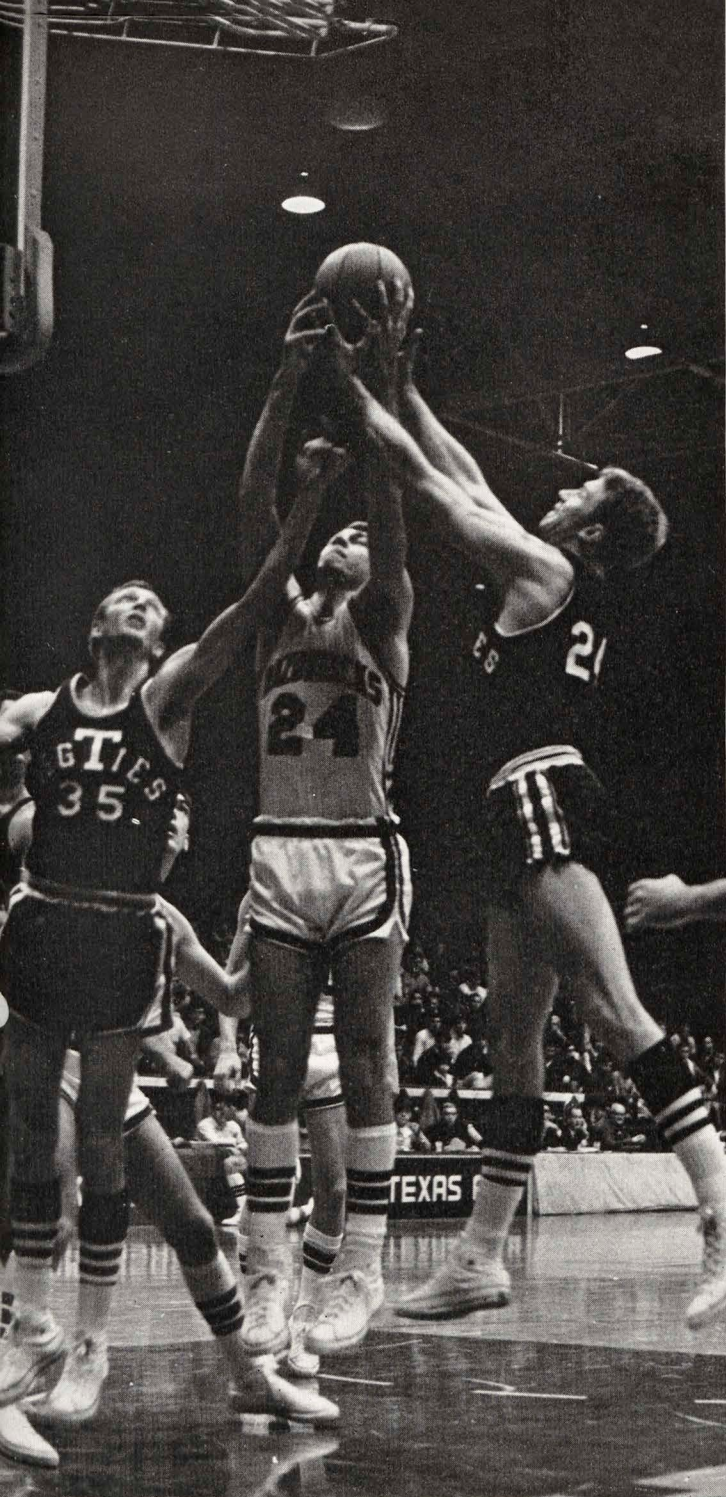

The hot streak continued for Eldridge. He scored 22 points in leading the Hogs in a losing effort to the Crimson Tide of the University of Alabama.

Then another sophomore started to hit, along with it came one of the biggest scoring sophomores in the history of Arkansas basketball. Robert McKenzie found the range and led the Hogs in a 80-73 losing effort against Fordham. From that game on, there were only three games that either Eldridge or McKenzie didn't take leading scorer honors. The three exceptions were controlled by Benton Cone.

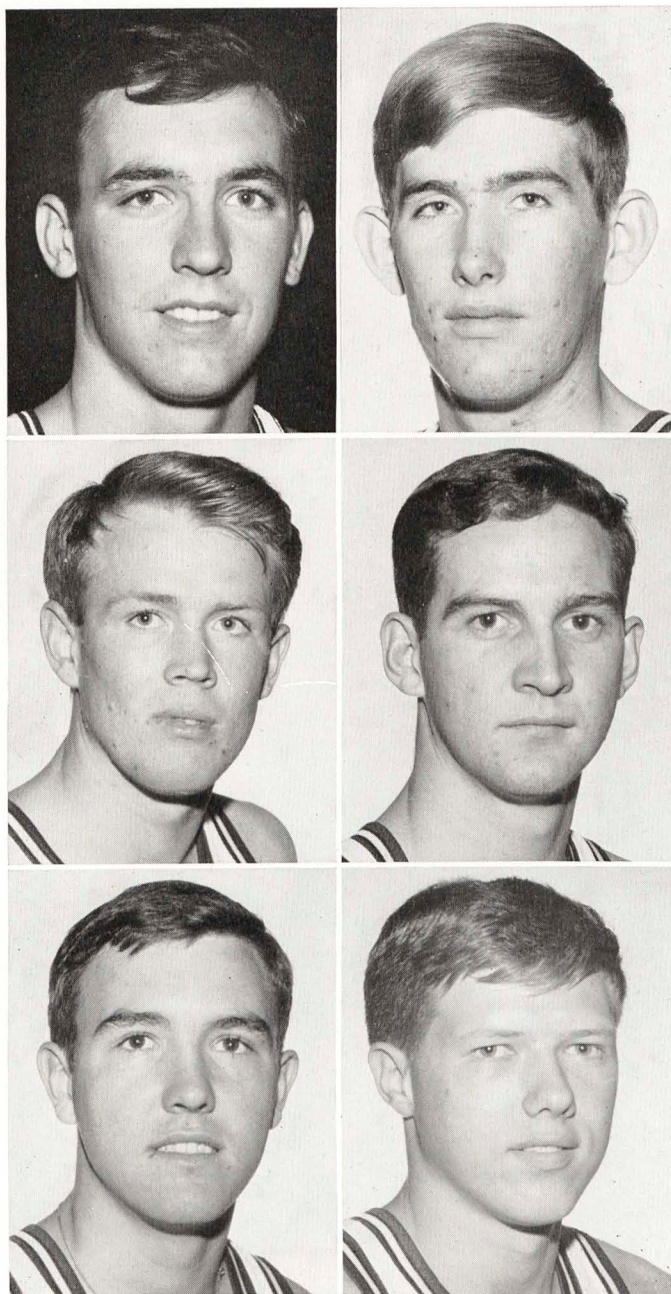

McKenzie hit 24 against Idaho State. The game was another cliff hanger, the Hogs coming up on the short end of the score 77-75.

Baylor was the only conference team the Porkers couldn't beat.

Hogs Start Slowly—Gain Momentum

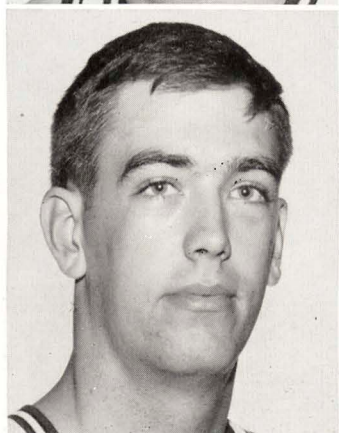

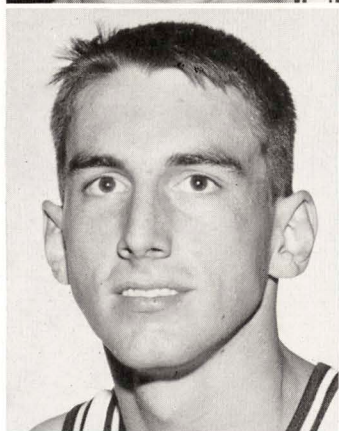

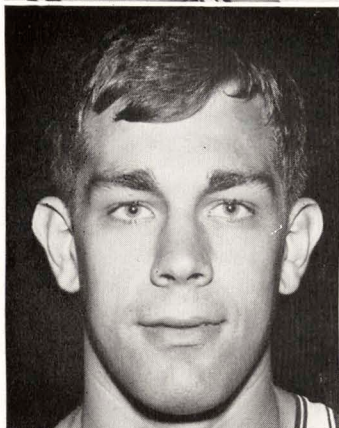

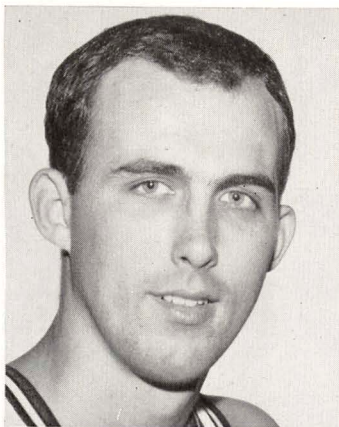

But then things started to change for the Razorbacks. Texas A&M came up and was soundly defeated by the Razorbacks 75-70. McKenzie hit 21. Arkansas lost their second conference game to Rice by the score of 73-61. Eldridge came back to take high honors here with 19. The Baylor Bears were able to take the Hogs for a ride 80-69 in a game that was closer than the score indicates. McKenzie took his turn and scored 16.

At mid-season the whole outlook for the Razorbacks was different. They breezed by the Longhorns of Texas 85-80. Eldridge collected 25 in this match. Then they dropped another cliff hanger to Oklahoma City University by the score of 92-90 in overtime. McKenzie took high honors for the year as well as the game, posting 33 points for the Razorbacks.

"The close ones even out," commented Waller. And his words were prophetic. In the next contest, the Porkers sneaked by TCU 68-67. Eldridge scored 22. McKenzie came back in the next game against SMU, scored 22 points, and led the Porkers to a 70-68 win over the highly touted Ponies.

their next game. The Hogs blew by the Raiders 61-56. McKenzie took his turn and scored 16.

The name Benton Cone again appeared as the Razorbacks took on TCU for the second time. The Hogs, fresh off their winning spree, were unable to hold on and skidded to a 77-75 loss. Cone scored 27.

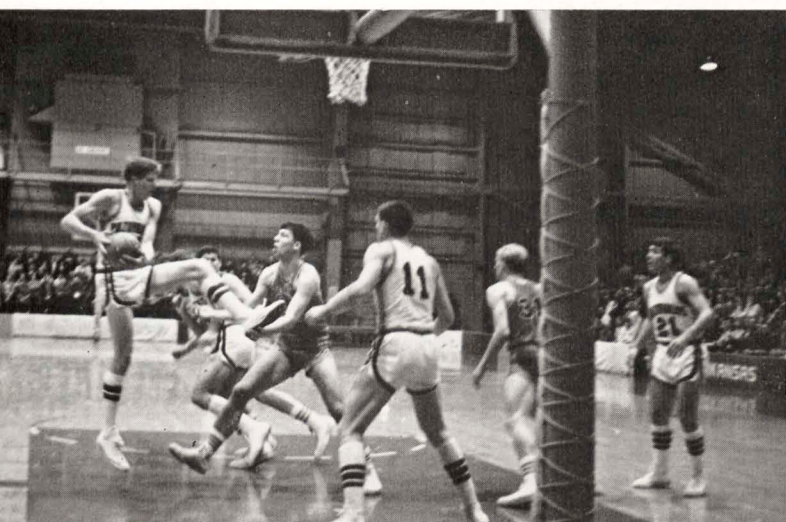

The Hogs lost another two point decision in their next contest. Texas Tech beat the Razorbacks 74-72, with Eldridge taking 17. SMU smothered the Razorbacks in their second encounter. The Ponies came unglued and beat the Hogs 95-87. Eldridge hit 22.

Benton Cone again appeared in the last A&M conflict. Scoring 19, he led the Hogs in a 71-67 losing effort. McKenzie again took his shots, scored 21, and led the Porkers in beating Rice.

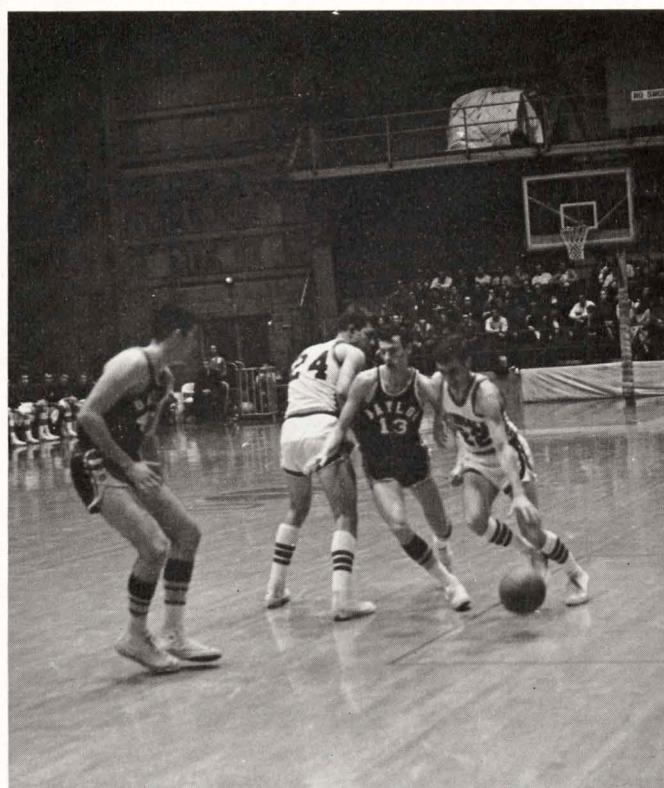

The Baylor Bears were just too much for the Porkers to handle all year, and they took the last meeting from the Hogs by the score of 71-64. Cone was high point man for the last time of the season as he put in 26.

In the season finale, the Hogs ended up right, again defeating the Texas Longhorns in a way that had become standard for the Hogs, 74-73. In this final game

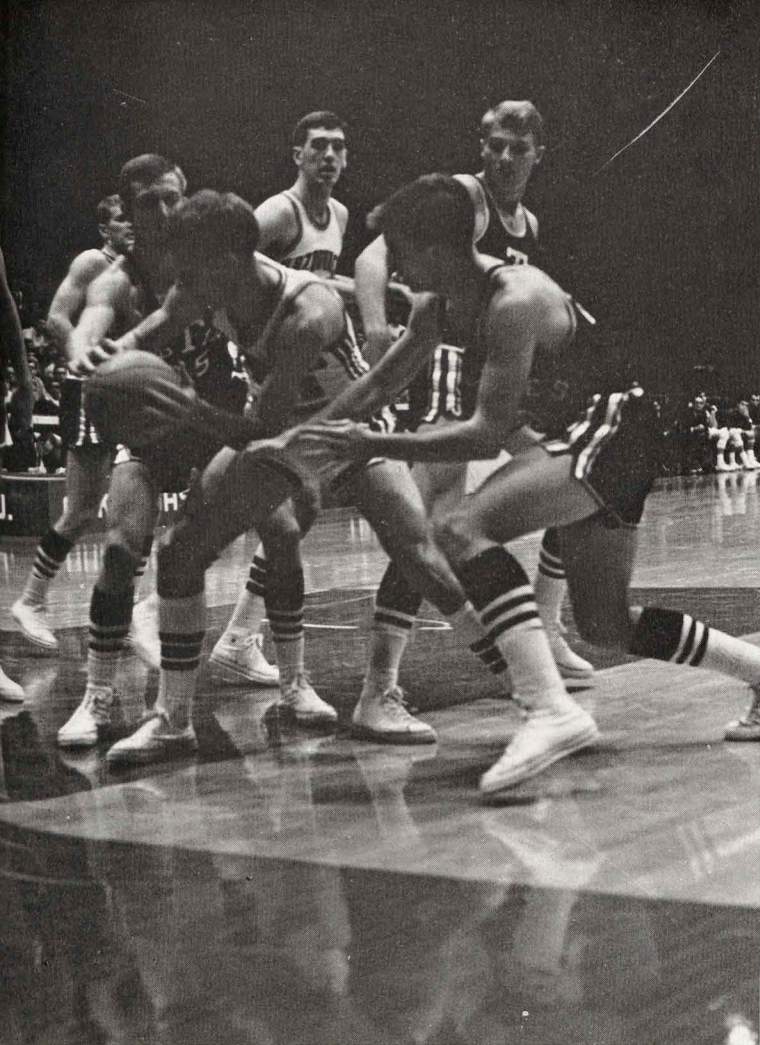

Ricky Tanneberger, third leading rebounder for the Razorbacks this year, goes up once more but comes down empty-handed this time.

McKenzie comes off the boards as a Raider tries to catch him.

Porks Finish Season With 7-7 In SWC

of the year, Eldridge was high scorer with 23 points.

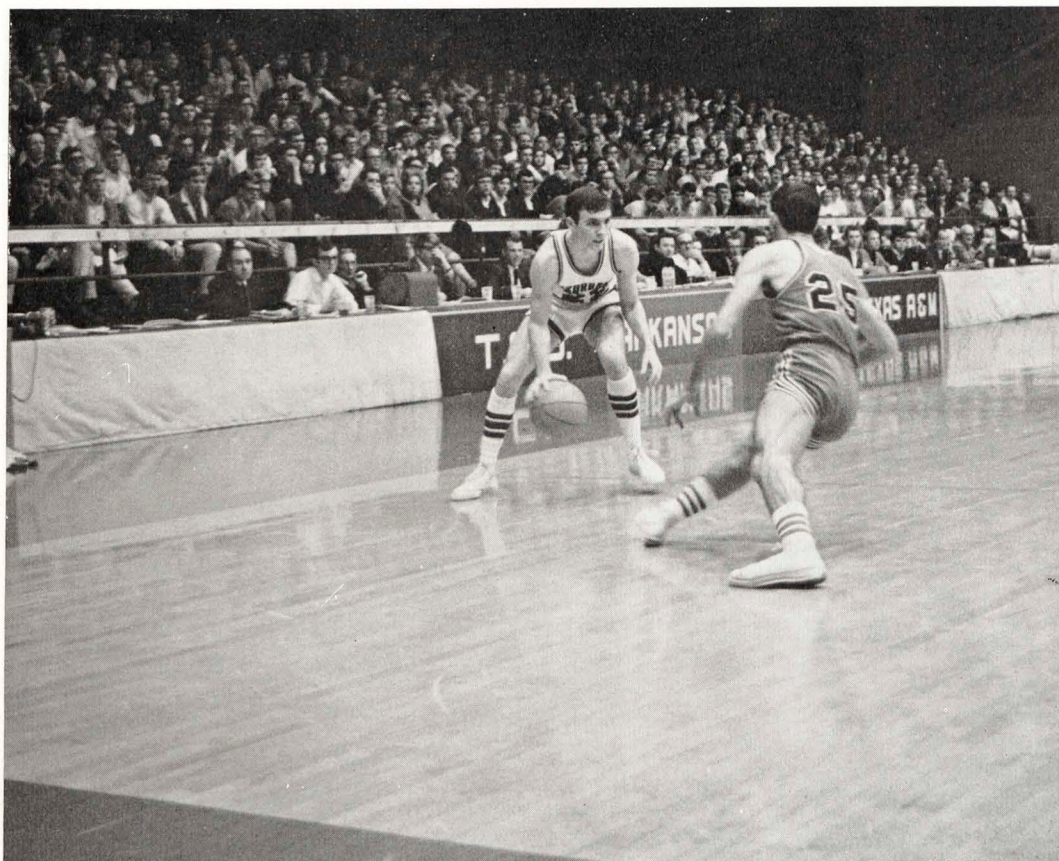

All in all, it wasn't such a bad year for the Razorbacks. The Hogs only lost one starter. Gary Stephens, who bolstered the Hogs all year on the boards and seemed to always come up with the big play, is the only Razorback to graduate.

And there are many more to take his place. Bob Vint, at 6'8", will be a factor in next year's team. As a sophomore this year, he played only sparingly, but always did a good job while he was playing. With a little practice in shooting, he could really be a big factor in next year's chances.

Mack McAlister and Danny Keeter will also be looking forward to trying their hands. Both sophomores, they could combine to be two of the fastest guards in the country.

The dynasty is growing and the Razorback basketballers are growing right along with it. Who knows what could happen?

Stephens jokes some more, but this time he gets into trouble.

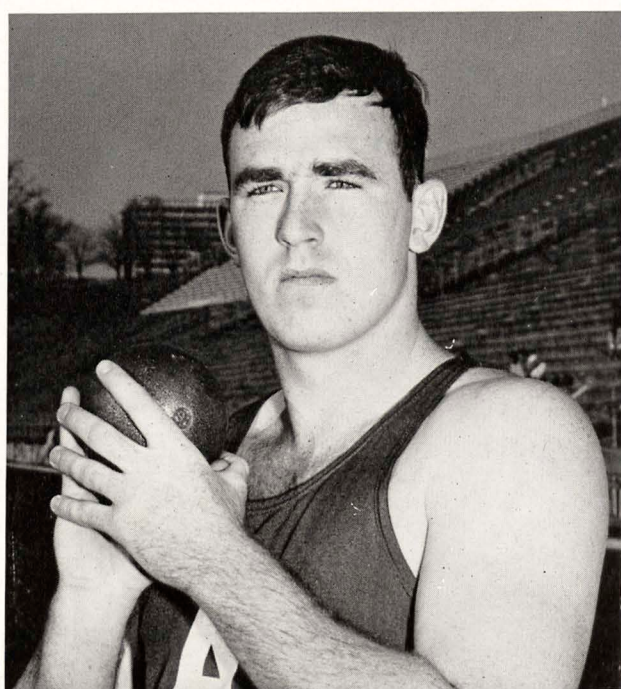

When a ball handler is called for, Cone goes into action. Here it's against the Red Raiders of Tech.

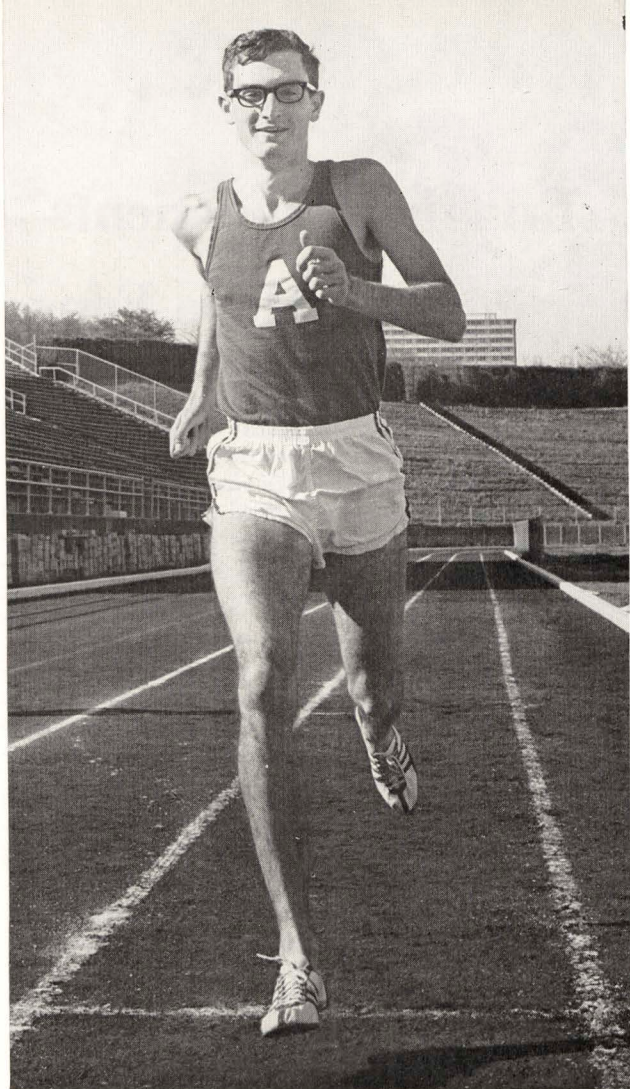

These Porker tracksters know what it takes to excel on the cinders — running, practice, training and more running.

Tracksters Improve Under New Coaching

Head track coach Ab Bidwell resigned his post this year and yielded the job to Tom Hardin. When Hardin took the job, he anticipated success to some degree, but perhaps not to the extent that his young team responded.

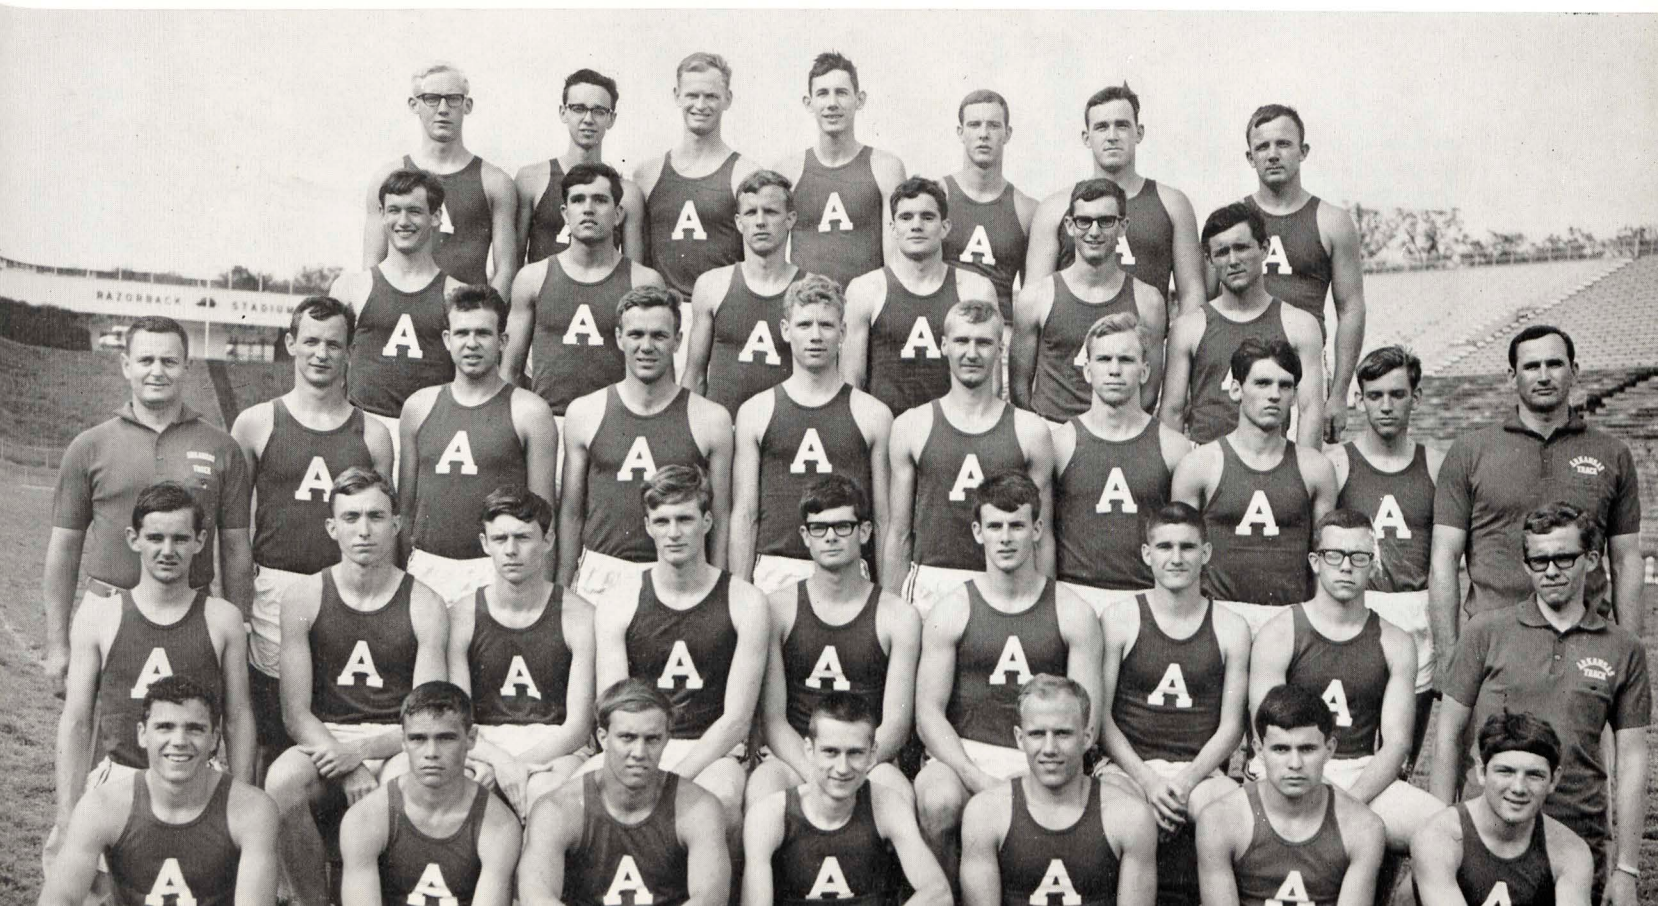

This year's efforts did not turn so much toward winning each meet as they expressly stressed improvement over a total performance basis. Much to Coach Hardin's delight, the track team set four varsity records and two freshman records at the first of the season.

Conrad Gaither and Jerry Petty drew most of the attention on the cinders for Arkansas this year. Gaither, a freshman, holds the UofA 440-yard dash record with his impressive 47.7 clocking in the quarter. Gaither also holds the fastest timing in the one mile relay with his 47.8 first leg. The mile relay team set a new record of 3:13.5.

Jerry Petty hustled much of the spotlight that former SWC champion strongman, Randy Matson, possessed. Petty has been credited for the best shot put on record here at the University. His measured toss in competition was 54'7". He also holds the discus throw record with a throw of 165'8".

Rougher Opponents Bring Out More Fans

Baseball at the UofA gained prestige as a spectator sport among the Razorback fans this spring with its participation in a highly competitive schedule, including top teams in Texas and Oklahoma.

Bad weather conditions forced the Porkers to do most of their early spring preparation inside Barnhill Fieldhouse and the baseball Hogs met more destruction in their opening tour in Texas during the spring break. In this unpleasant excursion, the Razorbacks were only able to grab one victory in nine games.

The baseball team fell victim to a bad case of playing in streaks. At one time, the Razorbacks won five games in succession to boost their percentage of wins and losses. Basically, the trouble seemed to be a lack of consistency by the batting and pitching.

Approaching the final quarter of the '68 baseball season, the batters and pitchers regained much of their '67 composure and were able to repeat a comparable performance of last year's winning team.

Golf Team Suffers Ups And Downs

Arkansas' golf team endured a so-so season.

The Razorbacks were hindered by a lack of constant effort as they sometimes edged out a visiting team and in a rematch the same team would utterly destroy them.

Much to the delight of the SWC coaches, the freshmen eligibility rule came in handy as all of the frosh were able to compete with the varsity. Not only did this enhance the Razorbacks golfers' depth, but it also adds to the solidarity of next year's team. The golf team played better than .500 ball and hopefully they will repeat this in '69.

Coach Danny Mason recruited a fine crop of freshmen for this year's competition and his efforts payed off when one of the frosh made the trip to the SWC Championships. With the loss of only two players to graduation, the Razorback golf team, like the other Razorback teams, has a bright future.

Kossover Takes Over With Tennis

With a new track coach for the '68 season and several new assistant football coaches, small wonder that the UofA athletic department chose a new tennis coach.

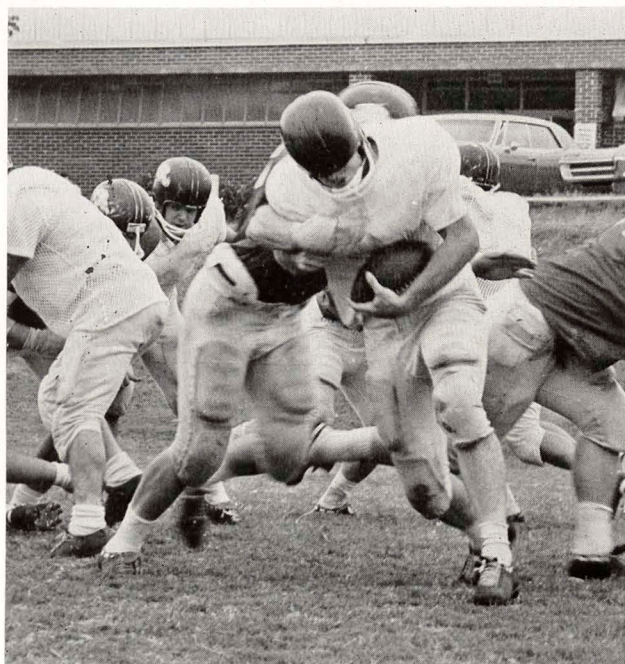

Early this spring, David Kossover was named varsity tennis coach and he took the post bearing in mind that he would probably have a moderate or average season. When the weather was rude to our visitors early in the spring, the meets were continued inside the Men's Gym and the Porkers were overwhelmingly successful.

Having lost only one netter to graduation, the Porkers were able to repeat a winning season, comparable to last year's squad. Leading this year's team were Ben Barry and Murray Harding.

The tennis team will join conference competitors in a SWC round robin next season. Barry, this season's leading individual player, will return next year as an assistant coach.

Ben Barry led a stronger Porker tennis team this year.

Shoats Hold Promise For Future

Freshmen study in the school of hard knocks with the varsity.

Success continued to follow Coach Lynwood Cathey and his freshman basketball squad. The Shoats were able to continue the winning ways of their predecessors as they stormed through a long season yielding only three losses and putting on two crowd-pleasing 100-points-plus performances.

Probably the major center of interest was Thomas Johnson of Menifee, who was the first Negro to sign an athletic grant to the UofA. Johnson responded to the challenge by averaging 15.5 points over all 12 games.

Coach Jack Davis' freshman football team suffered a setback in the first game against the Ponies of SMU, but were able to recover from the loss and salvage a 4-1 season tally.

Quarterback Bill Montgomery literally "passed" all of the previous passing records at the UofA in his magnificent Shoat career.

The Shoats combined 23 touchdowns with 10 extra points to amass a total of 149 points against such formidable foes as Texas Tech, Oklahoma State, North Texas and Tulsa. The stalwart defense of the Shoats allowed 67 total points.

These five games spotlighted some definite prospects for the Razorbacks in the future.

The first unglorious year is the hardest, but every Razorback was first a Shoat, and that's the road to varsity football.

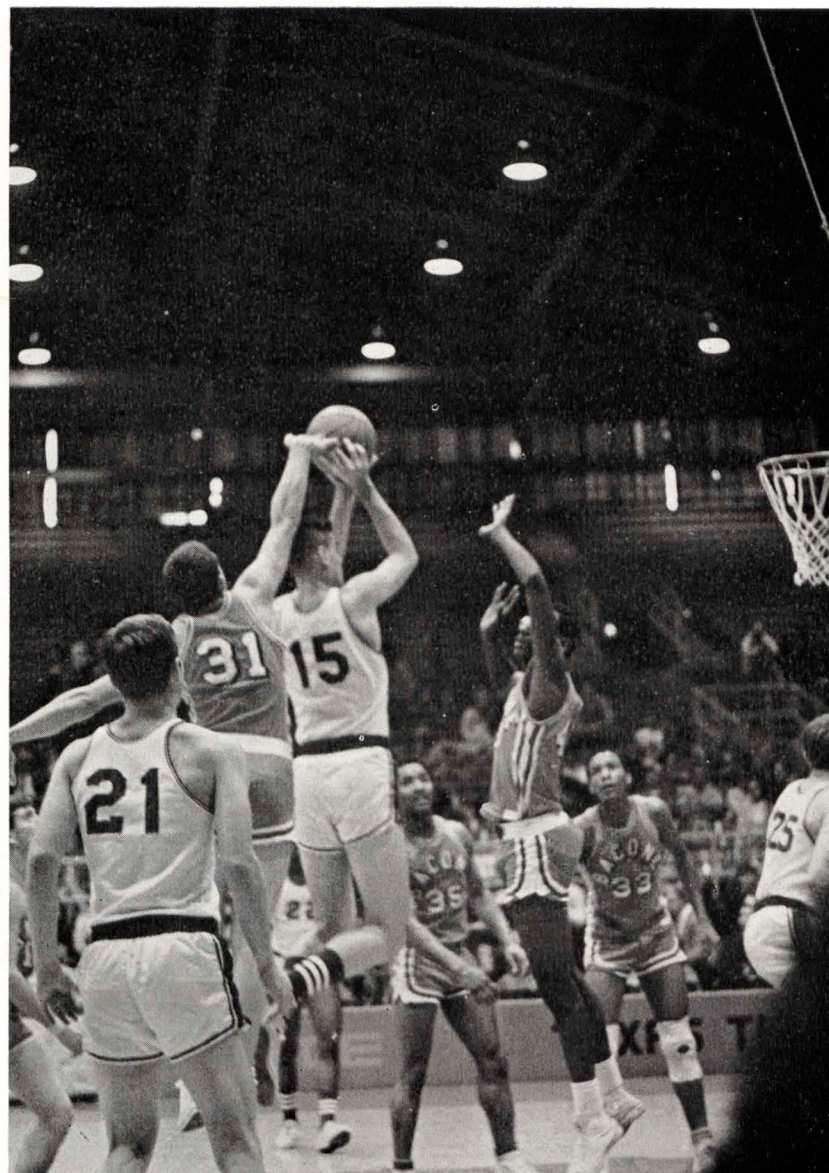

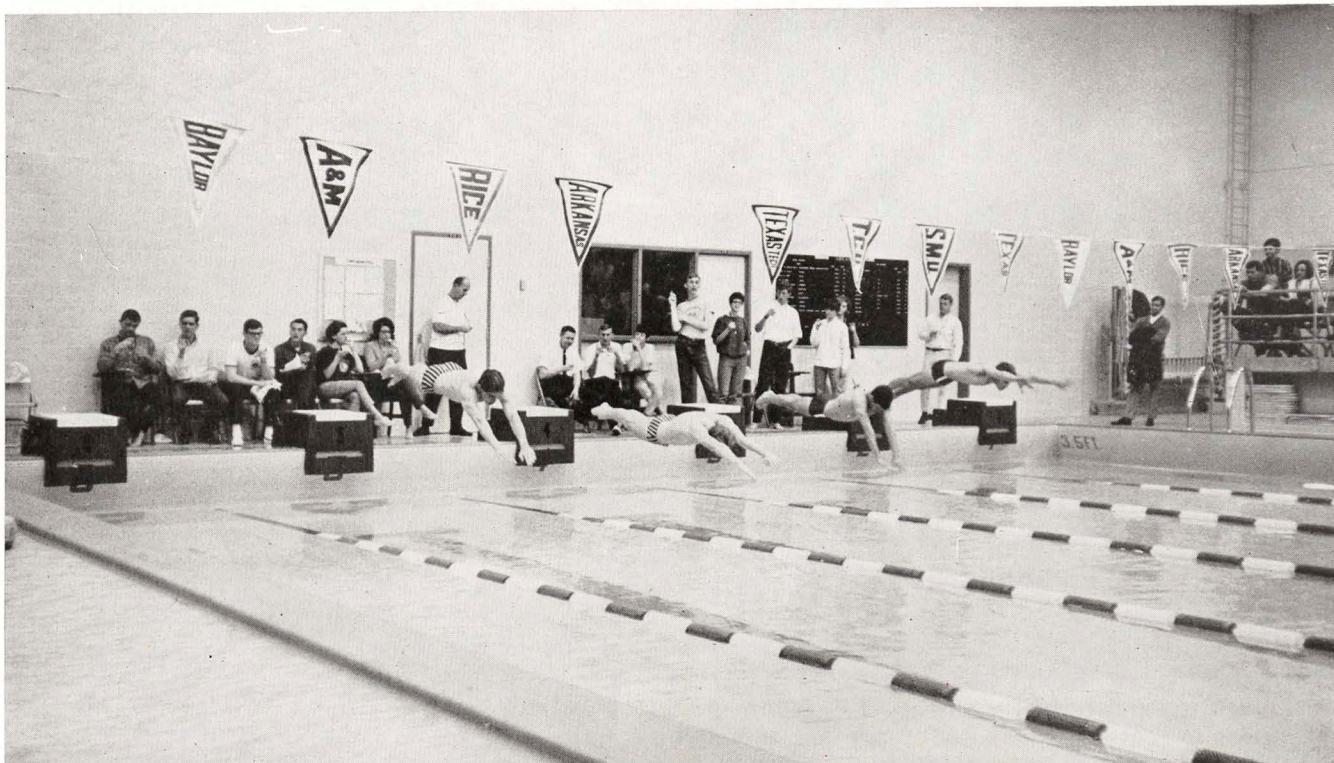

It's a disgrace to lose your head in a game, as all Shoats know. But if it's only in practice with the varsity it's not so bad.

Ball carrier is on varsity. Man being run over is a freshman.

The start of a Southwest swimming race was a new occurrence at Arkansas. The Hogs are the youngest conference team.

Conference Swim Meet Held Here

Arkansas' swimming team challenged the varsity basketball team for glory this year in the winter sports as they swam their way to a .500 plus season and a fourth place finish in the Southwest Conference Swimming Championships held here at the University.

Like most of the Razorback teams, perhaps "Improvement" was their main goal. It seems as though each time a Razorback swimmer hit the water, a new record was set.

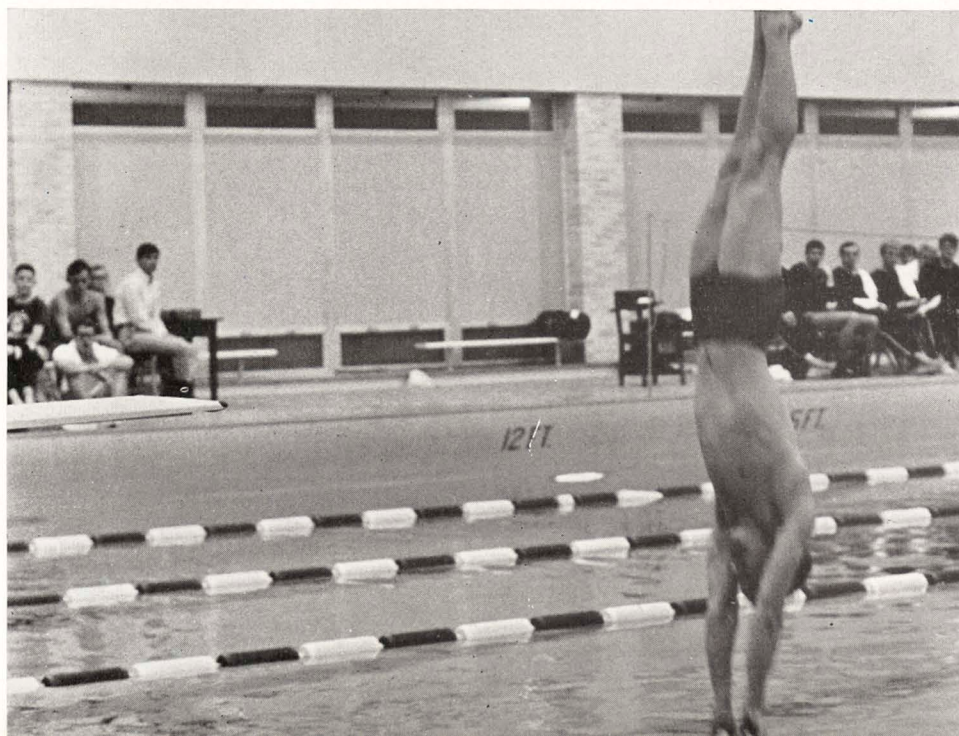

Ken Ward, a veteran of last year's team, set a new school record in the 50-yard freestyle event as he swam to a second place finish in that event.

Most of Arkansas' strength centered mainly around its relay teams. The team of Mike Barden, Alan Butcher, Tom Sucheki and Ken Ward distinguished themselves in the 300 yard relay as they swam an impressive 7:30.5, also in the Championship meet.

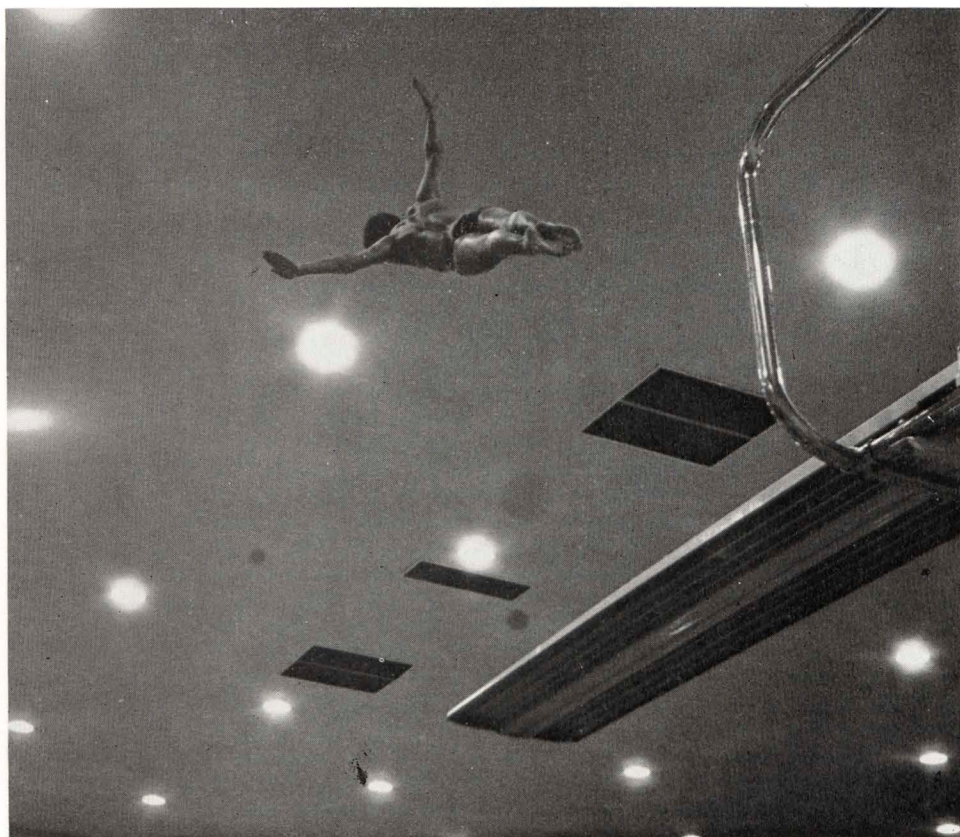

With the new Southwest Conference freshmen eligibility rule, the swimming should be in good shape for next season's competition.

All the winning divers seemed to be from Texas when Arkansas hosted the regional meet.

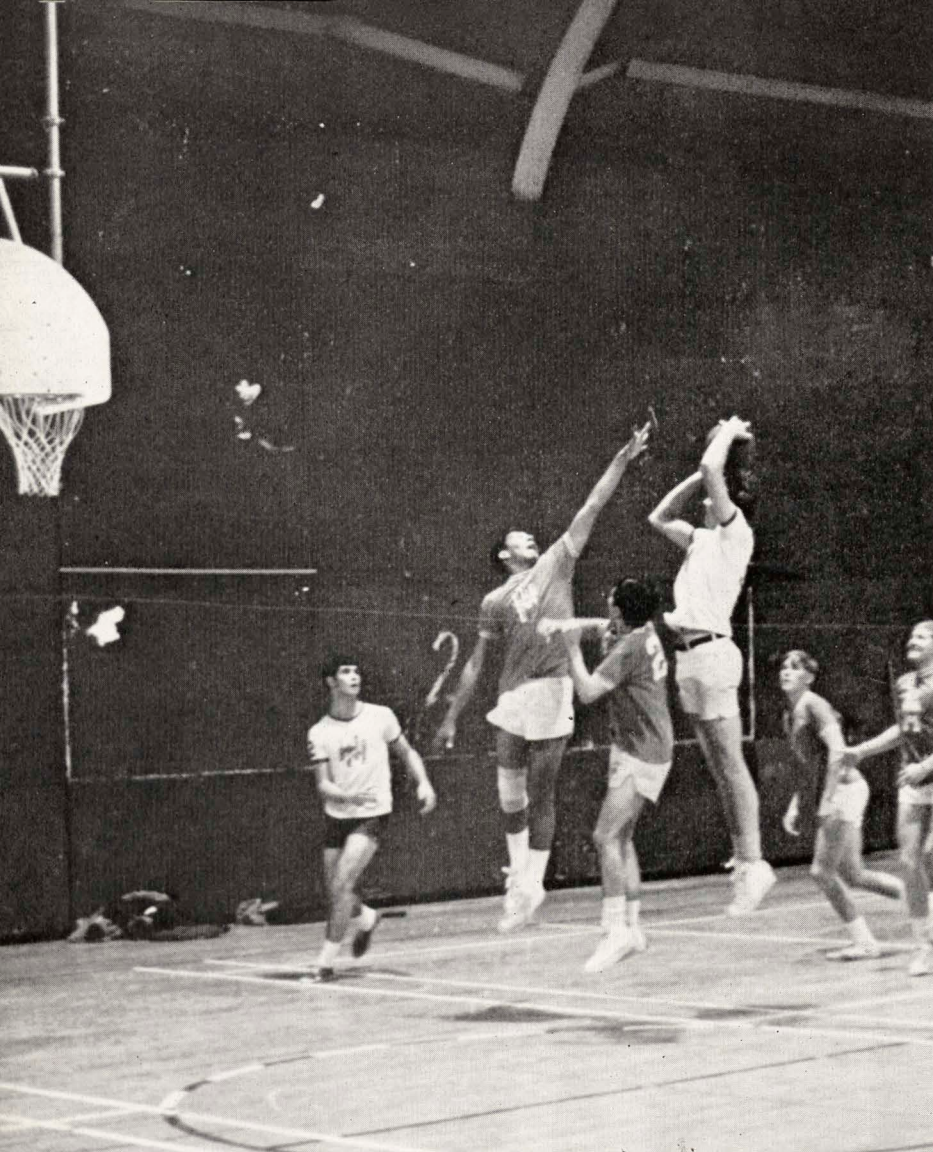

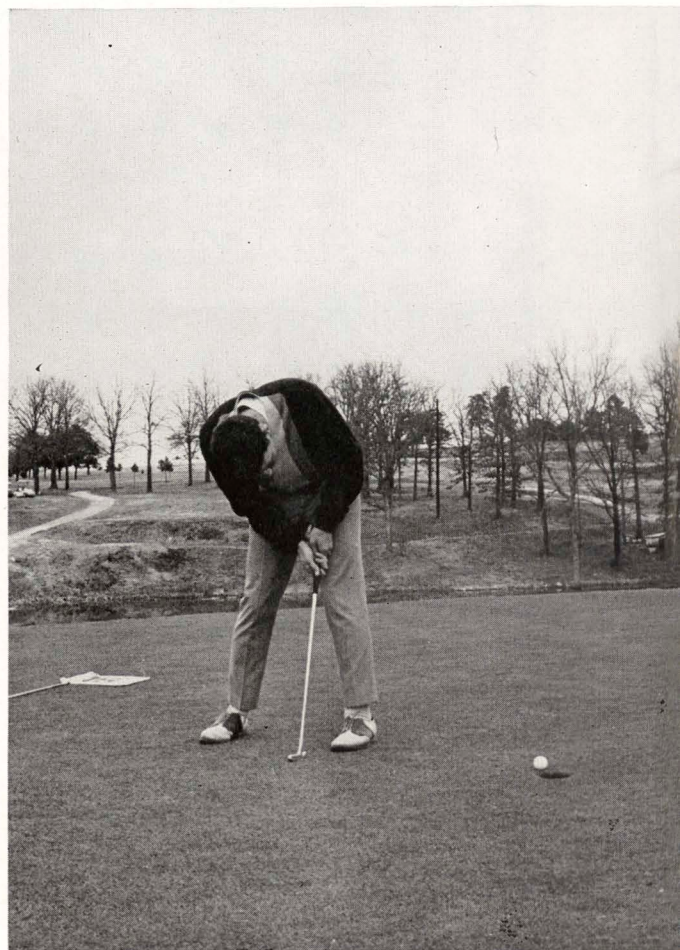

One of the most popular events was diving and this jack knife was a main crowd pleaser.

Fans at the conference swimming meet liked divers. The photographers most certainly did.

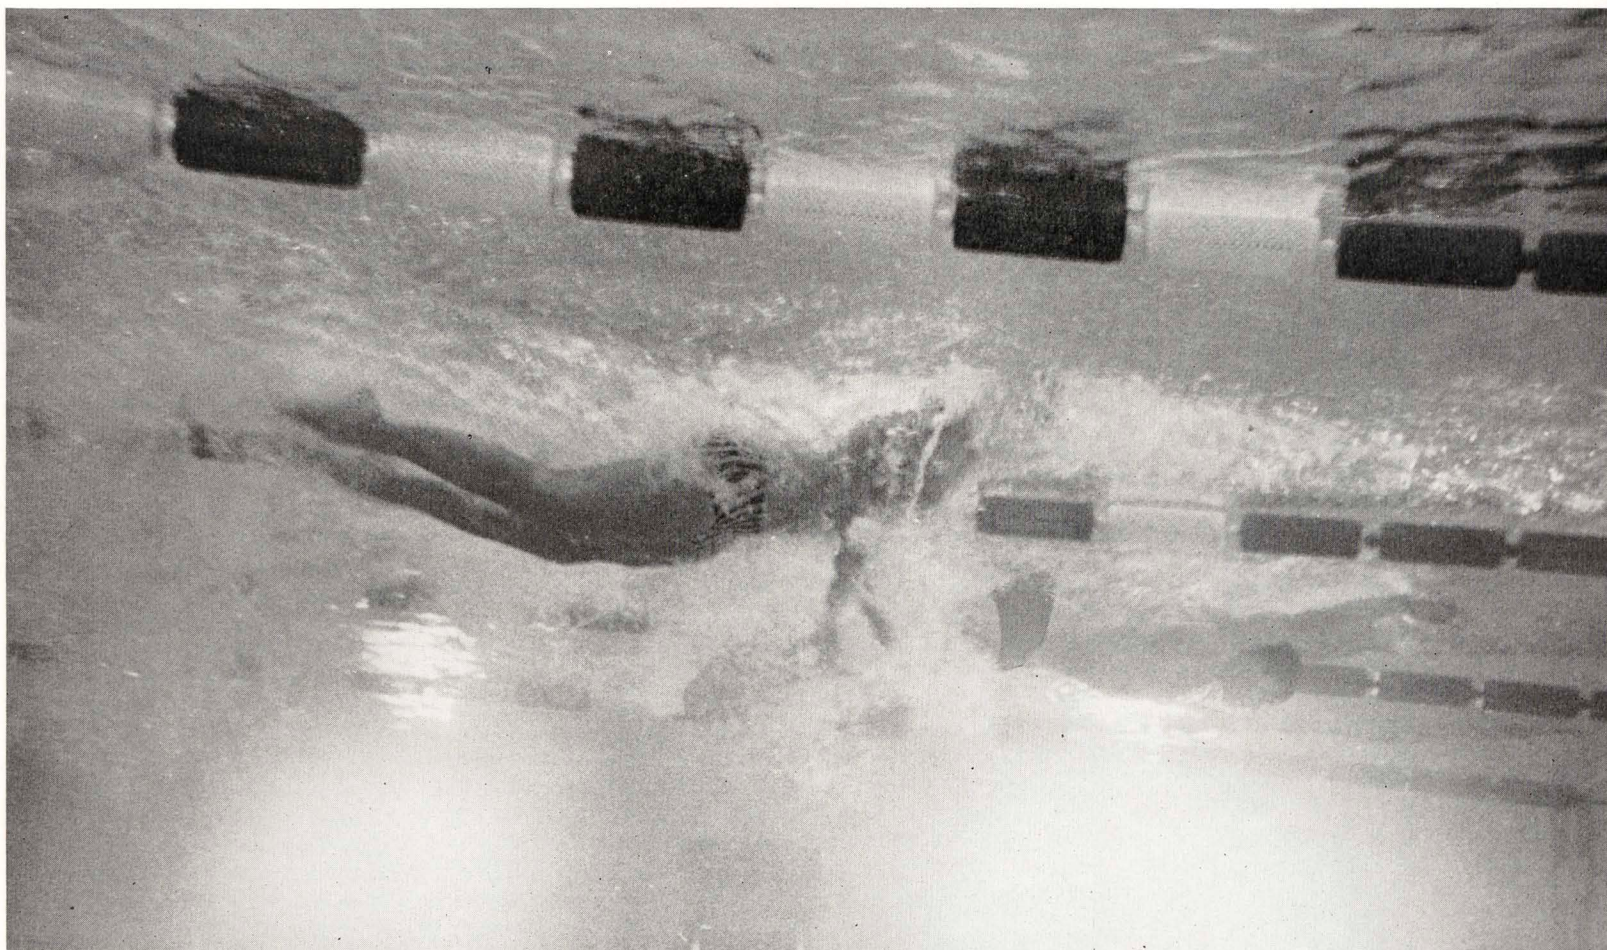

It was Humphreys against Humphreys in the dorm league. Humphreys won.

Golf was popular, probably since it's not too strenuous.

Sigma Chi and Pike went down to the wire when it came to intramural basketball action.

These swimmers are doing fine, but the photographer is having a little trouble keeping his head above the water.

Intramurals Undergo "Face-lifting"

Competition was as tough as usual this year in the Intramural sports arena as the Greeks, Dorms and Independents battled for an assortment of titles ranging from handball to horseshoes.

Under the direction of David Kossover, the Intramural program underwent a "face-lifting". The Fraternity leagues were expanded and the dormitories grew from one league to a larger league including AAA and AA divisions.

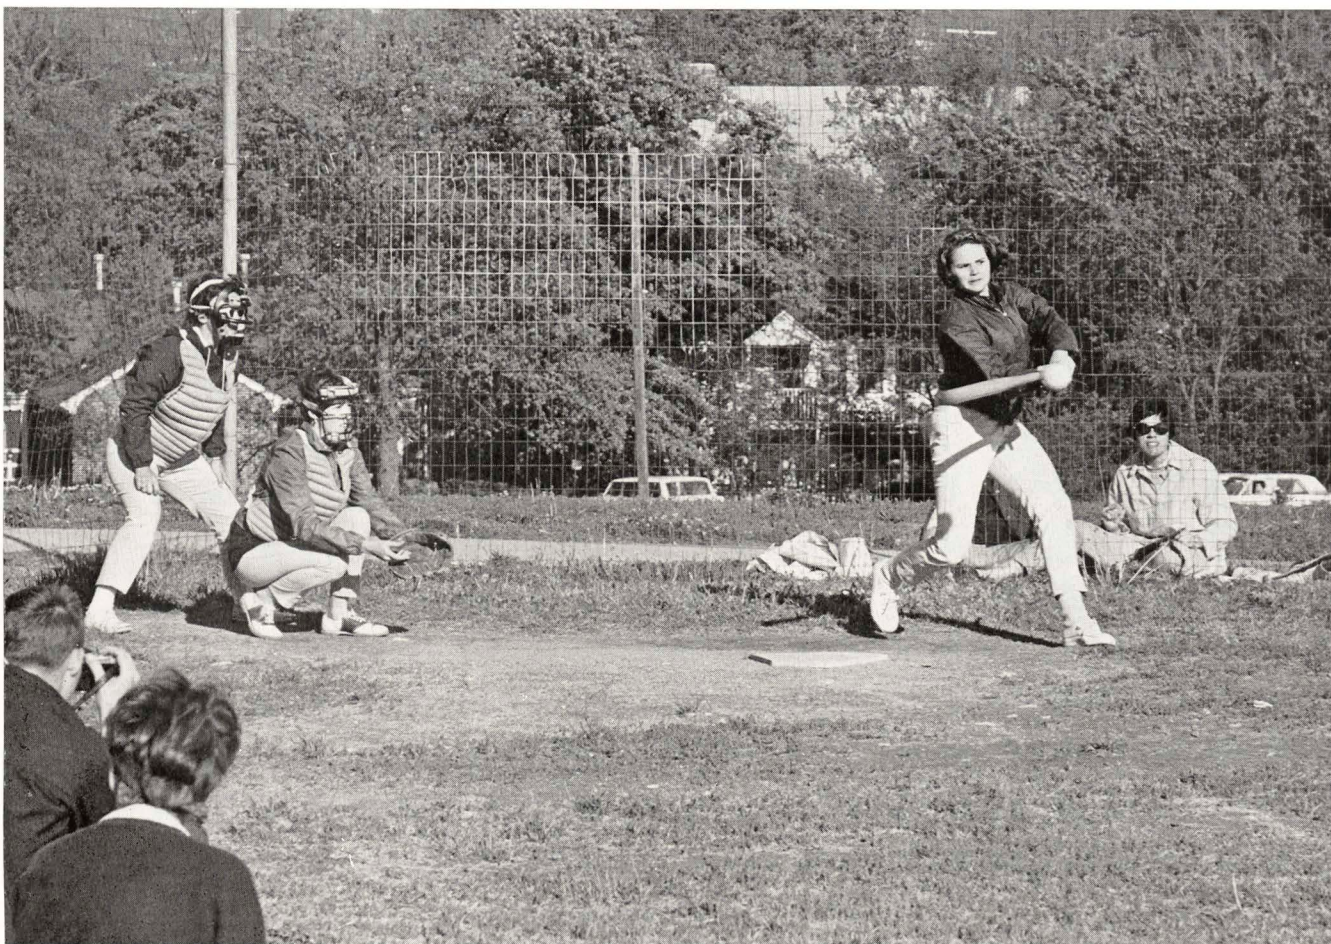

The ancient monarchs continued their reign as Holcombe Hall and Sigma Chi continued to rule the hardwoods. Holcombe won the AAA and the AA division championships in basketball and football. Sigma Chi won the AAA Fraternity division of basketball and Sigma Nu won the AAA football championship.

In the Independent leagues, uncertainty was the prevalent factor in picking a winner. Both leagues, Arkansas and Texas, had two or more undefeated teams in each. The competition was tough and the playoffs went right down to the wire. When all of the dust and confusion settled, the Rebels emerged as the Independent champions.

The program will be continued in much of the same way that it was carried out this year. Hopefully next fall will bring a lighted intramural field so that more games can be played and a longer schedule will be permitted during the late fall.

Sigma Pi's get in shape for volleyball with backyard practice.

One of the most enthusiastically received of WRA sports during the spring was softball.

Girls play the run, shout and holler brand of basketball, but get few passes.

WRA Offers Expanded Program

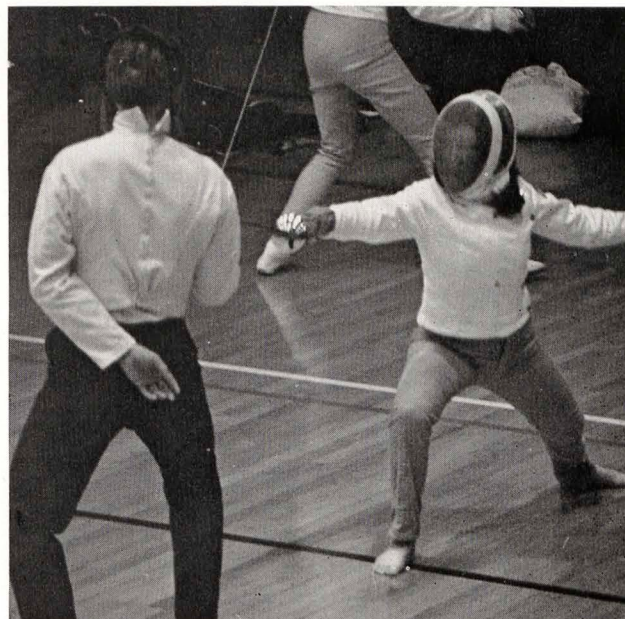

The University is highly touted for its male athletics. Rightly so. But there are some women at the University that seem to care for some of the more commonly called "manly" sports. And so WRA came into being for coeds who have visions of playing right guard for the Razorbacks.

Included in the program for aspiring young ladies are such events as swimming, baseball, volleyball and archery. Also added this year was powder puff football, which rivaled the pros in roughness.

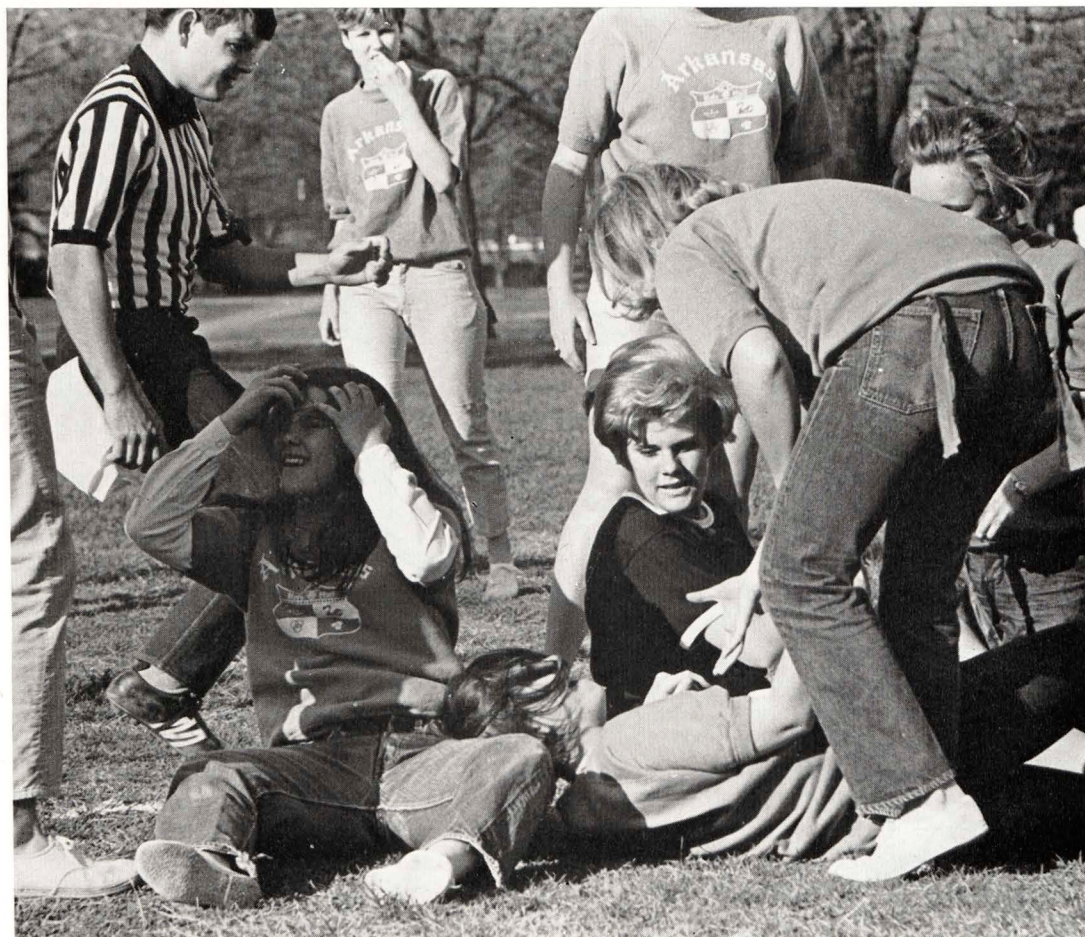

Over 325 women playing on about 20 teams competed for the Sweepstakes Award, given annually by the WRA for the top women's intramural team.

Other activities that are not so physically strenuous were speed ball, swimming, dance, and table tennis.

WRA is designed to offer a rounded physically fit University Coed.

An increase in campus wolves prompted some girls to retaliate.

One freshman girl bemoans her fate while other of her more athletic counterparts hurry back to the huddle.

Cheerleaders Make Presence Known

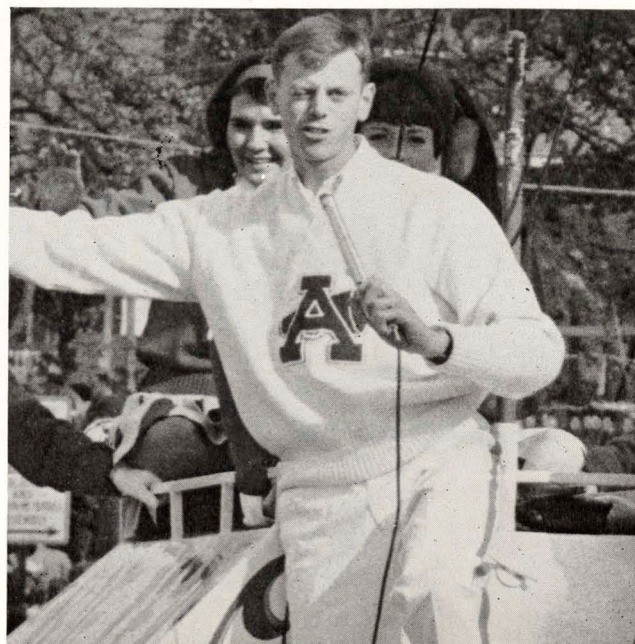

Under the strong leadership of Captain John Jackson, the 1967-68 Razorback cheerleaders made their presence known wherever and whenever the Razorbacks of Arkansas played.

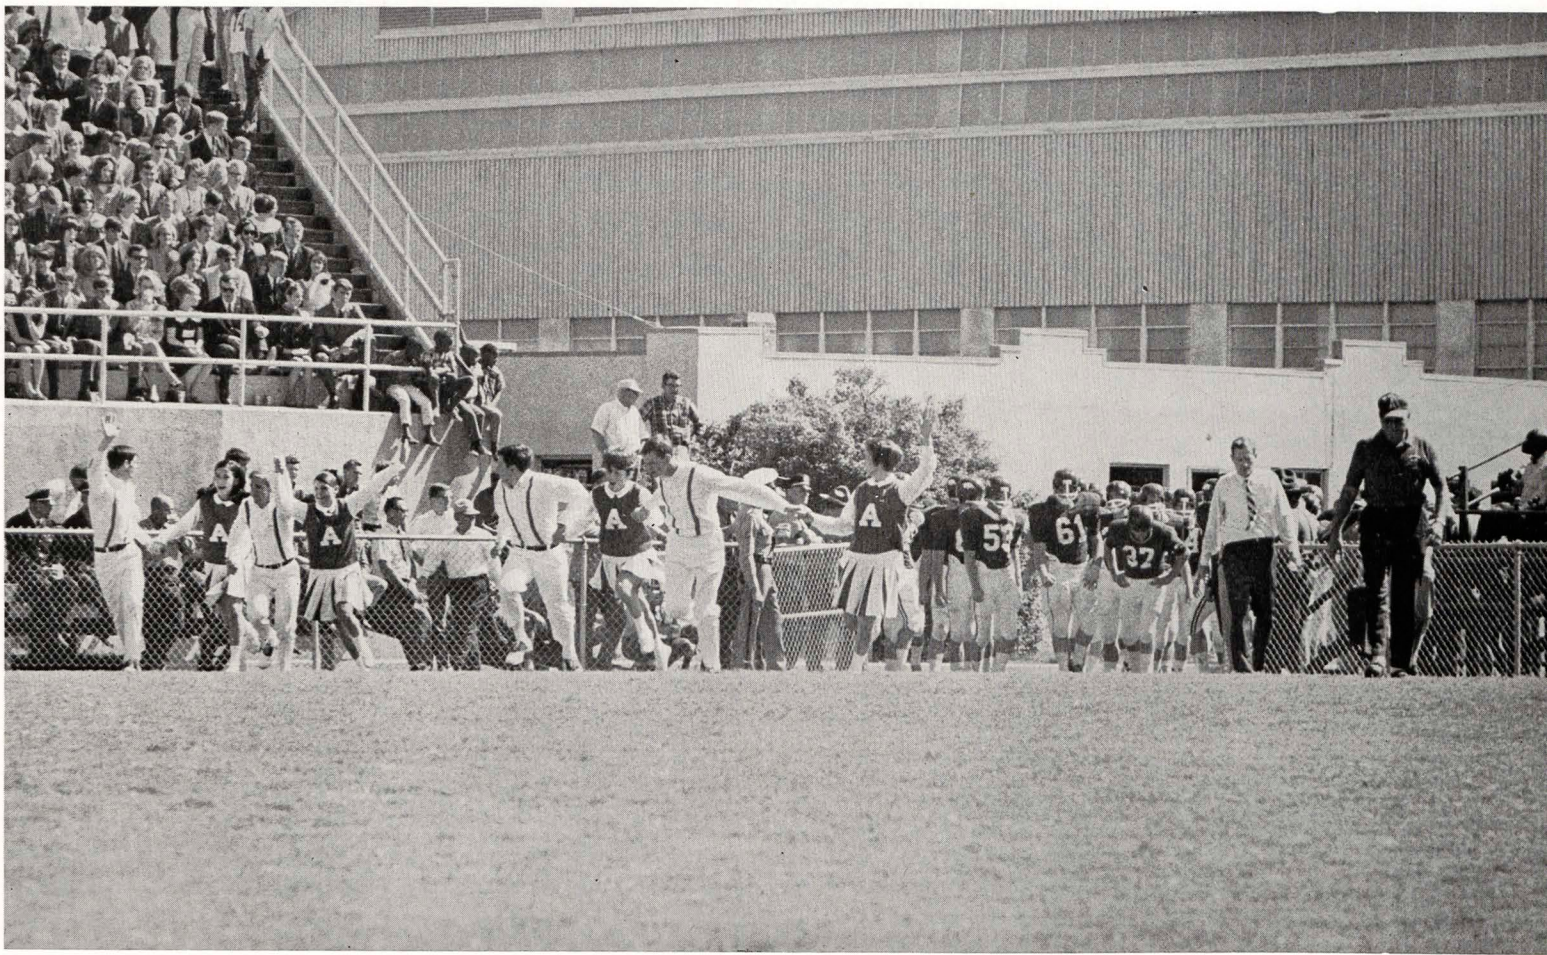

Besides the more obvious functions of leading the Arkansas cheering section at ball games and pep rallies, the eight people in charge of spirit at the University must prepare the program for the rallies, make arrangements for travel, co-ordinate their activities with those of the Arkansas Booster Club and spend long hours of practice in preparation for the time when they must run out in front of 45,000 fans and call the Hogs.

And on top of this they must remember the responsibility they have for representing the student body, the University of Arkansas and indeed the entire state, whether it be at a pep rally in the Greek theatre or on national television.

There is more to the job than smiling and yelling occasionally.

Jackson winks at advocates of a censorship board.

Cheerleaders bring the Razorbacks onto the field and then call the Hogs. Sophomores on the opposing teams then kneel to pray.

Everybody rode with Big Red in the Homecoming parade. Now he's married and his wife won't let him go out.

Twirlers Give Glamour, Excitement

Julie Ellis and Rick Lowery are the feature twirlers.

In front of the Marching Razorbacks wherever they go are the Drum Major and his assistant, two feature twirlers and the ten majorettes to add a large part of the glamour and excitement that are associated with the college band of today.

It is the long hours of planning and practice that make the big show, whether it be at the halftime of a football game, in the Homecoming parade or at a pep rally.

John Richardson served as the Head Drum Major and Gary Ricketts backed him up as his assistant.

Julie Ellis and Rick Lowery stepped high in front of the Marching One Hundred as feature twirlers for the second year in a row. Mary Elizabeth Brown was line captain for the majorettes.

Tryouts are held every spring to select the people who will lead the Marching Razorbacks throughout the next year.

A few more of the more enthusiastic bandmen follow the Razorbacks to Houston on their own.

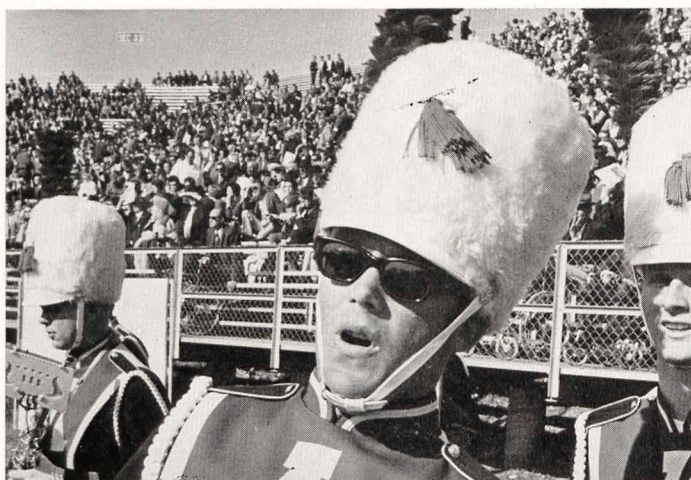

Marching Razorbacks sometimes brave inclement weather to put on their halftime show.

A brilliant halftime spectacle awaits the Arkansas fan on trips to Fayetteville or Little Rock.

Marching Razorbacks Get Acclaim

Most ardent of the Hog fans, bandsmen even have their own yells.

The Marching One Hundred who number one-hundred and thirty.

These are the elite Marching Razorbacks — decked out in their distinctive red, white and midnight blue uniforms to perform before and at the halftime of the Razorback football games and in countless parades and more numerous pep rallies.

Directed by Dr. Richard Worthington and his assistant, Dr. Richard Pitman, the Marching Razorbacks have become nationally acclaimed for the precision and pageantry that are a trademark of their shows.

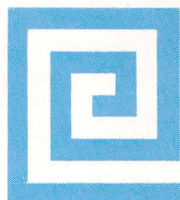

The band performs at all of the Razorback games in Fayetteville and Little Rock, and made a road trip to Waco this year when Arkansas played Baylor.

Dr. Worthington directs from the sideline.

Tell It Like It Is . . .

At this point it has been traditional for the editor to take a page or so to give his personal opinion about the RAZORBACK, its staff, and the University. For me, it is the second such opportunity. The past two years in the RAZORBACK office have been eventful to say the very least. But, there is no better place for us to begin than the beginning itself.

My interest in yearbooks began as a high school sophomore when an old friend, Richard Shelton, obtained a job for me on the 1961 HURRICANE staff at Jonesboro High School. There, I met my first yearbook advisor, Mrs. Melba Aston, who is basically responsible for my attempting to work on the RAZORBACK staff when I first enrolled in the University of Arkansas. Mrs. Aston helped me continually in high school and I have even had to return to her for some additional aid while serving as RAZORBACK Editor. To both of these people, I am most thankful.

Then, if you haven't heard the story as to why I decided to apply for editor of the RAZORBACK, ask any of my closer associates, they have suffered through the telling of the tale too many times to read it again. The story of which I am referring is recorded on the final pages of last year's book. Originally, Mike Barkley and I had planned to apply for Co-Editors of the '67 RAZORBACK. However, through some rather strong campus political manipulation, Mike was encouraged to file for Editor alone, leaving me with few plans of my own and less than two weeks to make a decision as to what to do. Also, I had the same amount of time to prepare my presentation for the Board of Publications.

At that time, I had made plans to take a new found friend, one Jennifer Jones, to visit a friend and her parents in Baytown, Texas. I told Mike that I would make the trip and after returning to Fayetteville, I would give him my decision as to my plans for the RAZORBACK. While on the trip Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Jones gave me an opportunity to relax and think over my decision as well as deciding how to go about making a presentation to the Board of Publications when I returned. My hosts served excellent food, provided new entertainment in the Astrodome, and shared the best in conversation.

However, I returned to Fayetteville having decided to apply for editor of the book. I called Mike and informed him of my decision and immediately began working on my presentation. Soon after that the selection was over and Mike and I were able to get together and begin making plans for the book with him serving as chief-photographer. During the two years, Mike has missed some picture appointments, but for the most part he has been extremely dependable and I appreciate it more than he will know. After our competition, we have become the best of friends. Sometimes we fight, but we are always able to discuss the problem and work it out to our mutual best advantage. Some people would not have been surprised if Mike had just walked out on me during a deadline when I pushed him so hard, but that would have surprised me because that would not be characteristic of Mike Barkley. He has stuck with me through it all, but has never hesitated to disagree.

In the publication section, I mentioned that due to a suggestion by the Board of Publications I decided to distribute more work and responsibility to members of the staff in order to help build a more experienced staff. Actually, in my opinion, experience is not nearly as important in working on the RAZORBACK as dependability and determination. People such as R. C. Walker, President of Southwestern Engraving Company, Wallace D. Hurley and Walter Campbell of The Hurley Company are able to make up for a lack of experience. In fact, if you could share any percentage of R. C. Walker's experiences, you would have more experiences than could have been accumulated during an entire lifetime. There has never been or will ever be another one like R. C. Walker. He and my good friend, Jewel Robbs, share one thing in common — let's just say that both men have done rather well in getting over their bashfulness. As Mr. Walker put it, "during the past two years we've had a damn good time." I know what he is like now and my biggest question is, what did he do for entertainment when he was only fifty?

Mr. Hurley and Walter Campbell seem to come through in almost any situation. If they come through this time, you can cross out the word "almost" in the previous sentence. Sincerely, they have worked hard to see that after including Gaebale in the book, we still get the books before graduation. We are extremely lucky to get that type of cooperation from any printer.

We have had our difficulties this year in obtaining cooperation from the staff. However, most members did their jobs sooner or later — the later is what kills you, but then again, some never finished, they simply stopped working. I will say no more about those individuals who let us down, except Ellen Van Eaton, who made me promise to say something about her decision to retire from the staff. Ellen, I do hope that's satisfactory.

It seems that many students enjoy reading these pages to see who the editor speaks out against, but, to me, at this point it is not necessary. I think I spoke out rather clearly last year. Since then there has been no major conflict that I can recall.

Now, let us talk about some of the people who have worked hard to publish this book. I have already mentioned T. J. Patterson, Sue Walk, Linda Young, James T. Wright and wife, Mike Barkley, Dixie Terrell and Ellen Ann Ragsdale. However, there have been many others who spent time, perhaps too much for their own good, working on the book.

Right off, I think of Hall McAdams. Hall went through pure Hell getting his section together, but he did it. After being unsuccessful in reaching members of his staff by phone, he tried telegrams to achieve a small response. Nevertheless, he replaced his first assistance with Nana Holt, Nancy Baney, and Mil Bucannon, who all worked extremely long hours during finals first semester to finish the section. No one knows, better than Nana, just how much that sets a person back — it will make a second semester pledge out of the best student.

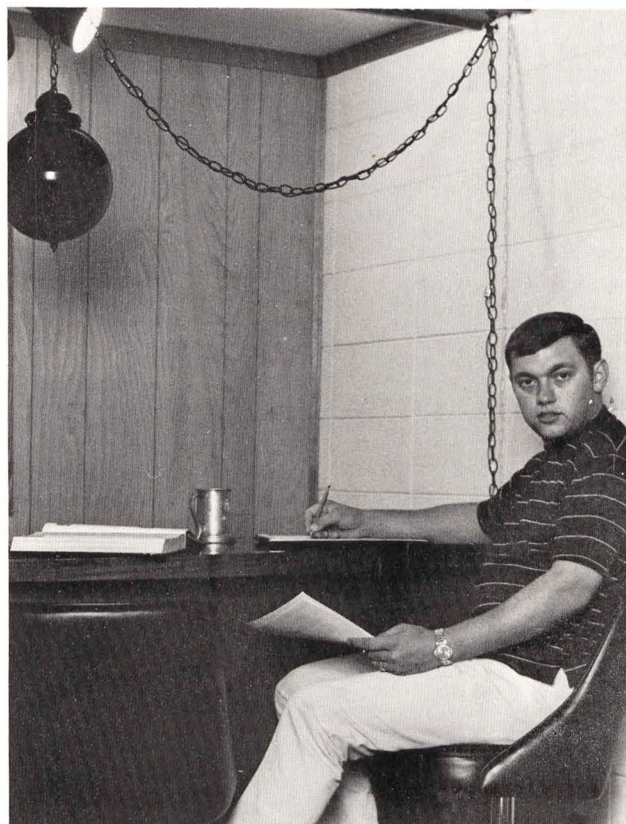

Nancy Helms also had rough sailing through finals due to the administration section. However, she worked hard to obtain material from the administration for her section and I wouldn't call it the most exciting section in the book to work with either. Kathy Walker completed the personalities section with only one major mistake and she corrected that one. Pete Gordy dealt with the military or should I say that the military dealt with Pete. That's a tough section, if it were not for people like Major Robinson, I feel it would be even worse.

Jean Thompson headed the publication section and I must say that she was extremely organized and, as is typical for her, she did an outstanding job. However, I would point out that the color picture division for publication was her idea. Due to the circumstances, I'd pick Jean to be a future First Lady of Tennessee. Congratulations.

David Dickey shared Robyn Gannaway with us long enough to complete the features section. Robyn headed the features staff to select pictures and write copy and cuts to add their own meaning to the book. Carol Ann Abney wrote the copy for the features section recording the events of the year that she chose to cover. Pam Scrape, Ann Curry, and Miss Bonnie Jamison all worked on the features staff with Robyn. Bonnie was usually in one class or another when the section staff met, but she did help us proof several signatures when we found ourselves in a pinch.

Ferrell Ervin and Vicki Morgan worked on dorms while Tommie Kay Ebbert and George Dehan edited the Greeks section. We had more difficulties, but it was finally finished.

Celia Thompson and Artie Gregory waited all year for the RAZORBACK Beauties to be announced. Well, the announcement finally came and Celia and her typist did a fine job completing the section.

Terri Campbell began the year as section editor of the organization section, but left school at semester leaving Fred Horn in charge. The communication was poor, but Fred worked hard and finally gathered help to finish the section.

Carter Hardage and Blain Heath worked on the sports section. Actually, I feel that Blain did all that Carter could talk him into doing and then Carter was left to do the rest. This was our second year to receive football copy around the first of May, which is just a little late.

The index was compiled by Liz Ellison under the direction of Linda Young. We were unable to check the proofs for that section so we can only hope it to be accurate.

Well, now it is late and I should close. I wish next year's Co-Editors, Tommie Kay Ebbert and Tommie Jean Patterson the best of luck. They have both worked on both the 1967 and 1968 RAZORBACKS and to me they are like sisters. They should have the necessary experience and should be able to profit from my mistakes. Needless to say, if there is anything I can do to help other than my typist job, do not hesitate to notify me. Oh yes, T. K. E. you did a good job and did meet your deadline and I couldn't be happier.

I will return next year to attempt to close the gap and pick up that degree they talk so damn much about. Hope also to be able to begin to party now and then. See you later.

Bill Ebbert, Jr.
